BRITAIN GIVEN U. S. MESSAGE ON ANTARCTIC

Controversy Over Byrd's Explorations Thought Avoided for Time.

YEAR TAKEN TO REPLY TO NOTE OF BRITISH

Study of Sovereignty Is Held Favorable to American Claims.

WILKES' DISCOVERIES AMONG THOSE CITED

Navy Man Originally Found Land Which Empire Asserts It Owns.

Possibility of a controversy developing between the United States and Great Britain concerning the question of sovereignty over the vast Antarctic region now being explored by Commander Richard E. Byrd has been avoided, for the present at least, by a note dispatched to London by the State Department November 15.

The American note, sent through the American Embassy in London, acknowledge receipt of a note from the British government of November 17, 1928, in which attention is called to the fact that Commander Byrd's explorations are taking place on alleged British territory, and which virtually claims British sovereignty over the entire 5,000,000 square miles of the South Polar region.

The State Department's communication expresses regret at the apparent oversight in delaying to answer the communication, and at the same time expressed appreciation of the interest of Great Britain in Commander Byrd's expedition. The American note, however, is careful to leave the door open for a further discussion of the question of sovereignty over the Antarctic region.

Whole Question Studied.

Since receipt of the British note, the State Department has undertaken a comprehensive study of the whole question of the Antarctic and existing claims to sovereignty over those regions. This work was done chiefly by J. Reuben Clark, formerly Undersecretary of State, and is understood to establish the fact that the United States has basis for claim to much of the Antarctic region. That this claim has not been asserted apparently is due to the fact that with the question of naval reduction before the world, the moment was deemed inopportune.

The conference of President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald also may have had a bearing on the situation.

The British note of November 17, 1928, was delivered by Sir Esme Howard, the British Ambassador. In it he said that his majesty's governments in different countries of the empire had learned that an American expedition under Commander Byrd had started on a voyage of scientific research in the Antarctic regions. These governments had watched with especial interest the progress of the expedition on account of the interest which they themselves take in the regions where, they understood Commander Byrd would conduct the bulk of his research.

1926 Conference Mentioned.

It was recalled that certain regions of the Antarctic formed the subject of discussion at the imperial conference in London in 1926, a copy of which was transmitted to the department. His majesty's government wished the expedition every success and if desired would issue instructions to appropriate authorities to afford Commander Byrd every assistance while the expedition was in the Ross Dependency and the Falkland Islands Dependencies.

Two important discoveries in a hitherto unexplored area just south of British-claimed territory have been made by Commander Byrd. These he has named Rockefeller Range and Marie Byrd Land and has officially claimed them for the United States.

A possible reserve argument that has received consideration by State Department officials involves the Monroe Doctrine, which precludes European encroachment on any portion of this hemisphere. The argument presupposes that the western Antarctic is a part of the Western Hemisphere.

British Claim Nearly All of Area.

The British imperial conference of 1926, at the suggestion of Australia, laid claim to practically all of the Antarctic known to exist. Objections to these claims, as developed in the State Department study, are on two grounds:

First, that much of the area claimed by Great Britain originally was discovered by the United States, and second, that Commander Byrd is discovering new areas which the British did not know existed.

The United States, it is argued, can claim all of Wilkes Land, since it was

Youth Killed by Shot Fired From Own Gun

LEO ATWELL.

A gun bought for a Thanksgiving Day outing by Leo Atwell, 18 years old, of 1118 Twenty-fifth street northwest, cost his life when it slipped from its resting place beside a tree and accidentally fired a single shot into his heart while he was hunting rabbits yesterday morning near the home of his aunt, Mrs. Walter Stunkel, in Loudoun County, 2 miles from Ashburn, Va.

The youth, carrier boy for an afternoon newspaper for five years in the Washington Circle section, was the son of Mrs. Lois Atwell, an employe of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, who has made her home here with her son and 13-year-old daughter Nellie since moving from Leesburg, Va., about ten years ago. The lad was graduated from Grant School last June.

The shooting occurred when the boy placed his gun momentarily beside a tree while he was walking through a small woods with his 15-year-old cousin, Steward Havener, of Alexandria, Va., with whom he had left Washington at 5 o'clock yesterday morning in an automobile with the latter's father, Earl Havener. The youth had backed away from the tree in talking with the Havener boy when the weapon suddenly slid to the ground and was discharged. Death was almost instantaneous. Authorities announced that the killing was accidental and that no inquest would be necessary.

They reported that a short time earlier the boy had accompanied a group of older hunters, but returned to his aunt's home when he was admonished for persistently getting in the range of their gunfire. Accompanied by his young cousin he walked into the nearby woods to his death from the gun which he had purchased the previous day with $5 given him by his mother, after he plead with her for days to let him buy it.

The body probably will be brought from the aunt's home today to the residence of Mrs. Atwell.

JAPANESE, FORMER ENVOY HERE, SUICIDE

DESPONDENT SINCE 1926

Tokio, Nov. 29 (A.P.). (Friday)—Sadao Saburi, Japanese Minister to China, and former Japanese charge d'affaires at Washington, committed suicide early today at Miyanoshita, a fashionable mountain resort 45 miles southwest of Tokio. A telephone report from the resort said Saburi shot himself with a pistol at the Fujiya Hotel, where he had been staying. He returned to Japan recently from Nanking to consult with government official prior to undertaking new negotiations with China.

Saburi was considered among the most brilliant members of the Japanese foreign service, with a distinguished career ahead. His friends were unable to give a motive for his act except that he had been despondent since his wife's death in 1926.

Sadao Saburi was former first secretary to the Japanese Embassy in Washington. He was 52 years old, a widower, and had no children.

The diplomat had a distinguished career. He was appointed to the first secretaryship here in October, 1919, and served in that capacity about a year. Later, following his return to Japan, he was a delegate to the Washington Arms Reduction Conference called by President Harding.

Following the arms parley he went to the Court of St. James as counselor and also served as charge d'affaires for several years. He had been in Peiping, China, for about four months.

650 Persons Arrested In Red Demonstration

Kishenev, Roumania, Nov. 28 (A.P.). Six hundred and fifty persons were arrested here today after police were compelled to use firearms in suppressing a demonstration by Bessarabian Communists.

Although the officers seemingly fired directly into the crowds, it was claimed by the authorities that no casualties resulted.

DOCTORS FIND NOISE IS CAUSE OF DISEASE

COURTESY OFTEN NEEDED

Noise, says an official dictum of the Berlin Aerztekammer, or Council of Physicians, constitutes not merely an annoyance, but is frequently a social cause of disease.

The German medical group divides noises into three classes, including industrial noises emanating from factories, mills, construction work of machinery; traffic noises caused by automobiles, street cars and other vehicles, and dwelling noises, into which classification fall radios, phonographs, wild parties, dogs and cats, wailing infants and squabbling parents.

Any or all of these noises, it is discovered, can and do cause dizziness, headaches, palpitation of the heart, fatigue, hysteria, depression, nervous disorders and many other ailments, and, in addition, destroy the organs of hearing.

Anything which produces results like that should be eliminated, and to that end the Berlin physicians are undertaking a scientific study to classify all of the noises which are heard in a city, so that most effective measures can be taken to modify or eradicate those which are found to menace the health or happiness of the community.

However, although Berlin has a number of laws and police regulations intended to minimize laws, not all of them are enforced or observed, and comparison shows that London, although considerably larger than Berlin, is likewise considerably quieter.

There is a supposedly strict regulation in Berlin, for instance, which insists that automobile horns "must emit harmonious accord of tones or clear tone unmixed with discord." The law also specifically rules that automobile signals must be short and not prolonged. Ther city also has a law prohibiting the use of cutouts or cutout devices on muffler on any vehicles, including motorcycles. The pub-

HOOVER FEELS CERTAIN PLANS TO BE SUCCESS

Program to Stimulate Nation's Industry Is Assured Support.

PRESIDENT ASSIGNS DETAILS TO LEADERS

FARM ASSOCIATIONS WILL PERFECT UNIT

Government to Contribute Tax Reduction of $160,000,000.

Assured of unstinted support for his program of mobilizing the country's forces to carry forward undiminished the country's economic activities, President Hoover has assigned its fulfillment to industry, agriculture and labor confident that the promises made him during the conferences of the last two weeks will be kept.

Not since the World War have leaders of all phases of economic endeavor been brought so definitely into cooperation with the Government. But the program as it has been laid out by the President and those with whom he has taken counsel will not call for Government direction.

It now reposes in the hands of industry to be worked out under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, agriculture (in the councils of its four great organizations, the Farmers Union, Farm Federation Bureau, National Grange, the Farmers Equity Union), and labor, through the American Federation of Labor and the railroad brotherhoods.

Permanent Economic Organization.

Behind President Hoover's immediate purpose—to insure continued business activity, stimulate certain lagging industries and increase the export market as the means of dispelling timidity or suspicion for the future—is the thought of a permanent economic organization.

Out of the conferences, and the developments expected in the fields of organized industry agriculture and labor, the President and Julius Barnes, chairman of the board of the United States Chamber of Commerce, who has worked with him, hope to see the establishment of three permanent councils, fully representative of industry, agriculture and labor, and equipped to cooperate with the Government and with one another on any occasion.

The plan, although vaster, is not unlike the one worked out successfully in the Department of Commerce through voluntary committees of industry for cooperation with the Government.

To Meet in Chicago.

The labor organizations already constitute a working unit, while the four farm associations already have expressed a willingness to perfect such a unit. At a meeting here following their call at the White House, it was virtually agreed to meet in Chicago before the first of the year with a view of forming a single Football and Races Also Attract Crowds on Holiday.

Setting an example for the Nation, Government officials, foreign diplomats and the lay people of Washington united yesterday in offering thanks for peace, prosperity and the blessings of the past year. In accordance with the wishes of President Hoover, who is still mourning the death of Secretary Good, the observance was marked with quiet dignity.

Calls to the residents of the Capital and the citizens of the Nation to realize their economic soundness and to look back upon the year as one of joy and plenty were sounded at the various united church services in the city. The afternoon and evening were spent in divers forms of recreation or in resting after bountiful Thanksgiving dinners.

The President, Mrs. Hoover, and their son, Allan, who returned home for the holiday from Harvard, observed the day in a fashion which was followed by thousands of other Washington families. They attended church in the morning, took an automobile ride in the afternoon, and entertained a few friends at dinner in the evening.

The President had a half dozen turkeys, one of them wild, to choose from for the White House Thanksgiving dinner. Several of these were given to the poor of the city.

The chief executive did not go to his desk at all during the day, but he read some of the proofs of the speech to be delivered upon the opening of Congress. He and his "medicine ball cabinet" had a workout of twenty minutes during the morning on the White House grounds.

There were a few small social affairs during the afternoon and at night, but nothing elaborate had been planned because of the Chief Executive's example in canceling engagements as a token of respect for the late Secretary of War.

The major sporting events of the holiday, to which thousands flocked,

NATIONALIST APPEAL TO LEAGUE AWAITED

Couched in stern terms, China has presented proposals to Soviet Russia looking to settlement of the Manchurian hostilities, with the warning that rejection of the proposals will indicate that Russia entertains warlike ambitions toward China, which the Nationalist government will be prepared to oppose.

China proposed an armistice and that a joint commission of Chines and Russians investigate conditions on borders of Russia and China.

The drastic move of China's central government followed the independent action by Manchuria Wednesday for peaceable settlement of the Chinese Eastern Railway dispute, which resulted in Soviet troops invading Manchuria and scattering the Chinese soldiery with little opposition. Manchuria had agreed that Russian managers should be reinstated in operation of the railway, pending consideration of other terms imposed by Russia.

Action Is Overwhelming.

Disregarding Manchuria's action in making peace as that of unauthorized district officials, the Nationalist government at Nanking proceeded with plans to request the League of Nations to settle the controversy of China with Russia.

Concurrently, the United States suggested to the British, French, German, Japanese and Italian governments that the Kellogg antiwar pact might serve in possible attempts by the powers to avert further armed clashes in Manchuria.

On its far southern border, the Nationalist government was engaged with a serious revolt in Kwangtung and Kwangsi provinces. Rebel forces were about 150 miles from Canton, their objective, and observers expressed the opinion that the city would be captured unless Nationalist reinforcements of troops and warships, already dispatched, arrived shortly.

For the time being, at least, the unknown Kuominchun rebel forces were said to have ceased fighting in central China. Many reports asserted that the Kuominchun generals were bribed with large sums by the Nationalist officials.

Nanking Statement Given.

Nanking, Nov. 29 (Friday) (A.P.).—The Nationalist government of China has forwarded to Russia proposals for settlement of the Manchurian armed dispute, with the statement that "rejection will indicate Russia entertains warlike ambitions toward China. The Nationalist government will be prepared to meet the Soviet move accordingly."

The Nationalist foreign office issued the following statement:

"The English office has received a telegram from Chang Tso-Ping, Chinese minister to Germany, stating that acting upon the foreign ministry's instructions he recently submitted a proposal to the Soviet government, either—

Police said Joseph Oliver, Vancouver lawyer, and brother of the accused man, had brought similar charges against Dr. Latimer and had been advised the police were powerless to act.

Dr. Latimer came into the provincial police station last night dripping tar and with the lower portion of his body covered with feathers and swore out a warrant for Oliver. He said he was telephoned early last night by a man giving the name of Harvey who

ABSENTEES AVERT LABORITE DEFEAT

Liberals and Conservatives Vote Together on Bill for Unemployment.

AMENDMENT IS PASSED

London, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—The fact that many members were absent saved the Labor party from defeat tonight when Liberals and Conservatives voted together for the first time on a Liberal amendment to the unemployment insurance bill.

The government forces had a margin of 70 votes, but observers agreed that if the absentees from the opposition parties had been in their seats the cabinet would have been defeated.

A defeat on this amendment, however, would not have meant resignation of the government. Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister, has announced on several occasions that he would not send in the resignations of the cabinet unless defeat came on a major measure.

The Liberal amendment, which was considered in committee of the whole,

Starlings Give Views On Drive to Reporter

Interpreter Aids Birds in Expressing Their Resentment.

No campaign against a public nuisance would be complete or fair without giving the party which is being assailed a chance to present its side of the controversy. Therefore, The Washington Post's inquiring reporter yesterday set out with the avowed purpose of interviewing the starlings on Pennsylvania avenue, to get their impressions of the barrage of complaints being registered by an outraged citizenry.

Enlisting the aid of an interpreter of the Department of Agriculture, who understands starling language, the courageous reporter started out from The Post building. The assignment required no car tokens or taxicab fare, for just across the street there were plenty of starlings just itching to be interviewed.

"Heigh, ho, everybody," shouted the reporter to a group of starlings nestled in the trees just opposite the District Building.

"Eeee-k, eee-k, acuu—wawk, eee-k," responded a proud, handsome starling, flapping his wings in disdain toward the offices of the city's administrative heads.

"What did he say?" the reporter asked the interpreter.

"He said, 'What's the big idea of you fellows riding us all the time?'"

"Ask him why the starlings insist on lodging so close to the District Building," the reporter requested.

A long conversation between the interpreter and the starling ensued, broken frequently by the raucous calls of other starlings quarreling because the Avenue did not contain the usual number of automobiles against the curb, it being a holiday.

"He declared the starlings remain close to the District Building because it is a safe place for them as they know the Commissioners will do nothing to make them move," said the interpreter.

U. S. Help in Shelby-Kelly Investigation Is Doubtful

Justice Officials Oppose Revealing McPherson Case Records.

Possibility that the records of the Department of Justice in connection with the McPherson death mystery would be turned over to District officials for their use in the Shelby-Kelly inquiry was extremely doubtful last night.

Officials of the Department of Justice are known to be strongly opposed to violating the pledges of absolute confidence made to each of the more than 800 witnesses quizzed in the investigation of the Park Lane tragedy, and it is considered improbable that Attorney General William D. Mitchell will release their records without first going over the matter thoroughly with them.

Up to a late hour last night, Mitchell had not officially discussed with officials of the Bureau of In-

Big Cunarder Found to Be But Slightly "Bruised" in Port Collision.

New York, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—A survey at the pier today disclosed that the liner Mauretania was only slightly damaged as the result of a collision with a railway car float in the harbor near the Statue of Liberty late last night.

The giant liner, outward bound, proceeded on to quarantine shortly after the accident and remained anchored until daybreak. She then steamed to her pier under her own power and a force of about 50 men was put to work immediately repairing the damage to her port bow, above the water line.

The workmen were engaged at their task for eight hours. After a template for a new piece which was made up at a New York shipyard was welded into place the new section was

Paris Envoy in Dark.

Paris, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Valerian Duvgalevsky, Russian Ambassador to Paris, said today that he could add nothing to Moscow dispatches indicating that Gov. Chang Hsueh-Liang of Manchuria had assented to the Russian conditions for settlement of the Chinese Eastern Railway controversy.

It is understood that in view of these reports the French government, as one of the signatories of the Kellogg-Briand pact, feels that the situation no longer requires intervention by the signatories.

A Peiping dispatch published in the French press says that the commander of the Russian Far Eastern army proclaimed: "We have beaten the Chinese on two fronts and would have been able to pursue them to Harbin, but were content to give China a lesson."

The proclamation added that China "in order to avoid a new lesson" must fulfill the conditions laid down by Soviet Commissar Maxim Litvinoff. The Peiping dispatch adds that Mukden has accepted these conditions.

Nanking Silent on Mukden.

Shanghai, China, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Nationalist government officials in Shanghai and Nanking were silent today about Moscow's announcement that Mukden had agreed to the Russian demands for reestablishing the status quo in the Chinese Eastern Railway zone in Manchuria.

Private Moscow advices to Russians living in Shanghai indicated that the Nationalist government at Nanking had been fully informed of the action of the Mukden government. It was even said Nanking had participated in the alleged agreement, but most observers here believe that Nanking had not been aware of negotiations between Moscow and Mukden.

The existence of an understanding for opening negotiations was generally accepted here, though observers were uncertain whether or not Moscow's demands on Nanknig had been settled.

League Appeal Awaited.

Geneva, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—The secretariat of the League of Nations waited all day today for signs of an appeal from Nanking for intervention in the Russo-Chinese dispute in Manchuria, but tonight had received no communication indicating the intentions of the Nationalist government.

It was a day of waiting also for Dr. Wu Kai-Seng, permanent Chinese delegate to the league, who yesterday conferred with Sir Eric Drummond about the procedure to be adopted in case Nanking should make a formal appeal.

Dr. Wu tonight was without definite instructions. He said that he knew nothing of the reported agreement between Moscow and Mukden for negotiating a settlement, but he believed the announcement from Moscow might be a ruse to discredit any possible appeal by Nanking.

In unofficial quarters at Geneva there was much speculation about the action of Gov. Chang Hsueh-Liang of Manchuria. It was thought that Chang might be acting in opposition to the Nanking authorities. Another view was that Chang, while acting independently in a technical sense, might have received an informal tip from Nanking to begin direct negotiations with Russia.

U. S. Society Gives Thanks in London

300 Americans, Including Dawes, Eat Turkey and Pumpkin Pie.

London, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Three hundred Americans, members of the American Society of London, celebrated Thanksgiving tonight with turkey, pumpkin pie and other trimmings that "go" in the United States, as well as a few beverages that do not.

Ambassador Charles G. Dawes was guest of honor and made the principal address. The society had expected to entertain Ramsay MacDonald and Frank B. Kellogg, former Secretary of State. But the prime minister had a previous engagement and Kellogg had to leave for Southampton to board the Leviathan, on which he sailed for the United States at midnight.

"Sixty per cent of present-day Americans are of old English stock," said Gen. Dawes in his speech. "That is the reason why Britishers and Americans have so many faults in common."

Leon Errol, American actor, brought roars of laughter by alluding to the alleged bomb-throwing proclivities of the ambassador's fellow citizens of Chicago. "I can not understand why they ever sent a man from Chicago over here to talk about peace," said Errol.

RUSS-CHINA ACTION BY POWERS REMOTE

Direct Settlement by Two Nations Now Believed to Be Imminent.

U. S. CITES KELLOGG PACT

(Associated Press.)

The possibility of concerted action by the interested powers in averting open hostilities in Manchuria as a result of the Chinese-Soviet troubles there seemed more remote last night with the growing belief by officials here that the two nations would find a way to direct negotiations to settle their difficulties.

The question of concerted action, with an accompanying proposal that the interested powers, Great Britain, Japan, France, Italy and Germany, suggest means for pacifying the situation, has been laid before these powers by the Washington Government. On instructions of Secretary Stimson, the American representatives in the capitals of these powers have discussed possible concerted measures with the respective governments.

Suggestions Only Are Asked.

The discussions initiated by the United States, however, have been mainly in the nature of asking the interested parties for suggestions, the Washington Government merely citing that both China and the Soviet were signatories of the Kellogg pact for the renunciation of war. The last time the United States acted in the Chinese-Soviet dispute, growing out of the taking over by the Chinese of the Chinese Eastern Railway, was when Secretary Stimson took steps to have called to the attention of the two governments that both were signatories to the Kellogg war treaty.

Possibility of imminent steps for direct settlement was uppermost in the minds of Washington officials last night, in view of the reported acceptance by the Mukden government of the Soviet demand for the reinstatement of the manager and assistant manager of the railway. With a Chinese concession on this point, which was among the most important in all the negotiations for a settlement of the dispute, it was generally considered that the way would be open for complete discussions of the problem.

Noninterference Is Upheld.

The attitude of State Department officials, in the absence of Secretary Stimson, who was out of the city for Thanksgiving, was that the two powers should be given every possible opportunity for direct settlement of their difficulties without foreign interference.

London, Nov 28 (A.P.).—The Daily Herald states that Arthur Henderson, foreign secretary, and Ambassador Charles G. Dawes held a long conference today on the Chinese-Russian situation. The paper adds that a long telegram was sent to Washington after the conversation.

Tokyo (Friday), Nov. 29 (A.P.).—The vernacular papers here today assert the Japanese government is unwilling to assent to the American proposal of some form of international action in the Chinese-Soviet situation.

While official comment was unavailable today, the Associated Press found that the well-informed concensus in Tokyo was that prospects are good for an early peace between Mukden and Moscow, and the relaxation of Russian military preasure would make intervention either in the form of mediation or a joint declaration undesirable.

FRENCH STAND FIRM ON CRUISER PROJECT

Marine Minister Allays Fear of New German Ships Among Deputies.

NAVY BUDGET OUTLINED

Paris, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—France has no fear of modern German cruisers carrying 11-inch guns, such as the new 10,000-ton Ersatz Preussen.

Minister of Marine Georges Leygues made this clear today when he was "called on the carpet" by the naval committee of the Chamber of Deputies. He insisted that there was no need for amending the French cruiser building program.

Several members of the committee previously had preached the wisdom of making new plans for 8-inch gun cruisers authorized by the Washington Naval Conference, because Germany, which is not affected by the decisions of the Washington conference, was constructing cruisers that are really equal to modern battleships in armor and gunpower.

Marine Minister Confident.

Leygues refused to become excited over Berlin's newest naval big berthas. Although he was careful to avoid giving many technical details, he intimated that France's projected 10,000-ton cruisers were not as weak in armor as some persons believed. He said they could take care of themselves.

Questioned about the French attitude at the London conference in January, the minister of marine avoided assuming and responsibility, and advised the committee to ask for a statement from Premier Tardieu and Foreign Minister Briand.

A subcommittee was appointed to submit a list of questions to the premier and the foreign minister about the French naval policy to be followed in London, and the two statesmen will later appear before the committee to explain it.

Coastal Defense Urged.

The members of the committee were united in the opinion that France should have a navy strong enough to defend the French coasts on three seas and the African and the more distant colonial possessions.

The navy budget introduced today calls for the expenditure of 2,583,000,000 francs (approximately $100,000,000). This sum is less than the 1914 naval budget by 572,000,000 francs (approximately $22,880,000).

The report of the naval committee's secretary calls attention to the smallness of the French naval budget compared with the British and American budgets for 1929.

Beck Given New Department Post

(Associated Press.)

The second step of Secretary Stimson in his reorganization of the State Department was disclosed last night in orders to the entire department designating his assistant, William H. Beck, of Washington, to the coveted position of a signing officer.

Previousl ythis post had been confined to the Undersecretary and the four Assistant Secretaries. The Secretary's first step in his reorganization plans was the turning over to the Undersecretary Joseph P. Cotton much of his work.

Beck, whose previous duties included mainly the dealing with callers upon the Secretary and the arrangement of his work and files, under the new orders is authorized to dispose of a large part of the routine matter which had demanded the Secretary's personal attention. He will deal with requests upon Stimson for attendance at public, semipublic and functions of a diplomatic and international character; letters and messages for functions at which the Secretary can not be present and communications demanding a reply directly from the office of the Secretary.

Fishermen Search For Ship's Victims

Five Bodies Still Missing From Vessel Wrecked Off English Coast.

London, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Fishermen clad in oilskins and waders today searched the hull of the steamship Molesey, off the Pembrokeshire coast, for the bodies of victims of Monday's wreck, five of which are still missing.

Accompanied by coast guard officials, they clambered aboard the wrecked steamship during a driving rain, while waves washed over the broken deck, and searched the cabins and some of the holds.

The Molesey has gradually settled since she struck the rocks and now only the mast, some shattered fittings and occasionally part of the deck are visible from shore. While the search was progressing coast guards, police and fisherfolk kept watch along the coast. The coroner has delayed the inquest, in case further bodies should be discovered, but it will be held tomorrow in the village of Marloes.

Policeman Finds Mail Clerk Dead

Lyon Park Resident Victim of Apoplexy on Way to His Work.

James C. Miller, 52, of Lyon Park, railway mail clerk, fell dead when on his way to work yesterday within two blocks of his home. According to his daughter, Dorothy, Miller left his home at 6.30 yesterday morning, apparently in good health.

His body was found by Sergt. Alvin S. Bohrer, of the First Precinct, Washington Police Department, who was returning to his home just as he turned into Pine street off Pershing Drive in Lyon Park. Bohrer notified the Arlington County Police and Patrolman A. D. Langley investigated the case.

Dr. B. H. Swain, country coroner, who was called, stated death was due to apoplexy. The body was removed to the C. J. Ives mortuary parlors in Clarendon. Funeral announcements will be made later.

SPURNED, MAN KILLS SELF IN GIRL'S ROOM

NOT HIS FIRST BAD LUCK

Frederick, Md., Nov. 28.—Spurned in his ardent attentions to a waitress, John Anderson, 22 years old, of Baltimore, went to the girl's room alone, propped a shotgun on a chair against a radiator and pushed a stick against the trigger to kill himself instantly when she walked into her room at 1 o'clock this morning.

Following announcement by Justice of the Peace A. Y. Bennett, acting coroner, that no inquest would be necessary, Sheriff William C. Roderick made public that Anderson had made two previous attempts to kill himself in Baltimore as aftermath of luckless courtships with two girls in that city.

Helen Miller, 17 years old, waitress in a restaurant here, told police that Anderson came to Frederick about a week ago to woo her. She said he had made numerous attempts to win her love, but that she gave him no encouragement. She declared that she talked with him for the last time Tuesday when she declined his invitation "to go for a walk."

Entering her room above the restaurant upon quitting work about 1 o'clock, she said she saw the figure of a man and that she immediately flashed on the light. At the same moment, she declared, Anderson shoved a stick against the trigger of the shotgun and received the full charge through the left breast and in the heart, falling lifeless from the corner of the bed on which he had been sitting, apparently awaiting her entrance.

A note, addressed to "mother," whose home also was said to be in Baltimore, read: "Please do not worry over this. If I live life would simply be a joke, so I have decided to end it all. Good-by. (Signed) John." It was found beside the body.

The girl said she ran downstairs and summoned a policeman. An uncle of Anderson, whose name was not given, responded to a call from Baltimore and removed the body to that city. Miss Miller came to Frederick recently from her home in Westminster, Md.

BUSH FORMS WORLD DISTRIBUTION GROUP

HELP TO SMALL FIRMS

New York, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Irving T. Bush, president of the Bush Terminal Co., today announced formation of a huge new straight-line distribution system designed to facilitate the development of international commerce.

The new system, the announcement said, "will directly link the American manufacturer with every important distributing center in the vast geographical area extending from the British Isles to Persia and will supply every facility from shipment at the American factory, through transportation, to point of distribution abroad.

Bush said the service will be of particular advantage to those manufacturers whose shipments have not been large enough to justify maintenance of their own European organizations.

New World Trade System.

To put the new international service into effect, Bush Service Corporation, U. S. A., has been formed and subsidiary corporations have been set up throughout Europe. These subsidiaries have been merged with long established local service companies in the countries in which they will operate.

The system was organized through cooperation by Bush, creator of the Bush Terminals here, and Victor E. Freeman, who organized a distribution system on the other side of the Atlantic which now includes 54 companies. The Bush Terminal here will be the headquarters.

The announcement said that in addition to affording assistance to the American manufacturer, the system, by virtue of a complete two-way service, will afford the European manufacturer equally accelerated service for distribution of European products to the American market.

In the physical field, the announcement said, the service will provide, among other things, the fastest and cheapest routing of merchandise, consolidated car shipments, warehousing and cartage, packing and repacking, marking and stamping, the division of large consignments into smaller lots, or vice versa, and the fulfillment of various Government requirements.

Believe Help to Buyer and Seller.

In the financial field, Bush's statement said, the system will endeavor to help the buyer and the seller to come to terms.

One phase of the new service, Bush pointed out, will be of particular advantage to the comparatively small producer. The service, he declared, brings into being a new commercial document designated tentatively as a continuous document of possession, a combination of warrant with ocean bill of lading and railway bills, representing the continued responsibility of the Bush Service Corporation for the shipment from point of origin to point of distribution.

One of the advantages of the document, Bush said, will be that the American manufacturer will be able to negotiate it with his bank to secure an immediate cash advance against his shipment, even in cases where goods are shipped abroad for storage and sale over a period of time.

Deputies Do Honor To Italian Prince

Engagement of Humbert to Marie Jose Received With Cheers.

Rome, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Before packed galleries, the deputies of the Italian chamber paid an impressive homage to Crown Prince Humbert and the Italian royal family at the opening of the regular autumn session. The engagement of Crown Prince Humbert to Princess Marie Jose, of Belgium, was officially announced by President Giuriati. He read the royal announcement of the engagement.

Signor Giuriati recalled the warm welcome that Belgium gave to Prince Humbert during his recent visit and the touching manifestations after the attempt to assassinate him.

The entire chamber broke out into acclamations and cheers for the prince, the royal family and Belgium. After reading a list of the decisions taken by the government during the recess, Premier Mussolini said "the fascist government dislikes and disdains praise, insults and blandishments, only wishing for frank, objective and intelligent discussion—namely, fascist discussion."

KLAN POLITICS HELD PRISON RIOT CAUSE

Collapse of Discipline at Canon City Is Charged to Secret Order.

FORMER WARDEN TALKS

Denver, Colo., Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Disclosure of the existence of an organized Ku Klux Klan group within the walls of the Colorado Penitentiary, with both guard and convict members, presents a new angle today in the investigation of the mutiny at the penitentiary October 3, in which 13 lives were lost.

The revelation was made by Thomas J. Tyman, for 16 years warden of the prison, in testimony before Gov. William Adams' special commission investigating the riot. He testified that plotting of the klan against the prison administration had caused a collapse of discipline.

Lack of proper discipline, traceable to this organization, was responsible for the outbreak of last month, during which a handful of convicts, barricaded in a cellhouse, held the entire law enforcement machinery of the State at bay for more than 18 hours, the former warden asserted.

Former Governer Named.

Tynan charged that a former governor negotiated with klan officials in an effort to oust Tynan as warden. He timed that attempt during the administration of Gov. William E. Sweet. In his testimony, however, he did not mention Sweet's name.

"In order to get me in bad," Tynan told the commission, "he (the governor) met secretly with the klan. As a result of these conferences, charges were preferred against me."

Tynan testified that the late Rev. Fred G. Arnold, one-time head of the Klan in Colorado, organized the branch of the order in the penitentiary.

He further charged the organization of the Klan inside the penitentiary was a political maneuver and had a lasting effect in the administration of prison affairs.

Urges Change in System.

After making his charges of Klan machinations, Tynan urged the commission to recommend changes in the administration of the penitentiary.

He suggested a cement factory or some other similar enterprise be established within the prison walls to employ convict labor. He testified that highway construction offers one of the best labor activities for prisoners.

Tynan blamed the State Legislature for not providing larger quarters and making greater improvements in declaring overcrowding one of the worst evils of the present situation at the prison.

PHYSICIANS DISCOVER NOISE LEADS TO VARIOUS AILMENTS

The most effective protection against the effects of noise, physicians point out, is rest and undisturbed sleep in quiet surroundings. Workers surrounded by the clatter of a city through the day should have the relief of silence in and around their homes.

There are several ways by which that result can be accomplished. The ideal solution would be to set aside sections for residence purposes in which no noisy work or pleasures would be permitted. That, however, is just one of those things that never happens in real life.

But if proper police regulation of house noises were instituted, supplemented by establishment and enforcement of strict rules by apartment house owners and operators, it would soon tend to eliminate most of the noises which now prove objectionable, and to modify the others.

Distribution Halt Needed.

The entire burden should not consist of noise prevention, however. It is equally important to prevent the distribution of noise. There is a task for the building trades. If modern apartments were planned with some thought to sound-proof construction, instead of as speculative ventures to be built and sold as quickly as possible, the noise problem would be lessened considerably.

There is still another responsibility that of the individual to avoid making any unnecessary noises. In these days of paper-shell apartment walls, it may be a difficult problem to listen to a radio program without the sound percolating through to the next apartment, but it seems to be the ambition of the average radio owner to see just how much volume he can drag out of his set. As a matter of fact, radio sounds even better to the owner of the set when the volume is regulated proportionate to the size of the room. A blast that would fill the Washington Auditorium is entirely too much for the average pigeon-hole apartment.

The problem of noisy parties appears to be one created almost entirely by the prohibition enthusiasts who, by making liquor difficult and expensive to obtain in public restaurants, have driven socially inclined merrymakers into the approximate sanctity of private homes, where they can enjoy themselves in comparative comfort.

"Social" Horns Attacked.

Automobile horns under certain conditions, are probably necessary, but there is not the slightest excuse for the use of automobile horns for social purposes, which seems to be the basic cause for complaint as set forth in practically all of the ballots being received by The Post.

There is also no excuse for the use of muffler cut-outs or noisy brakes, and, although at the present stage of development motor trucks are noisier in operation than pleasure cars, much of that noise can be overcome by careful driving. It should be a mark of incompetence for a truck driver to make undue noise.

Throughout the list of noises in The Post's ballot there are few which are absolutely essential, and all of them could be modified without hampering the results of the activities which produce them.

At the present rate at which ballots are being received, it appears that by the time the antinoise campaign is ended The Post will be able to go before the District authorities with an appreciable display of the sentiments of the public of Washington. The more ballots received, the more attention the city officials will give to the campaign naturally.

MAURETANIA SAILS WEARING NEW PATCH

filled with cement. There remained only a comparatively short delay for the cement to set and the liner was ready to sail.

Cunard line officials said there had been only one cancellation of passage after the liner put back to her pier. A woman in the second class, whose name was not disclosed, decided to remain ashore when she learned of the illness of a relative.

Ship's officers said the shock of the collision, which occurred about midnight, was not particularly severe and many of the passengers who had retired did not know of the accident until they awoke today.

Capt. S. G. McNeil, master of the liner, said he was proceeding slowly down the harbor on an ebb tide when he sighted a double railway float owned by the Pennsylvania Railroad. He said he gave one sharp blast, indicating he was steering to port, but the captain of the tug pulling the floats did not respond to his whistle. Then, Capt. McNeil said, the tug gave two blasts indicating it was continuing on its course across the path of the liner.

The master of the Mauretania said it was too late then to do anything about the car float, "except save him as much as I could." He said the liner struck the float about 10 feet from its stern, and the impact apparently broke the hawser from the float to the tug, as the tug drifted off with the other float.

CAPITAL OBSERVES THANKSGIVING DAY

President Hoover and First Lady Lead Nation at Divine Worship.

were the football clash between Catholic University and George Washington University at the Brookland Stadium and the $10,000 Thanksgiving Day Handicap at the Bowie Race Track.

Motion picture houses and legitimate theaters did the usual large holiday business, but the streets in the downtown section were noticeable for their light traffic. Business, save in restaurants, places of amusement, and the trades that never cease, was at a standstill.

The day dawned with a cheerful sunshine and a not-too-cold atmosphere, but before night the temperature had fallen considerably, driving hundreds to the warmth of their homes.

Special dinners, even in the homes of the needy, were evident throughout the city, although the turkey was not present on every table. The Central Union Mission and other charitable organizations had seen to it that baskets were provided for several hundred poor families, and free dinners were given to lonesome men and women at the mission and the Salvation Army.

Even the inmates of the District Jail were given a special dinner so that they would note the day was not just another Thursday.

Partly because of the pleasant weather the churches that held services yesterday were crowded to capacity. Thousands of others who did not leave their homes heard Thanksgiving sermons over the radio.

U. S. Peace Leadership Asked.

A plea that America will lead the world in the pursuit of universal peace was voiced by Bishop William F. McDowell at the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal Church to a congregation which included the President and his family. Ten other Methodist churches of the city united in the service.

Declaring that the United States has the men and the money "to make a new mind in the world in the school of Christ concerning peace," Bishop Freeman said, with an allusion to the forthcoming naval limitations conference at London: "The supreme opportunity is at hand for us to lead the way toward obtaining what Christ envisaged."

The Rev. James Shera Montgomery, pastor of the church, presided at the service, and the President's proclamation was read by Rice W. Means, formerly a senator from Colorado.

Stock Crash Minimized.

At Bethlehem Chapel, in the heart of the stately Washington Cathedral, the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, urged his listeners to forget the recent stock market crash and realize that the country is economically and morally sound.

While admitting the essentialness of some material things, particularly food, Bishop Freeman warned against magnifying these values and relying too much upon "our boasted wealth. Thanksgiving is a day, he said, when one's mind should turn from everyday pursuits to a contemplation of the gifts of God. He also urged the substitution of a national viewpoint for a provincial.

The service was conducted by the Rev. William L. DeVries, D. D., canon and chancellor of the cathedral, and festival music was sung by the choir of men and boys under the direction of Edgar Priest, organist and choirmaster.

Pan-American Ceremony Held.

Perhaps the most colorful service of the morning was the Pan-American ceremony at St. Patrick's Catholic Church. Latin-American ambassadors, ministers, and their attendants, many of them arrayed in glittering uniforms, formed a large part of the congregation. The St. John's College cadets formed a guard of honor.

The responsibility of government officials and emissaries of setting a religious example for the people was stressed in the sermon by the Rev. John K. Cartwright, assistant pastor. The priest made it clear, however, that he was in no sense advocating a union of church and state.

The representatives of the fifteen American republics were told that the custom of observing an All-American Thanksgiving ceremony had been in vogue in the Capital for many years. Its purpose, he said, is to pay "universal American homage to God who made us all."

Declaring that "the masses of mankind today are shaken with every wind of doctrine," Dr. Cartwright rapped materialism, communism and sophisticatism.

"Whether or not statesmen need religion, I suppose it will be admitted that the people need it," he said. "To see this axiom you do not have to have the heart of an apostle or a saint. The politician sees it. The scholar sees it."

Concluding, he asserted: "Gentlemen of the American Republics, we need not doubt the blessings of the future, who in past and present have had to thank God for such unheard-of gifts. For prosperity, our countries are the admiration and envy of the world. In the moral and civic sphere we have been further continuously blessed."

Mass Precedes Sermon.

The sermon was preceded by a Pan-American mass, presided over by the Most Rev. Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi, the apostolic delegate, and the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore.

The Right Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary Bishop of the Baltimore Archdiocese, was celebrant at the mass, while the Rev. Charles R. O'Hara was assistant priest.

The mass was accompanied by the traditional pomp. The flags of the United States and the Pan-American countries hung from staffs within the church.

Four Jewish congregations united in a holiday service at the Eighth Street Temple and heard Rabbi William Franklin Rosenblum preach on "Let Us Give Thanks—For What?" Rabbis Aaron Volkman, Louis T. Loeb and Cantor Louis Novak assisted in the ceremonies, while Joseph Salmon read the President's proclamation. Music was provided by the choirs of the Eighth Street Temple and the Sixth Street Synagogue.

Five Churches Unite in Rites.

Five churches, members of the North Washington Association, united in a service at the Bethany Baptist Church. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Simpson B. Daugherty, D. D., pastor of the United Brethren Memorial Church. Other churches participating were the Eckington Presbyterian, the Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Protestant and the Lincoln Road Methodist.

One of the most sincerely thankful gatherings in Washington yesterday was at the special free dinner given to 200 unfortunates at the Central Union Mission. Although it did not include turkey, the meal was abundant with roast pork, potatoes, cole slaw, mince and pumpkin pie.

A service, conducted by John S. Bennett, superintendent, at noon preceded the dinner, and an evening ceremony was conducted by the Christian Endeavor Society of the Vermont Avenue Christian Church.

Baskets Given 150 Families.

Baskets had been given Wednesday afternoon to 150 needy families by the mission so that they might enjoy a Thanksgiving dinner in their homes.

Dinner was served to 220 homeless men and women during the day at the Gospel Mission, 214 John Marshall place northwest. Food was also provided for 150 families at their homes.

Harvey V. Prentice, superintendent, was in charge of the program, which included evangelistic services. Members of the board of trustees and volunteer workers assisted, and many of them spent a large part of the day visiting needy families.

The menu at the District Jail also consisted of roast pork, turnips, celery, cranberry sauce, bread and butter, and apples.

A large portion of Government officials and legislators were not in the Capital yesterday, but at their various homes in divers sections of the Nation. Most of the Cabinet members were in the city, but many senators and representatives took advantage of the congressional recess and returned home.

explored first by Charles Wilkes, of the United States Navy, who sailed from Sydney, Australia, August 11, 1838, and discovered Wilkes Land in January and February, 1840.

Counterclaim Possible.

The United States also might make a counterclaim regarding the Falkland Island dependencies. In this area is Graham Land, also known as Palmer Land, which was first discovered by Capt. Nathaniel Palmer, of the United States Navy, in 1920.

The Wilkes expedition was an official expedition authorized by Congress. The State Department in the past has held that "the exact geographical extent" of this area has never been defined, and that, therefore, the United States can claim an indefinite part of the Antarctic.

council to deal with the Federal Farm Board.

The first step in the direction suggested by the President to be taken by industry will be December 5 when more than 200 representatives of industry who will speak for the 33 major industries and their subdivisions will assemble in the Chamber of Commerce Building here. Out of this meeting, officials of the chamber have stated, is expected to come a permanent executive committee of American business.

This committee, numbering probably 20 members, its sponsors believe, will go a long way toward assuring the success of the building and development program contemplated by industry in statements its representatives issued at the White House.

Proposed Tax Reduction.

The Government's direct contribution to the program, the proposed tax reduction of $160,000,000, Federal aid for road construction, additional public building, rivers and harbors development, and further loans under the agricultural marketing act, the Shipping Board construction fund, and ocean mail contracts will be dealt with in the President's message to Congress now completed.

Some extent of the program contemplated, as the result of the series of conferences which began November 21, can be obtained from a summary of the plans as presented by the representatives of the various groups who conferred at the White House.

The public utility executives announced that improvements in street railways electric power and gas utilities to be made in 1930 will amount to more than $1,810,000,000, chiefly for construction or $110,000,000 more than the outlay in 1929. The expenditures will be made in virtually all parts of the country resulting in steady expansion.

Maximum in Construction.

The improvement program promised by the railway executives calls for expenditures of at least $670,000,000 in the next six months.

Industrial leaders without exception have agreed to proceed with a maximum construction involving an outlay which will be determined when a survey of all branches of industry can be made as the result of the conference to be held December 6. The steel industry, for its part, already has announced that a construction plan involving $300,000,000 will be pushed at once. The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. will go ahead with expenditures of $700,000,000.

The administration's program for an increase to $423,000,000 in the amount to be expended for public buildings both in Washington and throughout the country, is likely to receive support in Congress, and it is not unlikely that efforts will be successful to increase the Federal funds now allotted for assisting the States in the construction of roads. The proposal of the farm organization calls for a Federal-aid road fund of a minimum of $125,000,000 annually. The ship construction program aided by Federal loans under the provisions of the merchant marine act contemplates expenditures of $250,000,000 and the continuation of the Army housing program next year will absorb nearly $24,000,000.

The decline in interest rates and the impetus given industry generally by the drive in prospect is expected to revive home building, the construction interests looking, perhaps, for expenditures in his field in 1930 amounting to $2,000,000,000. The decline of building in 1929 has been widely attributed to the absorption of credit by the stock market and the relative scarcity of credit for other purposes. The value of building contracts fell off steadily during the months of 1929 through October as compared with 1928.

More Funds Available.

During 1929 there also was a larger relative decline in apartment building than in house building, a situation it is believed will be corrected in the next year, with the promise of greater activity as the result of cheaper money. With credit conditions which have followed the recent break in the stock market, more funds should be available for mortgages on easier terms.

conditions on Sino-Russian borders, or

"Second—That both sides withdraw their troops 30 miles from the borders to await settlement of Sino-Russian issues.

"These proposals have been forwarded to the Soviet government through the German ambassador at Moscow.

"Soviet acceptance of either proposal will be taken to indicate that the Soviet government has adopted a peaceful policy toward China, while rejection will indicate that Russia entertains warlike ambitions toward China.

"The Nationalist government will be prepared to meet the Soviet move accordingly."

Paris Envoy in Dark.

Paris, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Valerian Dvgalevsky, Russian Ambassador to Paris, said today that he could add nothing to Moscow dispatches indicating that Gov. Chang Hsueh-Liang of Manchuria had assented to the Russian conditions for settlement of the Chinese Eastern Railway controversy.

It is understood that in view of these reports the French government, as one of the signatories of the Kellogg-Briand pact, feels that the situation no longer requires intervention by the signatories.

A Peiping dispatch published in the French press says that the commander of the Russian Far Eastern army proclaimed: "We have beaten the Chinese on two fronts and would have been able to pursue them to Harbin, but were content to give China a lesson."

The proclamation added that China "in order to avoid a new lesson" must fulfill the conditions laid down by Soviet Commissar Maxim Litvinoff. The Peiping dispatch adds that Mukden has accepted these conditions.

Nanking Silent on Mukden.

Shanghai, China, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Nationalist government officials in Shanghai and Nanking were silent today about Moscow's announcement that Mukden had agreed to the Russian demands for reestablishing the status quo in the Chinese Eastern Railway zone in Manchuria.

Private Moscow advices to Russians living in Shanghai indicated that the Nationalist government at Nanking had been fully informed of the action of the Mukden government. It was even said Nanking had participated in the alleged agreement, but most observers here believe that Nanking had not been aware of negotiations between Moscow and Mukden.

The existence of an understanding for opening negotiations was generally accepted here, though observers were uncertain whether or not Moscow's demands on Nanknig had been settled.

League Appeal Awaited.

Geneva, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—The secretariat of the League of Nations waited all day today for signs of an appeal from Nanking for intervention in the Russo-Chinese dispute in Manchuria, but tonight had received no communication indicating the intentions of the Nationalist government.

It was a day of waiting also for Dr. Wu Kai-Seng, permanent Chinese delegate to the league, who yesterday conferred with Sir Eric Drummond about the procedure to be adopted in case Nanking should make a formal appeal.

Dr. Wu tonight was without definite instructions. He said that he knew nothing of the reported agreement between Moscow and Mukden for negotiating a settlement, but he believed the announcement from Moscow might be a ruse to discredit any possible appeal by Nanking.

In unofficial quarters at Geneva there was much speculation about the action of Gov. Chang Hsueh-Liang of Manchuria. It was thought that Chang might be acting in opposition to the Nanking authorities. Another view was that Chang, while acting independently in a technical sense, might have received an informal tip from Nanking to begin direct negotiations with Russia.

U. S. Society Gives Thanks in London

300 Americans, Including Dawes, Eat Turkey and Pumpkin Pie.

London, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Three hundred Americans, members of the American Society of London, celebrated Thanksgiving tonight with turkey, pumpkin pie and other trimmings that "go" in the United States, as well as a few beverages that do not.

Ambassador Charles G. Dawes was guest of honor and made the principal address. The society had expected to entertain Ramsay MacDonald and Frank B. Kellogg, former Secretary of State. But the prime minister had a previous engagement and Kellogg had to leave for Southampton to board the Leviathan, on which he sailed for the United States at midnight.

"Sixty per cent of present-day Americans are of old English stock," said Gen. Dawes in his speech. "That is the reason why Britishers and Americans have so many faults in common."

Leon Errol, American actor, brought roars of laughter by alluding to the alleged bomb-throwing proclivities of the ambassador's fellow citizens of Chicago. "I can not understand why they ever sent a man from Chicago over here to talk about peace," said Errol.

RUSS-CHINA ACTION BY POWERS REMOTE

U. S. CITES KELLOGG PACT

(Associated Press.)

The possibility of concerted action by the interested powers in averting open hostilities in Manchuria as a result of the Chinese-Soviet troubles there seemed more remote last night with the growing belief by officials here that the two nations would find a way to direct negotiations to settle their difficulties.

The question of concerted action, with an accompanying proposal that the interested powers, Great Britain, Japan, France, Italy and Germany, suggest means for pacifying the situation, has been laid before these powers by the Washington Government. On instructions of Secretary Stimson, the American representatives in the capitals of these powers have discussed possible concerted measures with the respective governments.

Suggestions Only Are Asked.

The discussions initiated by the United States, however, have been mainly in the nature of asking the interested parties for suggestions, the Washington Government merely citing that both China and the Soviet were signatories of the Kellogg pact for the renunciation of war. The last time the United States acted in the Chinese-Soviet dispute, growing out of the taking over by the Chinese of the Chinese Eastern Railway, was when Secretary Stimson took steps to have called to the attention of the two governments that both were signatories to the Kellogg war treaty.

Possibility of imminent steps for direct settlement was uppermost in the minds of Washington officials last night, in view of the reported acceptance by the Mukden government of the Soviet demand for the reinstatement of the manager and assistant manager of the railway. With a Chinese concession on this point, which was among the most important in all the negotiations for a settlement of the dispute, it was generally considered that the way would be open for complete discussions of the problem.

Noninterference Is Upheld.

The attitude of State Department officials, in the absence of Secretary Stimson, who was out of the city for Thanksgiving, was that the two powers should be given every possible opportunity for direct settlement of their difficulties without foreign interference.

London, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—The Daily Herald states that Arthur Henderson, foreign secretary, and Ambassador Charles G. Dawes held a long conference today on the Chinese-Russian situation. The paper adds that a long telegram was sent to Washington after the conversation.

Tokyo (Friday), Nov. 29 (A.P.).—The vernacular papers here today assert the Japanese government is unwilling to assent to the American proposal of some form of international action in the Chinese-Soviet situation.

While official comment was unavailable today, the Associated Press found that the well-informed concensus in Tokyo was that prospects are good for an early peace between Mukden and Moscow, and the relaxation of Russian military pressure would make intervention either in the form of mediation or a joint declaration undesirable.

Dr. Walsh Invited To Talk in Chicago

Rotarians Ask Georgetown Educator to Speak on Russia.

The Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., dean of the Georgetown University School of Foreign Service, has been invited by the Rotary Club of Chicago to be the guest speaker at a luncheon meeting to be held by that organization on December 17.

The invitation suggests that Father Walsh speak on "The Last of the Romanoffs," a subject which he has treated extensively in his writings and lectures on Russia.

Dr. Walsh is at present on a speaking tour throughout the East which was expected to keep him away from Washington for four weeks.

FRENCH STAND FIRM ON CRUISER PROJECT

Marine Minister Allays Fear of New German Ships Among Deputies.

NAVY BUDGET OUTLINED

Paris, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—France has no fear of modern German cruisers carrying 11-inch guns, such as the new 10,000-ton Ersatz Preussen.

Minister of Marine Georges Leygues made this clear today when he was "called on the carpet" by the naval committee of the Chamber of Deputies. He insisted that there was no need for amending the French cruiser building program.

Several members of the committee previously had preached the wisdom of making new plans for 8-inch gun cruisers authorized by the Washington Naval Conference, because Germany, which is not affected by the decisions of the Washington conference, was constructing cruisers that are really equal to modern battleships in armor and gunpower.

Marine Minister Confident.

Leygues refused to become excited over Berlin's newest naval big berthas. Although he was careful to avoid giving many technical details, he intimated that France's projected 10,000-ton cruisers were not as weak in armor as some persons believed. He said they could take care of themselves.

Questioned about the French attitude at the London conference in January, the minister of marine avoided assuming and responsibility, and advised the committee to ask for a statement from Premier Tardieu and Foreign Minister Briand.

A subcommittee was appointed to submit a list of questions to the premier and the foreign minister about the French naval policy to be followed in London, and the two statesmen will later appear before the committee to explain it.

Coastal Defense Urged.

The members of the committee were united in the opinion that France should have a navy strong enough to defend the French coasts on three seas and the African and the more distant colonial possessions.

The navy budget introduced today calls for the expenditure of 2,583,000,000 francs (approximately $100,000,000). This sum is less than the 1914 naval budget by 572,000,000 francs (approximately $22,880,000).

The report of the naval committee's secretary calls attention to the smallness of the French naval budget compared with the British and American budgets for 1929.

Beck Given New Department Post

(Associated Press.)

The second step of Secretary Stimson in his reorganization of the State Department was disclosed last night in orders to the entire department designating his assistant, William H. Beck, of Washington, to the coveted position of a signing officer.

Previous1 ythis post had been confined to the Undersecretary and the four Assistant Secretaries. The Secretary's first step in his reorganization plans was the turning over to the Undersecretary Joseph P. Cotton much of his work.

Beck, whose previous duties included mainly the dealing with callers upon the Secretary and the arrangement of his work and files, under the new orders is authorized to dispose of a large part of the routine matter which had demanded the Secretary's personal attention. He will deal with requests upon Stimson for attendance at public, semipublic and functions of a diplomatic and international character; letters and messages for functions at which the Secretary can not be present and communications demanding a reply directly from the office of the Secretary.

Fishermen Search For Ship's Victims

Five Bodies Still Missing From Vessel Wrecked Off English Coast.

London, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Fishermen clad in oilskins and waders today searched the hull of the steamship Molesey, off the Pembrokeshire coast, for the bodies of victims of Monday's wreck, five of which are still missing.

Accompanied by coast guard officials, they clambered aboard the wrecked steamship during a driving rain, while waves washed over the broken deck, and searched the cabins and some of the holds.

The Molesey has gradually settled since she struck the rocks and now only the mast, some shattered fittings and occasionally part of the deck are visible from shore. While the search was progressing coast guards, police and fisherfolk kept watch along the coast. The coroner has delayed the inquest, in case further bodies should be discovered, but it will be held tomorrow in the village of Marloes.

Policeman Finds Mail Clerk Dead

Lyon Park Resident Victim of Apoplexy on Way to His Work.

James C. Miller, 52, of Lyon Park, railway mail clerk, fell dead when on his way to work yesterday within two blocks of his home. According to his daughter, Dorothy, Miller left his home at 6.30 yesterday morning, apparently in good health.

His body was found by Sergt. Alvin S. Bohrer, of the First Precinct, Washington Police Department, who was returning to his home just as he turned into Pine street off Pershing Drive in Lyon Park. Bohrer notified the Arlington County Police and Patrolman A. D. Langley investigated the case.

Dr. B. H. Swain, country coroner, who was called, stated death was due to apoplexy. The body was removed to the C. J. Ives mortuary parlors in Clarendon. Funeral announcements will be made later.

BUSH FORMS WORLD DISTRIBUTION GROUP

HELP TO SMALL FIRMS

New York, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Irving T. Bush, president of the Bush Terminal Co., today announced formation of a huge new straight-line distribution system designed to facilitate the development of international commerce.

The new system, the announcement said, "will directly link the American manufacturer with every important distributing center in the vast geographical area extending from the British Isles to Persia and will supply every facility from shipment at the American factory, through transportation, to point of distribution abroad.

Bush said the service will be of particular advantage to those manufacturers whose shipments have not been large enough to justify maintenance of their own European organizations.

New World Trade System.

To put the new international service into effect, Bush Service Corporation, U. S. A., has been formed and subsidiary corporations have been set up throughout Europe. These subsidiaries have been merged with long established local service companies in the countries in which they will operate.

The system was organized through cooperation by Bush, creator of the Bush Terminals here, and Victor E. Freeman, who organized a distribution system on the other side of the Atlantic which now includes 54 companies. The Bush Terminal here will be the headquarters.

The announcement said that in addition to affording assistance to the American manufacturer, the system, by virtue of a complete two-way service, will afford the European manufacturer equally accelerated service for distribution of European products to the American market.

In the physical field, the announcement said, the service will provide, among other things, the fastest and cheapest routing of merchandise, consolidated car shipments, warehousing and cartage, packing and repacking, marking and stamping, the division of large consignments into smaller lots, or vice versa, and the fulfillment of various Government requirements.

Believe Help to Buyer and Seller.

In the financial field, Bush's statement said, the system will endeavor to help the buyer and the seller to come to terms.

One phase of the new service, Bush pointed out, will be of particular advantage to the comparatively small producer. The service, he declared, brings into being a new commercial document designated tentatively as a continuous document of possession, a combination of warrant with ocean bill of lading and railway bills, representing the continued responsibility of the Bush Service Corporation for the shipment from point of origin to point of distribution.

One of the advantages of the document, Bush said, will be that the American manufacturer will be able to negotiate it with his bank to secure an immediate cash advance against his shipment, even in cases where goods are shipped abroad for storage and sale over a period of time.

Deputies Do Honor To Italian Prince

Engagement of Humbert to Marie Jose Received With Cheers.

Rome, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Before packed galleries, the deputies of the Italian chamber paid an impressive homage to Crown Prince Humbert and the Italian royal family at the opening of the regular autumn session. The engagement of Crown Prince Humbert to Princess Marie Jose, of Belgium, was officially announced by President Giuriati. He read the royal announcement of the engagement.

Signor Giuriati recalled the warm welcome that Belgium gave to Prince Humbert during his recent visit and the touching manifestations after the attempt to assassinate him.

The entire chamber broke out into acclamations and cheers for the prince, the royal family and Belgium. After reading a list of the decisions taken by the government during the recess, Premier Mussolini said "the fascist government dislikes and disdains praise, insults and blandishments, only wishing for frank, objective and intelligent discussion—namely, fascist discussion."

SPURNED, MAN KILLS SELF IN GIRL'S ROOM

NOT HIS FIRST BAD LUCK

Frederick, Md., Nov. 28.—Spurned in his ardent attentions to a waitress, John Anderson, 22 years old, of Baltimore, went to the girl's room alone, propped a shotgun on a chair against a radiator and pushed a stick against the trigger to kill himself instantly when she walked into her room at 1 o'clock this morning.

Following announcement by Justice of the Peace A. Y. Bennett, acting coroner, that no inquest would be necessary, Sheriff William C. Roderick made public that Anderson had made two previous attempts to kill himself in Baltimore as aftermath of luckless courtships with two girls in that city.

Helen Miller, 17 years old, waitress in a restaurant here, told police that Anderson came to Frederick about a week ago to woo her. She said he had made numerous attempts to win her love, but that she gave him no encouragement. She declared that she talked with him for the last time Tuesday when she declined his invitation "to go for a walk."

Entering her room above the restaurant upon quitting work about 1 o'clock, she said she saw the figure of a man and that she immediately flashed on the light. At the same moment, she declared, Anderson shoved a stick against the trigger of the shotgun and received the full charge through the left breast and in the heart, falling lifeless from the corner of the bed on which he had been sitting, apparently awaiting her entrance.

A note, addressed to "mother," whose home also was said to be in Baltimore, read: "Please do not worry over this. If I live life would simply be a joke, so I have decided to end it all. Good-by. (Signed) John." It was found beside the body.

The girl said she ran downstairs and summoned a policeman. An uncle of Anderson, whose name was not given, responded to a call from Baltimore and removed the body to that city. Miss Miller came to Frederick recently from her home in Westminster, Md.

KLAN POLITICS HELD PRISON RIOT CAUSE

Collapse of Discipline at Canon City Is Charged to Secret Order.

FORMER WARDEN TALKS

Denver, Colo., Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Disclosure of the existence of an organized Ku Klux Klan group within the walls of the Colorado Penitentiary, with both guard and convict members, presents a new angle today in the investigation of the mutiny at the penitentiary October 3, in which 13 lives were lost.

The revelation was made by Thomas J. Tynan, for 16 years warden of the prison, in testimony before Gov. William Adams' special commission investigating the riot. He testified that plotting of the klan against the prison administration had caused a collapse of discipline.

Lack of proper discipline, traceable to this organization, was responsible for the outbreak of last month, during which a handful of convicts, barricaded in a cellhouse, held the entire law enforcement machinery of the State at bay for more than 18 hours, the former warden asserted.

Former Governer Named.

Tynan charged that a former governor negotiated with klan officials in an effort to oust Tynan as warden. He timed that attempt during the administration of Gov. William E. Sweet. In his testimony, however, he did not mention Sweet's name.

"In order to get me in bad," Tynan told the commission, "he (the governor) met secretly with the klan. As a result of these conferences, charges were preferred against me."

Tynan testified that the late Rev. Fred G. Arnold, one-time head of the Klan in Colorado, organized the branch of the order in the penitentiary.

He further charged the organization of the Klan inside the penitentiary was a political maneuver and had a lasting effect in the administration of prison affairs.

Urges Change in System.

After making his charges of Klan machinations, Tynan urged the commission to recommend changes in the administration of the penitentiary.

He suggested a cement factory or some other similar enterprise be established within the prison walls to employ convict labor. He testified that highway construction offers one of the best labor activities for prisoners.

Tynan blamed the State Legislature for not providing larger quarters and making greater improvements in declaring overcrowding one of the worst evils of the present situation at the prison.

PHYSICIANS DISCOVER NOISE LEADS TO VARIOUS AILMENTS

lic, however, appears not to take these regulations seriously.

The most effective protection against the effects of noise, physicians point out, is rest and undisturbed sleep in quiet surroundings. Workers surrounded by the clatter of a city through the day should have the relief of silence in and around their homes.

There are several ways by which that result can be accomplished. The ideal solution would be to set aside sections for residence purposes in which no noisy work or pleasures would be permitted. That, however, is just one of those things that never happens in real life.

But if proper police regulation of house noises were instituted, supplemented by establishment and enforcement of strict rules by apartment house owners and operators, it would soon tend to eliminate most of the noises which now prove objectionable, and to modify the others.

Distribution Halt Needed.

The entire burden should not consist of noise prevention, however. It is equally important to prevent the distribution of noise. There is a task for the building trades. If modern apartments were planned with some thought to sound-proof construction, instead of as speculative ventures to be built and sold as quickly as possible, the noise problem would be lessened considerably.

There is still another responsibility, that of the individual to avoid making any unnecessary noises. In these days of paper-shell apartment walls, it may be a difficult problem to listen to a radio program without the sound percolating through to the next apartment, but it seems to be the ambition of the average radio owner to see just how much volume he can drag out of his set. As a matter of fact, radio sounds even better to the owner of the set when the volume is regulated proportionate to the size of the room. A blast that would fill the Washington Auditorium is entirely too much for the average pigeon-hole apartment.

The problem of noisy parties appears to be one created almost entirely by the prohibition enthusiasts who, by making liquor difficult and expensive to obtain in public restaurants, have driven socially inclined merrymakers into the approximate sanctity of private homes, where they can enjoy themselves in comparative comfort.

"Social" Horns Attacked.

Automobile horns under certain conditions, are probably necessary, but there is not the slightest excuse for the use of automobile horns for social purposes, which seems to be the basic cause for complaint as set forth in practically all of the ballots being received by The Post.

There is also no excuse for the use of muffler cut-outs or noisy brakes, and, although at the present stage of development motor trucks are noisier in operation than pleasure cars, much of that noise can be overcome by careful driving. It should be a mark of incompetence for a truck driver to make undue noise.

Throughout the list of noises in The Post's ballot there are few which are absolutely essential, and all of them could be modified without hampering the results of the activities which produce them.

At the present rate at which ballots are being received, it appears that by the time the antinoise campaign is ended The Post will be able to go before the District authorities with an appreciable display of the sentiments of the public of Washington. The more ballots received, the more attention the city officials will give to the campaign naturally.

filled with cement. There remained only a comparatively short delay for the cement to set and the liner was ready to sail.

Cunard line officials said there had been only one cancellation of passage after the liner put back to her pier. A woman in the second class, whose name was not disclosed, decided to remain ashore when she learned of the illness of a relative.

Ship's officers said the shock of the collision, which occurred about midnight, was not particularly severe and many of the passengers who had retired did not know of the accident until they awoke today.

Capt. S. G. McNeil, master of the liner, said he was proceeding slowly down the harbor on an ebb tide when he sighted a double railway float owned by the Pennsylvania Railroad. He said he gave one sharp blast, indicating he was steering to port, but the captain of the tug pulling the floats did not respond to his whistle. Then, Capt. McNeil said, the tug gave two blasts indicating it was continuing on its course across the path of the liner.

The master of the Mauretania said it was too late then to do anything about the car float, "except save him as much as I could." He said the liner struck the float about 10 feet from its stern, and the impact apparently broke the hawser from the float to the tug, as the tug drifted off with the other float.

were the football clash between Catholic University and George Washington University at the Brookland Stadium and the $10,000 Thanksgiving Day Handicap at the Bowie Race Track.

Motion picture houses and legitimate theaters did the usual large holiday business, but the streets in the downtown section were noticeable for their light traffic. Business, save in restaurants, places of amusement, and the trades that never cease, was at a standstill.

The day dawned with a cheerful sunshine and a not-too-cold atmosphere, but before night the temperature had fallen considerably, driving hundreds to the warmth of their homes.

Special dinners, even in the homes of the needy, were evident throughout the city, although the turkey was not present on every table. The Central Union Mission and other charitable organizations had seen to it that baskets were provided for several hundred poor families, and free dinners were given to lonesome men and women at the mission and the Salvation Army.

Even the inmates of the District Jail were given a special dinner so that they would note the day was not just another Thursday.

Partly because of the pleasant weather the churches that held services yesterday were crowded to capacity. Thousands of others who did not leave their homes heard Thanksgiving sermons over the radio.

U. S. Peace Leadership Asked.

A plea that America will lead the world in the pursuit of universal peace was voiced by Bishop William F. McDowell at the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal Church to a congregation which included the President and his family. Ten other Methodist churches of the city united in the service.

Declaring that the United States has the men and the money "to make a new mind in the world in the school of Christ concerning peace," Bishop Freeman said, with an allusion to the forthcoming naval limitations conference at London: "The supreme opportunity is at hand for us to lead the way toward obtaining what Christ envisaged."

The Rev. James Shera Montgomery, pastor of the church, presided at the service, and the President's proclamation was read by Rice W. Means, formerly a senator from Colorado.

Stock Crash Minimized.

At Bethlehem Chapel, in the heart of the stately Washington Cathedral, the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, urged his listeners to forget the recent stock market crash and realize that the country is economically and morally sound.

While admitting the essentialness of some material things, particularly food, Bishop Freeman warned against magnifying these values and relying too much upon "our boasted wealth." Thanksgiving is a day, he said, when one's mind should turn from everyday pursuits to a contemplation of the gifts of God. He also urged the substitution of a national viewpoint for a provincial.

The service was conducted by the Rev. William L. DeVries, D. D., canon and chancellor of the cathedral, and festival music was sung by the choir of men and boys under the direction of Edgar Priest, organist and choirmaster.

Pan-American Ceremony Held.

Perhaps the most colorful service of the morning was the Pan-American ceremony at St. Patrick's Catholic Church. Latin-American ambassadors, ministers, and their attendants, many of them arrayed in glittering uniforms, formed a large part of the congregation. The St. John's College cadets formed a guard of honor.

The responsibility of government officials and emissaries of settling a religious example for the people was stressed in the sermon by the Rev. John K. Cartwright, assistant pastor. The priest made it clear, however, that he was in no sense advocating a union of church and state.

The representatives of the fifteen American republics were told that the custom of observing an All-American Thanksgiving ceremony had been in vogue in the Capital for many years. Its purpose, he said, is to pay "universal American homage to God who made us all."

Declaring that "the masses of mankind today are shaken with every wind of doctrine," Dr. Cartwright rapped materialism, communism and sophisticated.

"Whether or not statesmen need religion, I suppose it will be admitted that the people need it," he said. "To see this axiom you do not have to have the heart of an apostle or a saint. The politician sees it. The scholar sees it."

Concluding, he asserted: "Gentlemen of the American Republics, we need not doubt the blessings of the future, who in past and present have had to thank God for such unheard-of gifts. For prosperity, our countries are the admiration and envy of the world. In the moral and civic sphere we have been further continuously blessed."

Mass Precedes Sermon.

The sermon was preceded by a Pan-American mass, presided over by the Most Rev. Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi, the apostolic delegate, and the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore.

The Right Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary Bishop of the Baltimore Archdiocese, was celebrant at the mass, while the Rev. Charles R. O'Hara was assistant priest.

The mass was accompanied by the traditional pomp. The flags of the United States and the Pan-American countries hung from staffs within the church.

Four Jewish congregations united in a holiday service at the Eighth Street Temple and heard Rabbi William Franklin Rosenblum preach on "Let Us Give Thanks—For What?" Rabbis Aaron Volkman, Louis T. Loeb and Cantor Louis Novak assisted in the ceremonies, while Joseph Salmon read the President's proclamation. Music was provided by the choirs of the Eighth Street Temple and the Sixth Street Synagogue.

Five Churches Unite in Rites.

Five churches, members of the North Washington Association, united in a service at the Bethany Baptist Church. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Simpson B. Daugherty, D. D., pastor of the United Brethren Memorial Church. Other churches participating were the Eckington Presbyterian, the Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Protestant and the Lincoln Road Methodist.

One of the most sincerely thankful gatherings in Washington yesterday was at the special free dinner given to 200 unfortunates at the Central Union Mission. Although it did not include turkey, the meal was abundant with roast pork, potatoes, cole slaw, mince and pumpkin pie.

A service, conducted by John S. Bennett, superintendent, at noon preceded the dinner, and an evening ceremony was conducted by the Christian Endeavor Society of the Vermont Avenue Christian Church.

Baskets Given 150 Families.

Baskets had been given Wednesday afternoon to 150 needy families by the mission so that they might enjoy a Thanksgiving dinner in their homes.

Dinner was served to 220 homeless men and women during the day at the Gospel Mission, 214 John Marshall place northwest. Food was also provided for 150 families at their homes.

Harvey V. Prentice, superintendent, was in charge of the program, which included evangelistic services. Members of the board of trustees and volunteer workers assisted, and many of them spent a large part of the day visiting needy families.

The menu at the District Jail also consisted of roast pork, turnips, celery, cranberry sauce, bread and butter, and apples.

A large portion of Government officials and legislators were not in the Capital yesterday, but at their various homes in divers sections of the Nation. Most of the Cabinet members were in the city, but many senators and representatives took advantage of the congressional recess and returned home.

explored first by Charles Wilkes, of the United States Navy, who sailed from Sydney, Australia, August 11, 1838, and discovered Wilkes Land in January and February, 1840.

Counterclaim Possible.

The United States also might make a counterclaim regarding the Falkland Island dependencies. In this area is Graham Land, also known as Palmer Land, which was first discovered by Capt. Nathaniel Palmer, of the United States Navy, in 1920.

The Wilkes expedition was an official expedition authorized by Congress. The State Department in the past has held that "the exact geographical extent" of this area has never been defined, and that, therefore, the United States can claim an indefinite part of the Antarctic.

council to deal with the Federal Farm Board.

The first step in the direction suggested by the President to be taken by industry will be December 5 when more than 200 representatives of industry who will speak for the 33 major industries and their subdivisions will assemble in the Chamber of Commerce Building here. Out of this meeting, officials of the chamber have stated, is expected to come a permanent executive committee of American business.

This committee, numbering probably 20 members, its sponsors believe, will go a long way toward assuring the success of the building and development program contemplated by industry in statements its representatives issued at the White House.

Proposed Tax Reduction.

The Government's direct contribution to the program, the proposed tax reduction of $160,000,000, Federal aid for road construction, additional public building, rivers and harbors development, and further loans under the agricultural marketing act, the Shipping Board construction fund, and ocean mail contracts will be dealt with in the President's message to Congress now completed.

Some extent of the program contemplated, as the result of the series of conferences which began November 21, can be obtained from a summary of the plans as presented by the representatives of the various groups who conferred at the White House.

The public utility executives announced that improvements in street railways electric power and gas utilities to be made in 1930 will amount to more than $1,810,000,000, chiefly for construction or $110,000,000 more than the outlay in 1929. The expenditures will be made in virtually all parts of the country resulting in steady expansion.

Maximum in Construction.

The improvement program promised by the railway executives calls for expenditures of at least $870,000,000 in the next six months.

Industrial leaders without exception have agreed to proceed with a maximum construction involving an outlay which will be determined when a survey of all branches of industry can be made as the result of the conference to be held December 6. The steel industry, for its part, already has announced that a construction plan involving $300,000,000 will be pushed at once. The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. will go ahead with expenditures of $700,000,000.

The administration's program for an increase to $423,000,000 in the amount to be expended for public buildings both in Washington and throughout the country, is likely to receive support in Congress, and it is not unlikely that efforts will be successful to increase the Federal funds now allotted for assisting the States in the construction of roads. The proposal of the farm organization calls for a Federal-aid road fund of a minimum of $125,000,000 annually. The ship construction program aided by Federal loans under the provisions of the merchant marine act contemplates expenditures of $250,000,000 and the continuation of the Army housing program next year will absorb nearly $24,000,000.

The decline in interest rates and the impetus given industry generally by the drive in prospect is expected to revive home building, the construction interests looking, perhaps, for expenditures in his field in 1930 amounting to $2,000,000,000. The decline of building in 1929 has been widely attributed to the absorption of credit by the stock market and the relative scarcity of credit for other purposes. The value of building contracts fell off steadily during the months of 1929 through October as compared with 1928.

More Funds Available.

During 1929 there also was a larger relative decline in apartment building than in house building, a situation it is believed will be corrected in the next year, with the promise of greater activity as the result of cheaper money. With credit conditions which have followed the recent break in the stock market, more funds should be available for mortgages on easier terms.

DEMING IS BOOMED FOR WARREN'S SEAT

Cheyenne Report Says Civil Service Head May Get Senate Place.

IS NATIVE OF KENTUCKY

William Chapin Deming, president of the United States Civil Service Commission, is being boomed as a successor to the late Senator Francis E. Warren according to reports from Cheyenne, Wyo.

Deming was born in Kentucky, but has claimed Wyoming as his home for the last 28 years. He was a close friend of Senator Warren, and it is understood that he is highly regarded by the Republicans of the State.

When Warren died the question arose as to whether the governor had the power to name his successor. Some contended that a special election would have to be held. Gov. Frank G. Emerson has been advised by the attorney general of the State that an election is necessary, inasmuch as Congress is not in session.

The term Senator Warren was serving expires in March, 1931, hence, whoever is selected to succeed him will have to begin preparing almost immediately for a campaign for re-election.

Commissioner Deming was born at Mount Olivet, Ky., December 6, 1869, the son of Osmer S. and Leona Rigg Deming. He attended Allegheny College, in Pennsylvania, receiving his A. M. degree in 1893. From 1894 to 1901, he was editor and publisher of the Warren (Ohio) Tribune. In the latter year he moved to Wyoming.

He was at one time editor of the Wyoming State-Tribune Leader and the Wyoming Stockman-Farmer. He also was president of the Tribune Building Co., and he organized the Deming Realty Co. He served on various commissions for the State, and from 1907 to 1913 was receiver of public moneys in the United States Land Office in Cheyenne.

He became a member of the United States Civil Service Commission in 1923.

Mother Sees Girls Drown Under Ice

Parents Nearly Lose Lives in Their Efforts to Save Three Children.

Augusta, Me., Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Three small children were drowned as they fell through thin ice on Two-Mile Brook, near here today, and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Parlin, nearly sacrificed their own lives in their frantic rescue attempts. The children were Beatrice, aged 5; Irene, aged 6, and Catherine Alberta, aged 8.

Mrs. Ellie Parlin is in a critical condition from shock and exposure. She was dragged from the icy water by her 11-year-old son, Levitt, one of the nine Parlin children. The youngest of the nine children was born three weeks ago.

The father, summoned from his work in an Augusta garage, rushed to the brook which traverses the Parlin farm within 75 yards of the house. In attempting to recover the bodies of the children he was swept under the anchor ice of the stream and with difficulty was pulled to safety by his brother, Lowell. He was under a physician's care tonight. The bodies of the three sisters were recovered.

Letters on Starling Contest

Up to Biologists.

Ridding the city of the starling pest is clearly a job for a specialist. We have in this city, headquarters of the Federal bureau to which Congress has intrusted the management of the Nation's wild life. Their duties have been defined by Congress and said duties include the control of injurious species of birds. The writer believes that if any person is able to cope with the starling situation in Washington such a person should be found in the personnel of this bureau—the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture. JOHN FINDLAY, JR.
3160 Twentieth street northwest.

Birth Control Idea.

Last night I parked in the 1300 block of Pennsylvania avenue. This morning I had to get up early and wash the car.

By all means the starling must go! Although I am greatly in favor of immediate annihilation, I realize it is well-nigh impossible. My plan to relieve the long-suffering public of this pest will take a little time, but I feel it will prove effective.

The most effective means of destroying a menace completely and forever is to destroy its source. As swamps are drained and stagnant waters covered with oil to stop the breeding of mosquitoes, so the nesting places of the starling should be attacked. Wherever these places are they should be constantly kept clear of nests during the season, and in time the little pests would disappear.

The execution of this plan I submit to a student of bird life and whatever assistance he may require.
Yours for a starlingless city.
GEORGE W. WHEELER.
23 Second street northeast.

Maybe a Hoover Sweeper.

These feathery little creatures, "the starlings," must be dealt with in a businesslike manner, irrespective of the fact that some persons advocate gentleness in the superlative.

From our experience with persistent Mr. Pigeon we have found that a creature with wings can be a greater nuisance than one with horns. Moreover, when the animal world infringes upon the rights of man, we are permitted to take the necessary measure to secure relief. Since these starlings and pigeons have become a menace parallel to that of rats and mice, therefore, we may give them the same treatment.

Our suggestion: Let several scientists or rather have many electrical and chemical scientists compete in making an electrical contrivance somewhat similar to an electrical sweeper used by housekeepers, only very much larger. Have the opening of this contrivance large enough to suction in several hundreds of these starlings at a time. After one suction, let the bag close at one end and automatically open on the other end into a large bucket or barrel attached filled with some chemical which will painlessly smother the birds. The suction will necessarily have to be powerful to overcome the resistance of the starling wings.

Our suggestion to keep buildings clean from contact of these birds and pigeons: Buy composition roofing by the roll, also several pounds of bank pins, a large pin about 1¼ inches in length (be sure they have sharp points and big heads). Cut the composition roofing in strips the length and width of your coping and window ledges; then push these big pins through the strips of roofing, put them close, about a quarter of an inch or less apart. Then glue or cement these strips onto the coping and window ledges of your building—the points of the pins toward the sky, of course. This is a great deal of work, but any one ought to be willing to do it to rid themselves of these nuisances.
MARGARET CLAIRVAUX.
517 Fourth street northwest.

Star Bright Starling Light.

Long before automobiles were known, the starling soared here and there, flocked together like feathers; nature taught them to roost high for protection, and the trees are theirs by right. A speed cat-astrophy or some other prowling animal would destroy them, as the automobile does us without mercy; should they submit to our point of view. They know they can fly high, and we know that what is up must come down some time. Intellectually they may not be as bright as some other feathered tribes, but they are brave and the inclement weather has no fears for them, and they ask no help from us; they show companionship not only among themselves, but like the society of the companionship of the human race, and we should feel complimented to find some one who likes us besides ourselves. They are innocent of committing wrong and should be taught with human kindness to have respect for others. All make mistakes and it is up to the bright ones to help the weak with gentility. Why pick on an innocent bird? We should be thankful that cows can not fly. Birds of a feather flock together; we of a more intelligent class find moments when we wish to flock alone.
S. BENSON STEARNS.
5204 Illinois avenue northwest.

A Use for Red Tape.

Have a bold, bad birdman attired in all the "fuss and feathers" characteristic of his prey flutter down among the darlings while they wait and drop a few grains of salt on their tails. Then proceed to strangle them in the latest approved style—with red tape.
MISS K. MERRICK.
1320 Harvard street northwest.

Now You Chase Me!

It seems to me the easiest way to rid Washington of the starlings would be to put into the hand of every congressman a long pole with a net on the end such as children use to catch butterflies, then start them out. It would give them extra time for thought and perhaps the fresh air and exercise would give their great minds a rest, which would prepare them for the next investigation. MRS. CAROLYNE G.

Sing Them to Death.

I am sending you what I think would be a very helpful suggestion for disposing of the dear little starlings that annoy so many of our people at night on our beautiful and prominent Pennsylvania avenue.

If it were possible for me to raise my barytone voice above that of the uncultivated starlings I should like to sing for you the following song, which might have some effect upon their musical warblings:

Sing a song of sixpence; a pocketful of rye;
Four and a million starlings baked in a pie.
When the pie is opened the birds no longer sing.
Is not that the best way to end the dear little thing?
THOMAS H. CROWTHER.

STARLINGS RESENT OUSTER MOVEMENT

"Please ask him whether they are afraid of the proposed methods of elimination, suggested by Post readers."

Another conversation and then the interpreter replied:

"They are not worried. This fellow says the starlings know the Fire Department has too many extra-alarm blazes to fight to pay any attention to them; the police are too busy tagging overtime parkers, and the Park and Planning Commission won't allow the trees to be cut down, spoiling the beauty of the Avenue."

"Looks like they are sitting pretty," commented the reporter.

"Yes, and likely to remain so," answered the Department of Agriculture expert.

"Well, ask him one more question, will you?" the reporter requested. "Ask the old boy if it's true the starlings are getting a commission from cleaners and dyers and from auto washing firms."

The interpreter obeyed and from the starlings came what sounded very much like a human chuckle. Then an outburst of "eee-ks" "awks" and "unks."

"Quick, tell me what he said," the reporter shouted.

Smilingly the interpreter complied. "He said to tell you Chicago has its rackets, why shouldn't Washington?"

Ambassador Morrow Gives Farewell Dinner

Mexico City, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Ambassador Morrow and Mrs. Morrow entertained the entire personnel of the American Embassy at a Thanksgiving dinner today. The affair was held in the country home of the Morrows at Cuernavaca and was in the nature of a farewell, prior to the Ambassador's leaving to attend the London naval conference as one of the American delegates.

It was said that Mr. Morrow probably would have a conference with Secretary Stimson and President Hoover in Washington next week.

Bandits Abduct Mission Worker

Chinese Gang Is Holding Lutheran Woman for Ransom.

Hankow, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Bandits today kidnaped Mrs. Oscar Hellestad, an American Lutheran missionary at Sinyeh, southwest Honon province. Mrs. Hellestad has been a missionary in China twenty years.

The American Consul has demanded that the Nationalist government take action to obtain Mrs. Hellestad's release.

Besides Mrs. Hellestad, another American missionary — the Rev. Ulrich Kreutzen, of Calumet, Mich., was kidnaped by central China bandits this month. Kreutzen, attached to the Franciscan Mission at Wuchtang, stated in a letter received Wednesday at Wuchtang that he was being held in the mountains south of Tayeh, Hupeh province, for ransom of 6,000 Mexican dollars. His death was threatened by his captors, he said, if his rescue were attempted.

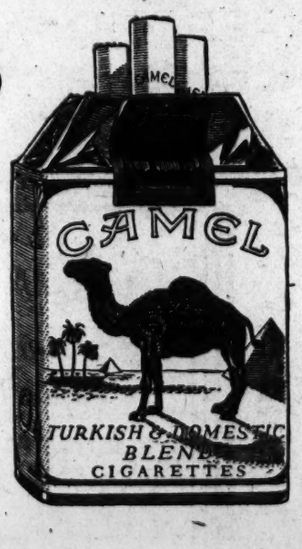
it's the blend— and the fragrant tobacco



Camels have always welcomed comparison with any other cigarette because the true test of value is the pleasure to be found in smoking.

The most important thing for smokers to know is that genuine cigarette quality must begin with the selection of tobaccos. Nothing can take the place of quality tobacco. Thus the extraordinary goodness of Camels begins with the choicest tobaccos grown and these are blended with expert skill to achieve the mildness and surpassing fragrance of this great cigarette. It is this genuineness of quality which smokers appreciate when they have passed the experimental stage and know real smoking pleasure.

RICH COUPLE FOUND SHOT DEAD IN HOTEL

Coal Man Slew Wife and Self, Belief Adhered To by Police.

CAUGHT IN STOCK CRASH

Chicago, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—James C. Pauley, 56, reputed millionaire coal operator, and his wife, Mrs. Elinor Ludlow Pauley, 50, were found shot to death in a room in the Ambassador Hotel here tonight. Police said indications were Pauley had killed his wife and then ended his own life.

Pauley was chairman of the board of the Miami Coal Co., which operates mines in the vicinity of Terre Haute, Ind.

Police were told Pauley was a heavy loser in recent stock market declines, and in addition had been despondent because of ill health.

Bellboy Finds Bodies.

The bodies were found by a bellboy, who was sent to the apartment by Pauley's chauffeur. The latter had driven his employer to the hotel and had been instructed to wait. After a half-hour, he sent the bellboy to inquire when Pauley would be ready. The boy received no response and called the manager, who opened the door and found the bodies. Mrs. Pauley's body, fully clothed, was in the living room, slumped in a chair, a magazine which she apparently had been reading lying at her feet. Pauley's body was found in the bathroom. Each had been shot once through the head.

Coroner Herman N. Bumdesen, after a preliminary examination, expressed the murder and suicide theory. He said indications were Pauley opened fire on the woman without warning.

She apparently had been interrupted while entering notations in an engagement book found nearby.

Check Stubs Discovered.

Numerous check stubs and receipts for securities sales were found in the room.

Two nieces of Mrs. Pauley, Mrs. K. Tilton, of 605 Avenue Navarre, Miami, Fla., and Mrs. Arthur Vorhees, of 35 Hoffman street, Columbus, Ohio, were notified.

The Pauleys had been married 23 years.

Mrs. Pauley was a niece of former Gov. Bushnell of Ohio and at one time she was reported to have been engaged to marry Capt. Hobson, hero of the battle of Santiago.

40 Deaf Children Saved At State Asylum Fire

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Forty Negro children, all deaf, were rescued with considerable difficulty today from a burning dormitory at the State School of the Deaf here. Warning was given the children by instructors using sign language. Police aided in taking them out of the building.

The fire was said by firemen to have started from wires in the attic.

Illinois Utilities Plan To Spend $163,800,000

Chicago, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Illinois public utilities companies plan to spend $163,800,000 in new construction, extensions and betterments during 1930, according to a canvass just completed by the Illinois State Electric, Gas & Electric Railways Associations.

This sum, more than half of which will be spent for labor, equals about $25 per inhabitant of the State.

FEDERAL AID IN SHELBY-KELLY INVESTIGATION HLD DOUBTFUL

vestigation the request of Assistant Engineer Commissioner Donald A. Davison and Corporation Counsel William W. Bride for permission to use the Federal records in investigating charges of police bungling.

It is known, too, that there is practically nothing in the records of the Bureau of Investigation having any bearing upon the charges against Inspector William S. Shelby and Lieut. Ed. Kelly, who were ousted from the Detective Bureau when charges were made by the July grand jury that they had mishandled their investigation of the death of Virginia Hurley McPherson, who was strangled in her Park Lane apartment on September 12.

In acceding to the request of United States Attorney Leo A. Rover to conduct an investigation of the tragedy, Mitchell stipulated that his operatives must confine themselves to a study of the tragedy itself and avoid all collateral controversies, particularly the police scandal.

The operatives of the Bureau of Investigation followed these instructions scrupulously, even to the extent of halting the stenographer when witnesses insisted upon injecting criticism of the police into their testimony after being advised that such information was neither required nor wanted.

Officials of the Department of Justice feel that it would set a very dangerous precedent to permit their records to be used in the District investigation. The testimony in their records, they contend, was obtained only under promises of absolute secrecy, and to violate those promises now in any way would only tend to destroy the confidence of the public in the Department of Justice and make it exceedingly difficult to obtain confidential information in the future.

Regarding the contention that the District investigators have no power to subpena witnesses, it is pointed out that neither have the Federal investigators, who nevertheless managed to interview almost 900 witnesses in six weeks. In addition they pointed out that when the Federal agent undertook their inquiry it was with the distinct understanding that it would be in no way connected at any time with the police situation.

Bride and Davidson several days ago requested J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Bureau of Investigation, and Thomas F. Cullen, inspector of the bureau who was in direct charge of the McPherson investgiation, to turn over their records, but were refused, whereupon a similar petition was made to Mitchell, who has not yet replied.

In its report presented simultaneously with its indictment of Robert A. McPherson, jr., for the murder of his wife, Virginia, the grand jury charged Shelby and Kelly with failing to turn over to it all evidence in their possession. It also asserted that a police guard at the door of the McPherson apartment had been removed by order of the District attorney's office, and that Kelly, then head of the homicide squad, had permitted removal and destruction of evidence of vital importance.

Investigation of these charges was started at the time by Bride and Davison, but discontinued when it appeared that the grand jury members refused to testify in justification of their own charges. After several days, in which only four witnesses appeared out of 70 called, the District investigation was postponed until after completion of the action against McPherson, who was cleared of all complicity in the death of his wife when the present grand jury, in a second investigation, voted last week to ignore the indictment against him

Ammonia Pipe Breaks; Four Felled by Fumes

Los Angeles, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—An ammonia pipe broke in an underground conduit at Sixth and Hill streets today in the heart of the downtown district as a Thanksgiving Day parade wound through the area, overcoming four persons.

The pressure dislodged a manhole cover and the cloud of gas emanating from the opening enveloped those standing nearby. A policeman pulled the victims to safety and a fire department squad administered oxygen, reviving them.

Divorce Is Granted To Norma Phillips

Former Movie Player Says Wick Snell, Husband, Deserted Her.

Baltimore, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Another blasted romance of the screen and stage came to light today with the granting of a divorce to Mrs. Mary Norma Glecker, who several years ago was a featured player of the films under the name of Norma Phillips, from Robert P. Glecker.

Glecker himself is an actor of the stage and screen, having played the racketeer in the stage play "Broadway" and later appeared as Wick Snell, ne'er-do-well newspaperman in the stage play "Gentlemen of the Press."

The decree was handed down by Judge Eli Frank in circuit court on Mrs. Glecker's petition that her husband had deserted her in 1926 after six years of married life, telling her that he "did not want to live with her any longer."

Glecker is living at Long Island, N. Y., according to the papers in the case, and Mrs. Glecker, who has been in business as a play broker in New York, is living in Baltimore with her mother, Mrs. Victoria Phillips.

Greek School Closed After Student Riots

Athens, Greece, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—The University of Athens was today closed for five days by the government as a punitive measure for recent student riots.

The police yesterday dispersed a large group of students who attempted to present demands for certain reforms to the premier. In the fighting, furniture was destroyed in the university buildings and the police were pelted with a variety of missiles. The government announced that the ringleaders of the students' movement would be punished, but the demands will be considered.

Two Ships Turn Back After River Collision

Astoria, Oreg., Nov. 28 (A.P.).—The British motorship Pacific Reliance and the States Line steamer California returned to this port today for inspection following a collision near Desdemona Sands, at the mouth of the Columbia River.

Neither ship was badly damaged, but with one plate torn and six others started on the California, the vessel was ordered to turn back from the outbound trip southward. The Pacific Reliance leaked in the stern, investigators said, after it had been struck there by the California. The motorship was anchored off Desdemona Sands and was en route to Portland.

NO INTERMEDDLING.

Moscow announces that the Manchurian provincial government has "capitulated" to demands of Soviet Russia for reestablishment of the status quo on the Chinese Eastern Railway. The Soviet demands include reinstatement of the Russian manager and assistant manager of the railroad, who were expelled for communist propaganda and conspiracy to murder Chinese officials.

It may be true that the Mukden government has backed down, in view of the Russian invasion and the inability of the Chinese nationalist government to send an army to Manchuria. But there is nothing to show that the Chinese government is seeking peace by surrender. On the contrary, the Chinese factions are quitting civil war and consolidating against the Russians. Chinese envoys are making personal appeals to the League of Nations to intervene and put a stop to the Russian invasion. An appeal has also been sent to the nations adhering to the Kellogg pact, alleging that Russia has violated the pact and asking the nations to protect China against the aggressor. It is said that the State Department has begun to sound out six principal powers, in order to determine what steps can be taken to avert war.

The Soviet-Chinese imbroglio is the concern of the League of Nations, and not the concern of the United States. The rupture of the Kellogg pact by two remote nations does not call for the intermeddling of the United States. An intermeddling agency also already exists, with fully defined duties. The League of Nations is required to take cognizance of a threat of war when its attention is called to the fact by a member of the league. If one of the parties to the quarrel is not a member of the league, the league is required to invite it to become a member, so that it shall be subject to the league rules for adjusting such quarrels. If it should refuse and persist in making war, the league is required to cut off all its communications with the outside world. In view of these facts, and bearing in mind that the league is bound to defend one of its members against an aggressor, there is no occasion whatever for the United States to borrow trouble. Its officiousness might be construed as proof of its distrust of the league as a universal peacemaker.

In so far as the use of force is contemplated as a means of suppressing war, the League of Nations is ideally organized. Its members are bound to act in concert against an aggressor. If this pledge is worthless it is idle to presume that an attempt to distort the Kellogg pact into an instrument of war would be successful. The United States certainly should not place itself in the position where it would be the leader in trying to rally the nations to fight a violator of the Kellogg pact, after they had violated the covenant of the League of Nations.

Sooner or later the test of the League of Nations will come. It may be that Russia and China will furnish the test case. Before trying to twist the Kellogg pact into an instrument for the suppression of aggression the nations concerned should make a thorough trial of the treaty that expressly confers powers upon the league to call them all into action against an aggressor. As for the United States, it is not responsible for the league, and by no reasonable interpretation of the Kellogg pact is this country bound to intermeddle with a foreign war.

Whenever the United States meddles in the politics of the other hemisphere it invites European and Asiatic intervention in the political affairs of the New World. The first duty of the United States as maker and upholder of the Monroe Doctrine is to keep out of Old World politics, imbroglios, and wars.

PARITY IN THE SENATE.

Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, clings to the old-fashioned idea that parity begins at home. He would like to go to London to assist in bringing about naval parity, but he will not do so if Pennsylvania is denied senatorial parity. While each of the other States maintains two dreadnaughts in the Senate, Pennsylvania is allowed only one. Some of the States can set up the claim, with sound reason, that their dreadnaughts are semi-obsolete, of shallow draft, equipped with smooth-bore guns that emit more sound and gas than solid shot, and in no wise equal in speed, range, mobility or hitting power to Pennsylvania's single dreadnaught. But Pennsylvania insists upon parity in numbers, and is willing to leave to each State the problem of producing the most effective size and fighting quality of its senatorial armament.

Pennsylvania stands upon a constitutional point which in these days smacks a little of antiquity. This is the obscure clause which provides that no State, without its consent, shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the Senate. But, like Lear's hand, this clause "smells of mortality." It has been ignored by the Senate, and if the Supreme Court should be asked to assume jurisdiction over the question that august tribunal might give an exhibition of artistic sidestepping and spontaneous wise-cracking that would arouse envy in even Will Rogers' generous bosom. The Supreme Court would say, "That is a political question," and in saying so it would be compressing two truths in one.

The senatorial parity of States is a political question. So political is it that a move is on foot by the political party now in control of the Senate to grant parity to Pennsylvania in the modernistic style so highly favored by international diplomacy. Instead of actual parity, which is declared by such experts as Winston Churchill to be "unthinkable" as applied to the British and American navies, the Senate coalition proposes to substitute political parity, by giving Pennsylvania a Democratic senator. It is proposed to set aside Pennsylvania's choice of a Republican and to substitute William B. Wilson, a heroic Democrat who presumed to run for office in Pennsylvania.

By means of this new interpretation of parity the Democratic party would gain two votes in the Senate—one added to its own roll and one subtracted from the enemy. Thus the Einstein theory of relativity would be vindicated, from the coalition point of view, and the supreme task of building up the West by tearing down the East would be greatly facilitated. Since tariff-making is now a purely judicial function of the Senate, operating through the new nonpartisan tribunal called the coalition, the tariff as affecting Pennsylvania will be framed with strict impartiality. For every vote cast for protection by Mr. Reed, an equivalent vote against protection will be cast by Mr. Wilson.

Ignorant opposition to political parity is to be expected. All great reforms, all altruistic movements in behalf of the human race are attacked by reactionary zealots. Just as a minority of jaundiced Americans are preparing to oppose the political parity of navies, so a besotted minority of Americans in Pennsylvania may howl against the coalition plan to give Pennsylvania a Democratic senator. But the majority must rule. Pennsylvania should be grateful for obtaining any parity at all, even counterfeit parity. The coalition, in pressing forward for the attainment of a universal level of hard times in all sections of the country, knows better than the Pennsylvanians what is for their good.

REGULATION OF BUSES.

Another bus accident serves to focus attention on highway conditions between this city and Baltimore and upon the apparent lack of adequate inspection and regulation of buses. In the most recent smash-up it is alleged that the driver protested against taking the bus from the Washington terminal on the ground that it was a "piece of junk." It is also charged, however, that the operator had driven all the way from Washington on the left side of the road.

Buses are a double menace unless driven with extreme care. They take up a great deal of the road and are difficult to maneuver quickly. Often they are driven too fast for safety, endangering other motorists as well as their own occupants. If the public, bus-riding and highway-using, is to be protected a better system for regulating the speed of buses and making certain that their accessories and equipment are in proper working order must be worked out and enforced.

There have been too many bus accidents on the Washington-Baltimore Boulevard. Something is wrong with the inspection and regulation of buses. It is high time that the District of Columbia, the City of Baltimore and the State of Maryland get down to drafting and enforcing a bus code that will prevent the dispatching of unsafe buses and put a stop to their reckless operation.

MORE MONEY FOR ROADS.

Representative Dowell, chairman of the House committee on roads, is drafting legislation to increase the Federal contribution to the States for highway construction from $75,000,000 to $125,000,000 at the coming session of Congress. When Congress first passed the measure allowing $75,000,000 annually for roads the fund was not all used. The accumulation has made a higher sum available in recent years. But the surplus is now largely used up, and action by Congress will be required to prevent an actual decrease in the annual amount used for this purpose.

Under the system of equal contributions from the State and Federal Governments more than 7,400 miles of highway was initially improved during the fiscal year 1929. To date 78,096 miles of road have been improved with Federal aid. However, the main burden of road construction has fallen on the States and local governments. During 1928 the States improved 21,391 miles of highway, and the counties and municipalities 45,531 miles. Federal aid does not relieve the local governments of responsibility for road construction, but encourages development that would otherwise be postponed or neglected.

Highway construction has been a serious drain on State revenues. In spite of all the States have been able to do, road expansion has not kept pace with the increase in traffic. The gasoline tax has been a valuable asset. Every State now collects a tax of this kind. Revenue totaling approximately $350,000,000 will be collected from motorists in 1929. The tax averages 3.07 cents per gallon, and is being increased every year. The yield that may be expected from this source soon will have reached a limit.

To relieve traffic congestion highway building should be expanded. Any curtailment would no doubt be reflected in higher accident rates and more serious congestion. The Government has already recognized the need for extending aid to the States in this problem. Since State appropriations for this purpose have been greatly increased, it seems only logical that the Federal fund should be enlarged. Mr. Dowell's bill will deserve careful consideration of Congress.

POTOMAC WATERFRONT.

Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of engineers, recommends the expenditure of $3,691,000 for the improvement and beautification of the north side of Washington channel. The cost would be divided between the District and Federal governments, and it would be amortized over a period of years through the collection of rentals for piers and slips. The project already has been approved by the Commissioners and by the Park and Planning Commission.

Washington channel would be a disgrace to any city. While waterfronts generally have been overlooked in planned development and beautification programs, Washington channel is particularly obnoxious, inasmuch as it parallels one of the most popular recreative areas, namely, Potomac Park. Since the development and beautification project has been fully approved, it is highly desirable that work be got under way at an early date, especially in view of the fact that the project would harmonize with President Hoover's plan for concentrating on public works during the period of economic crisis.

Commenting on the project, Gen. Brown says: "The plans proposed, while providing for the removal of unsightly structures and the general beautification of the entire waterfront, also give adequate facilities for the character of commerce now handled and which may reasonably be expected to move over this waterfront in the future." Unquestionably, the waterways of the Nation are destined to come into great popularity as freight carriers. Improvement of the Port of Washington will stimulate the use of the Potomac, leading to the economic betterment of the entire community.

JOHN MARSHALL

By ROLAND WILLIAMSON,
In His Book, "The Law Library in the Capitol."

It has been truly said that "laws . . . have so close a connection with history . . . that they must partake a little of what they are related to so nearly;" so, in speaking of the books in the Law Library of Congress at the Capitol, popularly known as the Supreme Court Library, we shall say something of the men and matters associated with them in one way or another.

If you have not already done so, we would suggest that on your next visit to the Capitol you go to what is known as the Law Library entrance. Approaching the building from the east you will see it to the right of the main steps, on the ground floor.

There could hardly be found a spot in the United States about which has happened so much having to do with the history of our Federal Government.

To the right of the door is a bronze tablet, placed there September 18, 1893, to commemorate the hundredth anniversary of the laying of the corner stone of the Capitol. The corner stone was laid in the presence of George Washington, then President of the United States, and is beneath this tablet.

We can not be sure that John Marshall was with Washington on that day, but we know that he later had occasion to pass that way many times in going to and from the court over which he presided for so many years.

Marshall was born in Fauquier County, Va., September 24, 1755. His early life was that of a country boy of that period—helping his father on the farm; hunting in the forests, fishing in the streams and dreaming dreams that could never come true. He dreamed, perhaps, that he would some day become a British statesman or military officer or judge, for he was at that time a British subject. One of his father's friends and neighbors was Lord Fairfax, who had what was considered at that time a good library. He was kind enough to lend some of his books to Marshall's father, little dreaming that out of them would sprout an idea that would one day cover this whole country with its protecting branches of the law. Young Marshall read many of these books and what he got out of them was worth knowing.

However, his reading did not unfit him for other work that came to hand. At the outbreak of the Revolution he drew his sword and went to war. While in the Army he continued as best he might his preparation for the bar; got good training at speech-making by talking to the groups of soldiers as they sat through the long evenings about the camp fires. Marshall served as lieutenant and captain, and in 1780, when without a command, he attended law lectures at the College of William and Mary. Had he been there several years earlier he would have found Thomas Jefferson among the students.

Just inside the Law Library entrance are six columns made of Virginia sandstone and designed by Thomas Jefferson. They represent stalks of corn bound together, the capitals being formed by the half open ears. These columns are much admired by the visitors to the Capitol.

BEHIND THE SCENES.

I went to Hollywood to see what I could see,
And found a lot of workers just as busy as could be,
The boys who make it possible for stars to gleam and glow,
And there was something friendly in the way they said: "Hello!"

I met a violinist and I chatted with him there.
He talked about his garden where he spends his moments spare.
He talked about his little home, his wife and children small.
Thought I: "These picture people aren't so different after all!"

The man who turned the blowers on to keep the studio cool
Discussed a little bright-eyed boy he wished to send to school.
Another came and sat him down and bared his heart to me:
He'd lost his wife a year ago and lonely now is he.

I'd like to pay my tribute to the fellowship I met
And the courage and good nature of the men behind the set.
There are enough to cheer the star. I give such lines as these
To the fine and friendly people whom the public never sees.

God bless that lonely widower and comfort him, I pray!
God bless that fiddler's little home and keep his garden gay!
May that mechanic's little boy grow up to manhood true!
He shares a common wish with me. I have a youngster, too.

If He Cleans the Great Man's Shoes He Has Some Share in Greatness

By ROBERT QUILLEN

A MAN may be down, but he isn't whipped until he is shamed.

Beat him and starve him and break him, and yet he will lift his bloody head and mutter through set teeth: "It takes a man to stand punishment like that."

Poor and jobless, an outcast in tatters, he still will look about for some peg on which to hang a shred of self-respect—and having found it will also find grace to lift his head and keep trying.

In any extremity he will find something of which to be proud.

Why? Why does the meanest of men overlook his shortcomings and fix his attention on some fancied excellence?

Because self-respect is the breath of life to his nostrils. Because he must respect himself if he would live. Because, when self-respect is gone, he hides from men and at last makes an end of life in an effort to hide from himself.

Knowing his vital need of self-respect, nature blinds him to his faults and gives him something of which he can be proud—if only his humility, or the toughness of his beard.

Pride protects him—as spurs and claws and teeth protect other creatures that have other enemies.

At different stages of his life he is proud of his muscle, his mental agility, his social successes, his family, his wealth, his achievements. Whatever the cause may be, the result is a self-respect that enables him to look the world in the face.

The world's workers, poor and unknown, respect themselves as kings do. If a bridge is built or a tunnel dug, the dirtiest mucker on the job feels the same decent pride in accomplishment that lifts the chin of the chief engineer.

And this satisfaction in doing something useful and worth while—this consciousness of being necessary to the world's welfare—gives to the worker an independent and unquestioning self-respect capable of enduring shocks that would break the pride of those who lean on wealth or birth.

The dignity of usefulness is known, as though by instinct, to the most ignorant of men. And instinctively they busy themselves at some useful or helpful task when some extremity of misfortune threaten their reason.

To be useful and helpful is to salvage self-respect, and when self-respect is saved the man is saved.

This is the way of salvation for those who are cowed by shame. The bum who lifts another bum from the gutter has begun his climb back to manhood.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Whole Nation Should Interest Itself in Preserving Historic Features of Alexandria.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Anent the colonial rehabilitation of Alexandria, as one might say, I have a thought which may be worth printing. Alexandria perhaps has a greater wealth of colonial reminders than any of her historic sisters. That the pick of these reminders should be preserved is the wish of every one.

Within recent years her citizens have done much in the way of historic restoration. But she is not wealthy enough to complete the work properly.

Its completion is necessary in the development of the plan for the beautifying of the Federal District, of which she was once an integral part—of which she is now industrially and socially a part.

The great boulevard to Mount Vernon itself will not be wholly complete so long as the colonial attractions of Alexandria—Washington's town—are neglected. Tourists by the hundreds of thousands will note any wayside aspect that is out of keeping with the pilgrimage to Washington's tomb.

Obviously the pulchritude of the old city is the concern of the whole people of the United States, and so far as the task of improving her outward appearance is concerned, the United States, along with the State of Virginia and her own citizens, not to mention the citizens of the District of Columbia, should take a hand.

Engineer McCrink Says Boiler Inspection Will Not Insure Against Explosion.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Since the blast at McCrory's Store, in reading your valuable paper, I find various suggestions and recommendations about testing house-heating appliances and bringing them under the inspection regulations. It looks to me at this time that we have a great many regulations that are obsolete.

Inspection of house-heating appliances would not prevent accidents. If I understand it rightly, many States have no inspection law relating to high-pressure boilers. A boiler may be inspected today and found all right, and 60 days later it may explode with terrific effect. All that prevents a boiler explosion is the care, intelligence and watchfulness of the steam engineer.

Senate Deserves a Crown of Jewels, Says an Ardent Admirer—We Concur, Sometimes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Here's a voice from Wheeling, W. Va., who takes Will Rogers seriously and thinks our Senate should be investigated.

Whenever this country was in danger because of unscrupulous or foolish officials in high places, who stood in the gap and would not let them pass but the United States Senate? During our whole career it has been the stanch barrier between us and imperialism, always standing the acid test and never faltering.

All hail to our Senate, the one patriotic body that has stood every test that the very highest patriotism requires, and I for one unhesitatingly assert that it deserves a crown of jewels of the very rarest kind from the plain people of our beloved country.

Reader Asks Why Kellogg Pact Has Not "Functioned" in Red-Chinese Dispute.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of today there is an editorial of nearly a column in length entitled, "The League's Duty," concerning the Chinese-Russian situation. Its presumptious tenor is not surprising, premature and biased as is the article, emanating from a source antagonistic to the League, which has the almost unanimous indorsement and support of the civilized world.

It is not intended to enter here into any discussion of the League, but merely to note, and it is almost amusing, that you do not furnish, say, at least a half column alibi editorial as to why the so-called Kellogg peace pact has not functioned, particularly in view of your assertion in an editorial, also in today's paper, that "it is commonly assumed that Frank B. Kellogg, author of the universal pact for the renunciation of war, will be the recipient of the (Nobel peace) prize this year, and he is richly entitled to such recognition."

America's Unique Feast Day—Apotheosis of Pumpkin Pie.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Thanksgiving Day! Once again it has come, a day of tender memories.

Respecting this day, a proclamation was published in 1668, wherein there occurred these words: "It hath pleased God in some comfortable measure to blesse us in the fruites of the earth." The day appointed was November 25.

As we should expect, the poet Whittier wrote respecting this national holiday. His verses follow:

"Ah! On Thanksgiving Day, when from East and from West,
From North and from South come the pilgrim and guest,
When the gray-haired New Englander sees round his board
The old broken links of affection restored,
When the care-wearied man seeks his mother once more,
And the worn matron smiles where the girl smiled before,
What moistens the lip and what brightens the eye?
What calls back the past, like the

DEATH CALL BLOWN AT WARREN'S GRAVE

Snow and Leaden Sky Add to Mournfulness of Rites for Dead Senator.

PERSHING IS PRESENT

Cheyenne, Wyo., Nov. 28. (A.P.)—Wyoming's Grand Old Man, Francis E. Warren, veteran of the United States Senate, came home for the last time today and was borne to his final resting place in Lakeview Cemetery.

The sounding of taps and a major general's salute of 13 guns concluded the martial pomp reserved for the Nation's greatest.

Snow and a leaden sky emphasized the mournful atmosphere as the flag-draped casket on an artillery caisson moved to the place of interment to the dirge of a military funeral march.

To those who regretted the inclement weather, Senator Davis A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, a member of the congressional committee which accompanied the body to Cheyenne, said:

"No, it is characteristic of the storms he breasted all his life."

Met at the railroad station this morning when the special funeral train reached Cheyenne, the senator's body was received by a military escort of honor from Fort D. A. Russell. Slowly the procession moved to the State Capitol building.

In the cathedral dimness of the rotunda of the Capitol building where the rugged veteran of the pioneering days of the West had served twice as territorial governor and again as first governor of the State of Wyoming, the body lay in state for two hours, while multitudes—distinguished men and women, friends and admirers—passed by the bier, many of them in tears.

The funeral escort, consisting of the entire garrison of the military post, received the body at noon and began the march to the place of interment.

The procession was headed by the massed bands of the First and Twentieth Regiments, followed by Brig. Gen. C. R. Howland, commanding officer of the fort.

Then in the line of march came the troops of Fort Russell, the clergy and the casket and pallbearers, who were ten selected enlisted men from the post. Members of the congressional delegation from Washington, who served as honorary pallbearers, followed.

Next in the procession were the mourners—the widow, Fred E. Warren, the son; Gen. John J. Pershing, a son-in-law, and close friends.

Next in the long procession was Gov. Frank C. Emerson, of Wyoming, justices of the State Supreme Court, other State officials, city and county officials, veterans of the Civil, Spanish and World Wars, representatives of civic and fraternal organizations, and at the rear innumerable private citizens from every part of Wyoming.

Ash From Mont Pelee Obliterates Stream

Fort-de-France, Martinique, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Heavy clouds of ash emitted by Mont Pelee recently have choked the wide bed of the river Blanche and literally obliterated the stream.

There is no visible flow of water, but observers fear that avalanches of mud may sweep down through the gulleys on the west, south, and southwest of Mont Pelee. Government officials estimated that the weight of the ash deposits in the bed of the river Blanche was anywhere between a million and a million and a half tons.

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

ECONOMIC history is being made in the drive now under way by President Hoover to keep the business wheels turning despite the stock market slump and despite a sharp falling off in several "luxury" lines, including particularly automobiles.

One of the most significant features is the agreement of the railroad executives not to curtail expenditures nor to reduce the total number of their employes. It typifies in a spectacular way the sort of economy which Mr. Hoover, as a student of economic conditions, believes should be avoided. It is aimed at localizing the irritation, as the physicians would put it.

It is, in effect, an attempt to straighten out the customary vicious circle, which in the past, notably in the 1907 panic, so inspired business generally with lack of confidence that the effects of the depression were still obvious in the Christmas shopping of 1908.

ALWAYS, in the past, the moment carloadings began to fall off, indicating a drop in railroad earnings, the executives of the roads would begin retrenchment. Not only would they cease buying rolling stock, locomotives and steel rails, but they would cut the working force at their shops, and lay off a considerable portion of their right-of-way and maintenance workers.

This in turn, of course, caused laying off of additional workers at the rolling mills, foundries and car and locomotive works, which, in turn, hit the local merchants of all varieties in every community affected, and ramified back to the manufacturers of every article bought by these workmen temporarily out of jobs. And as a result carloadings would decline some more as the railroads lost the business of hauling this merchandise.

IT is impossible to stop the circle at its beginning, of course, because beginning as long ago as June certain lines, of which the motor car is the most obvious example, had begun to trace this curve.

President Hoover believes that the curtailment in motor production has already gone a long way toward permitting actual demand to catch up with the supply. The thing to do is to prevent the demand for this and other "luxury" lines from falling off still further by restrictions which in the opinion of the President and his advisers would actually be unnecessary.

But habit is so strong, and fear of loss is so great, on the part of men who control the manufacturing and transportation business, that it took a tremendously inspiring move such as that made by Mr. Hoover to check the circle from hurrying round. Aiding him in his drive to an extent not generally realized is the campaign he sponsored for years while Secretary of Commerce.

AS a result of that campaign the number of merchants and dealers in all lines who have tremendous stocks on hand is very small. It is almost negligible if automobiles are left out of the calculation, and, as already pointed out, the decline in production starting last June has already corrected this to a considerable extent.

So there will not be the weary waiting for orders which characterized the slump of 1907 and 1908. A very limited buying demand indeed will soon begin pouring orders in on the factories. There are no big stocks on hand, bought at higher prices, which the merchants must sell before putting in orders.

Also the trouble happened to come at a time when the South has had fine crops and fairly good prices, and, despite the farm belt clamor, the West is in much better shape than in many more properous years so far as most business is concerned. So there is an abundance of reserve buying power.

It also comes at a time when Europe's problems are nearer solution than at any time since the war, which also helps materially.

Vessel Grounds in Fog; Tugs Are Standing By

Wexford, Irish Free State, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—The British steamer Goleta, 2,500 tons, went ashore in a fog today 5 miles off the Tuskar Rocks, but was reported to be in no danger tonight.

Several tugs were standing by and will attempt to tow her off tomorrow. The Wexford lifeboat, which went out to the steamer's assistance, returned to port, there being no further need for it.

RUBIO IS FORMALLY NAMED PRESIDENT

1,000 Ballots From Los Angeles Are Barred by Congress.

HE PLANS VISIT TO U. S.

Mexico City, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—The Mexican Congress tonight adopted the report of its election commission and formally declared Pascual Ortiz Rubio, candidate o fthe Revolutionary party, elected as president of the republic.

The report stated the successful candidate had received 1,825,761 votes; that Jose Vasconcelos, candidate of the Antireelectionists, had been given 110,279, and that Pedro Rodrigues Triana, Communist, had received 28,279.

The fall of the gavel marking the official consummation of the November 17 election was the signal for an outburst of cheering in the Chamber of Deputies.

The parliamentary election commission rejected 140,000 votes as illegal. Included in these were about 1,000 votes mailed from Los Angeles.

A delegation of Congressmen was chosen to visit the President-elect and give him official notice of the result. The detailed figures showed he carried each State and Territory with a handsome majority.

Rubio will leave within a few days, probably Monday, for the United States. He will first go to Baltimore for a short rest in the Johns Hopkins Hospital. Then he will visit Washington, paying his respects to President Hoover, and later go to New York. He may visit California before returning to Mexico.

Two Hurt, One May Die In Explosion of Yacht

Wilmington, N. C., Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Three persons today were injured critically, one of them perhaps fatally, when an explosion of gasoline wrecked the yacht Eolis.

John Brinckley, engineer of the craft, is not expected to live. Two small children of D. C. Williams, of Wilson, N. C., owner of the yacht, were blown clear of the yacht, but at the hospital it was said their condition was not critical. They were rescued by Capt. Chesley Wells. The yacht was destroyed and the dock to which she was tied was badly damaged.

Alaska Tidal Wave Loss Is $200,000

Canneries Suffer Heavily in Storm in Bristol Bay Section.

Seattle, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Reports from canneries along the Bristol Bay district of Alaska continued to sift into Seattle today and estimates of the damage caused by the terrific gale and tidal wave of November 24 had reached $200,000, indicating the storm was far more serious than at first believed.

The only communication with the storm-swept district is through the Signal Corps, U. S. Army, at Dillingham, and the Bureau of Education station at Kanakanek.

As navigation is closed for the year to Bristol Bay, cannery companies were preparing to send airplanes from Seward and Fairbanks to the stricken district to investigate the damages and the need of food supplies.

Fifth Ave. Fashions NEW YORK

By MARIE PAULETTE.

A SLENDER appearance is easily accomplished by choosing the correct model, as the charmingly flattering one I'm showing today.

It is a copy of Paris original model in black novelty transparent velvet with tiny white spatter dots. The jacket is given peplum effect by two belts. The upper belt defines higher waistline, while the lower one keeps the hips smooth and slender. The shoulders of jacket are pin tucked. The scalloped front terminating in deep V with attached scalloped collar shows chic femininity and lengthens its line. Sleeves are fitted with darts below the elbows.

The circular skirt starts to flare well below the hips and is attached to sleeveless bodice of beige sheer metal cloth. Remove your little jacket after the afternoon bridge party and you are beautifully gowned for dinner. It is a stunning dress, too, for Sunday evenings.

Style No. 8230 is designed in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 inches bust. In the medium size, it can be copied exactly with 3¾ yards of 40-inch material with 1 yard of 40-inch contrasting and 3¼ yards of faille silk ribbon for belts.

For more conservative wear, choose black crepe satin with dull surface used for sleeveless bodice, belts and to bind scallops of jacket.

New raisin shade in faille silk crepe is very smart and needs no further trimming. Bottle green canton crepe self-trimmed, printed rayon crepe with plain in dark brown tones and feather woolen in yellow-beige and brown coloring with plain yellow-beige kashmir jersey used for blouse are captivating ideas.

Army Society Heading For New York

Dinner Dance Will Be Held in Astor for Football Team.

Hotel Astor in New York during the coming week-end will be the headquarters designate of high military officials, the Army football squadron, alumni and cadets of the United States Military Academy and others who are to foregather there for one of the gridiron classics of the year—the Army-Notre Dame game—tomorrow in Yankee Stadium.

The principal event will occur tomorrow night when the Army team will be feted at a dinner-dance in the east ballroom of the hotel. Decorators have already begun to transform that spacious room into a setting appropriate for a typical "Army night" celebration.

Among those from Washington who have made reservations for the dinner include Brig. Gen. George S. Simonds, of the general staff; Col. Owen Seeman, of Fort Myer; Lieut. Col. H. C. Gibner, of the Army War College, Capt. and Mrs. R. A. Dickson, Capt. Clarence Longacre, editor of the Quartermaster Review; Col. William B. Ladue, Maj. L. W. McIntosh, chief of the Army Air Corps, at Washington; Col. James B. Moss, U. S. Flag Association; Homer B. Millard, principal, Millard Preparatory School of Washington; Lieut. Col. Troup Miller, of the Army War College; Maj. John G. O'Brien, Col. J. Olin, of Edgemoor, Md.; Maj. L. L. Pendleton, of the Army War College; Col. Frank Snowden Ehlen, of Towson, Md., and Maj. William H. Garrison.

Members of the Army squad will be seated at tables presided over by the coach of the team.

The superintendent and faculty of the United States Military Academy and high Army officials who are to journey from all sections of the country to attend the game and reunion will occupy reserved areas in the ballroom.

For years the Astor has been the headquarters of the Army team and center of many brilliant social events staged in connection with Army football contests, whether that team was victorious or defeated. This year, however, and with the arrival at the hotel Friday afternoon of the West Point team, social functions planned weeks in advance will get into action and continue until the team departs on Sunday night.

Miss Yvonne MacIntosh Morse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. B. Morse, of the Highlands, is passing the week-end in Philadelphia with her cousins, Judge and Mrs. William Gray Knowles. Miss Morse will attend the Navy-Dartmouth football game.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Huntt entertained at dinner on Thanksgiving Day at their home in Oneida place in compliment to Dr. Everett M. Ellison and his daughters, Alice Elizabeth, Margaret Isabel, and Nancy Doris.

Mr. George Amory Maddox has returned from Boston, where he attended the Yale-Harvard game and visited his son, Mr. Amory Maddox, who is attending Harvard. Mrs. Maddox and Miss Emily Stuart Maddox are passing the Thanksgiving holidays in New York with Mrs. Maddox's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart McNamara, at their apartment on Park avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Alan E. Gray, 209 Shepherd street, Chevy Chase, entertained at the opening dinner-dance given at the University Club on Tuesday evening. Their guests included Mr. and Mrs. Paul F. Myers, Prof. and Mrs. Charles S. Collier, Mr. and Mrs. Howard G. Nichols, Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell Yates, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Shorb.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. McAden, of Charlotte, N. C., are spending the holiday in Washington at the Mayflower with their daughter, Miss Convere McAden, who is at National Cathedral School again this season. Their guests at dinner on Thanksgiving at the hotel included a group of Miss McAden's classmates, Miss Jean Dutton, of Plandome, Long Island; Miss Louise Tate, of Charlotte, N. C.; Miss Nancy Frederick, of Atlanta, and Miss Margaret Watts and Miss Sally Sackett, of Lynchburg, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. McAden are leaving on a New York trip today.

REPAIR CREW AT POSTS

Dannemora, N. Y., Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Persistent and widely circulated rumors that an attempt would be made today for a general riot of some 1,500 convicts in Clinton Prison here caused Warden Harry M. Kaiser to send out a call for aid of troopers. Thirty-eight of the State policemen, under Lieut. Lynch, of Malone Barracks, hurried to the prison. The riot did not materialize.

All guards, including those who had time off for the Thanksgiving holiday, were summoned back to their posts. Machine guns were placed in key positions on the great walls and there was a general feeling of tension, not only at the institution, but throughout the village.

The rumors, flying about for two or three days, had reached the ears of about every person here. Remembering the bloody outbreak of July 22, this year, male residents ate their Thanksgiving dinner while they listened expectantly for the shrieking of the prison's siren.

As the day passed without untoward incidents within the grim walls, the belief grew among the citizenry and guards that the convicts themselves, nettled by the failure of the previous attempt to get out, had started the reports through their grapevine telegraph, with the purpose of calling guards back from their day off.

An entertainment for the inmates following their Thanksgiving Day dinner of chicken and turkey was allowed to continue under the ever watchful eyes of the men with guns.

Principal Keeper Asel Granger, best man at the wedding of Miss Irene Charbonneau and Dr. Joseph Graves this morning in Plattsburg, was called from the wedding breakfast by the warden.

Telephone and electric power linemen remained at the prison throughout most of the day, prepared to keep these services in operation in case of an outbreak.

Boy Prisoner Escapes By Walking From Jail

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Forcing open the doors of his cell and walking quickly through a crowd of policemen in police headquarters, James Trinkly, 15-year-old alleged safe robber, made a successful escape Tuesday night, it was revealed today.

He tore off a side bar of his cell cot and employed it as a lever in prying open the doors of his cell in the detention home, where he had been confined since his arrest. He stepped into the corridor and went through police headquarters and out into the night without attracting attention. Trinkly was arrested early in October in connection with a safe robbery.

70 Respond to Radio Call For Blood to Save Woman

Young and Old Forsake Thanksgiving Dinners and File Way to Newark Hospital on Mercy Errand, But Are Unable to Help.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 28 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Seventy men and women, young and robust, gave up their Thanksgiving Day dinners and came trooping today to the Newark Memorial Hospital in response to a message that came to them from the air.

It was the pure food hour on the New York branch studio of Station WOR. Alfred W. McCann, who knows his onions and his turkey, was delivering his daily morning lecture, talking appropriately of cranberry sauce, cabbages and things. Suddenly, he stopped in the middle of a sentence and changed his subject.

"Ladies and gentlemen of the radio audience," he said, "here is an unexampled opportunity for some healthy, robust person to make a genuine and solemn Thanksgiving Day offering.

"We have just received a telephone call from Dr. Joseph Echikson, pathologist of the Newark Memorial Hospital. He has a patient there, a Mrs. C. Del Pomo, 48 years old, of Newark. She is dying and needs a pint of blood to save her life!"

At this point he resumed his talk on pure cranberries. But within half an hour from the time he finished, young folk and middle-aged folk, and some even beyond middle age, began presenting themselves at the hospital entrance. All told attendants they had come to give Mrs. Del Pomo whatever amount of their blood she needed.

They came singly and in pairs, big folk and little folk and medium-size folk. Some were well dressed and some not so well. Some came in automobiles from a distance of many miles, while others came by subway, street car and afoot. Not a one came with any thought of remuneration if his or her blood proved acceptable.

The thin line kept coming almost without interruption all through the day. Each one in order of his arrival had a small quantity of blood taken from him or her to mix with the blood of the dying woman in order to test whether it was virulent to offset the malignant bacilli in Mrs. Del Pomo's blood.

The prospective Thanksgiving Day blood-givers stood patiently in line all day waiting for their turn. Hospital attendants brought them sandwiches and coffee while they waited. Until a late hour doctors and nurses were still working feverishly mixing blood with blood to find the proper mixture. By 6 o'clock tonight a majority of the 70 that had come had been examined, but no satisfactory mixture had been found by that time.

Disappointed and hungry they went back singly and in pairs to join their families or friends to help clear the tables and wash the dishes.

Eight Bandits Tie Up Employes; Get $20,000

Chicago, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Eight young men invaded the Case & Martin Pie Co. plant early today, bound up eight employes, blasted the safe and escaped with currency and securities worth $20,000.

The robbers, armed with revolvers and a shotgun, rounded up the workers and herded them in the boiler room, where all were trussed with electric light cords, while the bandits cracked the safe with nitroglycerine. The employes were left on the floor and it took them three hours to loose their bonds.

Pacelli May Get Red Hat.

CANADIAN DOCTOR GIVEN COAT OF TAR

wished to see the doctor in his office.

On reaching his office, Dr. Latimer said a man knocked him to the sidewalk and with the aid of two other men threw him into a car. He said he recognized the voice of Charles Oliver. Constable Allercott saw the speeding car and fired a shot at a rear tire which apparently did not take effect.

Dr. Latimer said that on a lonely spot about 2½ miles from Penticton his trousers and underwear were removed, his feet tied with a thong and tar and feathers applied to his body. The three men drove off and the doctor was forced to walk back to the police station with only his overcoat for covering. A physician found him suffering from shock and a badly swollen jaw.

Oliver did not plead to the charge and gave surety for $500 bail. Hearing was set for Monday.

In read paint the words, "Abandon hope, all ye who enter here," were inscribed on Dr. Latimer's sign outside of his office three weeks ago. This note was mentioned in the local press at the time and was attributed to some practical joker.

The Labor party benchers cheered loudly when the result of the vote was announced. One of the Laborites shouted:

"The coalition won't work."

MILLERS HERB EXTRACT REACHES TREMENDOUS SALE OF TWO BOTTLES PER MINUTE

IN THIRTY CITIES ALONE 1,165,000 BOTTLES OF THIS PREPARATION WERE SOLD IN TWELVE MONTHS

Seems Almost Impossible That Any One Medicine Could Attain Such a Remarkable Sales Record. But When You Realize How Quickly It Gives Relief Even in the Most Severe Cases of Chronic Constipation, You Will Readily See Why It Has Been Proclaimed the Greatest Tonic Laxative of All Times.

THOUSANDS IN WASHINGTON SAY IT GIVES RELIEF WHERE OTHER MEDICINES FAIL

Mother Finds It Also Helps Her Young Daughter

Says It is Indeed a Wonderful Medicine. Cleanses One's System and Helps In Every Way.

Do you know that for nine months, people in Washington have been using and praising Miller's Herb Extract (formerly called Herb Juice), seems as though that is time enough to put any medicine to a fair test. At the present time the sales on this preparation exceed by far those of any previous month and statements of praise continue to pour in, which is undisputable proof that it is a medicine of exceptional merits. In taking at random a statement from the large list of those now on file we come to the one given by Mrs. Wm. J. Canfield, 318 E. Capitol St., Washington. She said: "Regarding this famous remedy I have used Miller's Herb Extract in my home and find it to be satisfactory in every way. I tried it first for stomach disorders, such as gas and indigestion, also constipation as I had suffered with this trouble for some time. I was also troubled with irregular action of the kidneys, bilious attacks, headaches, and neuritis. In this medicine I found just the thing I had been searching for and the relief it gave me was wonderful. All signs of my old troubles have passed away, no more stomach pains, headaches, neuritis pains also gone, no longer get up at night and feel greatly improved in every way. Due to my condition I had to be very careful about the laxative I used, but this medicine relieved me of constipation and had no bad after effects at all. I also give it to my young daughter and in her case also it is entirely satisfactory." A short time after this statement was given MRS. F. L. TAYLOR, LANDOVER, MD., called at the Peoples Drug Store in Washington and said: "I, too, have used Miller's Herb Extract and it is indeed a wonderful medicine. Before using it I was always troubled with my stomach, nervous indigestion, restless at night, up all hours on account of the kidneys and was continually taking pills or other harsh laxatives. Several weeks ago I began using this extract and I have found it to be a wonderful cleanser also regulator for the entire system; tones up the stomach and makes eating a pleasure by ridding the stomach of gas. As a regulator for the bowels I have never used its equal, as it overcomes constipation also regulates the kidneys and makes a person feel better in every way. That I find it to be satisfactory in every way is what I tell friends when they ask me how I like Miller's Herb Extract."

Virginia Woman Says She Was Twenty Pounds Under Weight

Could Not Sleep at Night and Was in a General Rundown Condition for Months Prior to Using This Medicine

MRS. J. H. MOONEY

"Words cannot fully describe the wonderful relief and new health Miller's Herb Extract (formerly called Herb Juice), brought me and when my friends remark about how much better I look, I say 'yes' I have been taking this medicine and advise them to do the same thing, if they are not in good health." The above is taken from a statement received a short time ago from Mrs. J. H. Mooney, 12 Virginia Ave., Clarendon, Va. Continuing with her statement Mrs. Mooney who is well known in this section, said: "As far back as I can remember I have had to take a laxative of some kind and of late it was necessary for me to resort to rather strong ones in order to have any relief from constipation. This, however, was a small matter in comparison to my other troubles, yet I think now that it brought on the others as my entire system seemed to be full of poison. There were times when I was so sore and stiff I could hardly get out of bed. The muscles in my limbs seemed to draw and pull, black spots floated before my eyes and I would have weak dizzy spells; food I ate simply lay in the stomach to sour and ferment. I was bloated with gas, could not sleep at night and often when I dozed off I would awake with a start and then lie awake so nervous I simply could not go back to sleep. I was twenty pounds under weight; had lost most of it in the past six months. I was willing to try anything so when so many here at home began praising this Herb Extract I lost no time in trying it myself. I feel like a different person now and only regret that I did not learn of this medicine sooner. Again I say, words cannot fully describe the wonderful improvement in my health, every ache and pain has passed away, food no longer causes gas to form or hurts my stomach and I am gaining back my lost weight, thanks to Miller's Herb Extract. I am also rid of the constipation trouble, no longer have attacks of dizziness or spots before my eyes, rest well at night and find real pleasure in doing my work. Wish I could tell every one in Washington about this medicine."

Rapid Recovery Amazed Her; Also Friends

Was Unable to Leave the House Before She Began Using the Herb Extract.

There is no end to the amazing statements of praise being received each week here in Washington. Hundreds of reliable people confess they are greatly benefited by the first few doses of Miller's Herb Extract (formerly called Herb Juice), and that after using a few bottles they find themselves completely relieved of chronic ailments that other medicines had failed to reach. Mrs. L. BALTZELL, 1314 6th St. S. W., life-long resident of Washington, said: "I had been in bed for three weeks, not able to sit up when I started using this medicine and it was wonderful the way I improved after the first few days and before I had taken all of the first bottle I was able to be up and around. My condition or illness, I was told, was due to nervous indigestion and I suffered so I thought sure I was going to die. I had a spell while at a summer camp and had to be brought home, felt as though there was a hard lump in my stomach and I suffered day and night, would get deathly sick and felt like I had to vomit every minute. I had suffered with my stomach for some time, but this was the worst attack I ever had and the medicine I used did not help me at all. One day when the insurance man came and saw me in bed he said: 'Why don't you try Miller's Herb Extract?' He told me how much it had helped him so I said, 'Well, I will try it at once.' As I said before I felt better after the first few days and that first bottle helped me more than all the other medicines I had used. By its action on the bowels this Herb Extract cleansed the stomach of all waste and poison, toned up my entire digestive system and I have not had one spell or a pain since I began using it. In the three weeks I was laid up, I lost eight pounds, but I am gaining right along and I would not take anything for the relief this medicine brought me. Friends who knew of my condition were amazed when they saw me out so soon and marveled at my sudden recovery."

This great medicine is an herbal preparation (formerly called Herb Juice) and is the largest selling medicine on the market where it is known. Owing to the great demand for Miller's Herb Extract in Washington it was necessary to place two representatives here. These men are located at Store No. 2, 505 7th St. N. W., and Store No. 9, 31st and M Sts. (Georgetown), of the Peoples Drug Stores, where they are explaining this medicine to the hundreds that call.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM

Cities Service, Paragon.

Mrs. W. H. Y.—I recently purchased Cities Service at 28. Do you consider it safe to hold as an investment? I also have Paragon Refining preferred (Toledo, Ohio). Please advise me what you think of it as an investment.

Answer—You were fortunate in being in a position to buy Cities Service at 28 as the stock is now selling about 5 points above that figure. Cities Service is regarded as a good investment, and the company is ably managed. The stock should be held. Paragon Refining earned a little more in the first nine months this year than it did in 1928. The company produces crude oil and its by-products and has considerable acreage in Ohio. The preferred stock pays 75 cents quarterly, or $3 annually, and appears to be a fair investment.

Durant Motors.

A. F. B.—In 1922 I purchased some shares of the Durant Motors at $36 per share, also I signed an agreement to keep the stock one year after purchase. I have done better than that simply because it has never been up there since. Do you think it will ever go up there again, or had I better sell out?

Answer—Due to an indifferent record of earnings over the last few years, the stock of the Durant Motors Co. is regarded as a radical speculation. As to whether or not it will ever get back to the figure at which you purchased it is entirely problematical, although it is only reasonable to expect that when the general market recovers, Durant Motors will participate in such a movement to a greater or less extent. Considering that you have held your stock for such a long time, it might be to your advantage to retain it a while longer.

Warner Bros. Pictures.

W. W. D. C.—I would appreciate any information you can give me on Warner Bros. Pictures. What is the nature of the business, its assets, earnings and dividends? Is it a safe purchase at present prices? Are Freeport Texas and International Tel. & Tel. a good buy at present prices?

Answer.—Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., is one of the largest independent producers in the motion picture industry and it has been a pioneer in the commercial development of the sound movie. As of August 31, 1928, total current assets amounted to $8,103,378 and total current liabilities to $9,166,742. Income, on basis of present capitalization, amounted to $1.86 per common share in year ended August 31, 1928, compared with 3 cents in previous fiscal year and a deficit in 1925-26 period. For six months ended March 1 last further sharp gain reported, amounting to $3.48 per share, compared with 56 cents in corresponding period of preceding fiscal year. October 24, 1929, directors declared a quarterly dividend of $1 a share on common, placing stock on $4 annual basis, payable December 1 to holders of record November 12, 1929. From a speculative viewpoint the stock is the most attractive in its particular group.

Due to sharp recovery in earnings in current year and the fact that $4 yearly dividends are now being paid, Freeport Texas is regarded as a good purchase. International Tel. & Tel. is likewise very well thought of, particularly for long-term holding.

About Two Stocks.

J. S.—I would appreciate your opinion of Radio Keith Orpheum and Indian Refining. I bought 150 shares of the former outright at 29 and 100 shares of the latter at 28¼. Would you advise me to hold or sell at the present market prices?

Answer.—It is presumed that when you bought these stocks you realized that you were speculating and not investing, as neither of them pays a dividend and consequently yields no income return. While it is only fair to assume that when the market again recovers fully, these issues will participate in such a movement to a greater or less extent. However, it is not the practice of this column to advise as to what particular price any stock should be either bought or sold.

Metallic Non-entity

Working long hours in a scientifically equipped laboratory, a Chicago scientist brought forth a silver-grayish metal—a new metallic element, which has been named Columbium. But, even today, no commercial use has been found for it.

But chemists are still making elaborate, complicated tests of Columbium—and eventually it may be more valuable than gold. Wise men of science today leave no element inconsidered, no matter how trifling it appears; just as wise men of business leave no trifle neglected—often they got their start to wealth by carefully saving the small, usually inconsidered part of their salary and investing it in some reliable security.

Just so, a small sum placed in the 6% First Mortgage Notes, sold through Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Company, will yield an attractive interest, and give you a steadily growing income for independence and leisure in future years. Do not neglect to start saving now, no matter how small the sum may be.

Watch for Your Rights!

OCTOBER 31, 1929 holders of record of certain securities in the Associated System are receiving valuable Rights. They represent the right to subscribe to $8 Interest Bearing Allotment Certificates at $120 each to yield 6 2/3%.

What This Investment Means

It means that you have an opportunity to profit through the growth of a soundly established, long continued business supplying light, heat and power—first necessities of civilization.

Growth, through increasing service to customers and through additions of new properties, has doubled Associated System gross earnings and assets during 1927 to 1929.

Full value of the Rights can be realized by exercising them. Additional Rights may be purchased through security dealers or banks.

These Rights are not cancelled as implied in newspapers but on the contrary the Allotment Certificates have been made more attractive both in price and in terms.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

ONLY one legitimate theater remained open to catch the after-dinner theater parties on Thanksgiving Day. The Belasco, housing Mr. Ernest Pascal's erotic play of the superintelligentsia, "The Amorous Antic," played to almost a capacity audience at the matinee and a goodly house at night. Frank Morgan and his fellow actors, what with early at the theater and late in the playhouse, had to grab their turkey dinners on the run. Pity the poor actors on holidays. At night the National offered stiff competition with "Wings Over Europe."

Fritzi Scheff has gloriously succeeding in doing what many of the wiseacres said was an impossibility in New York City or, in fact, in America—and that was to repeat a triumph achieved almost a quarter of a century before. As Fifi in Victor Herbert's tuneful masterpiece, "Mlle. Modiste," Fritzi created a furore when it was presented at the Columbia Theater away back in 1905. Only a few weeks ago, when it was again produced, she appeared as the vivacious and dynamic Fifi again and duplicated her triumph of former years. Her virility, verve and vivacity are as conspicuously dominant today as upon the night when Victor Herbert raised his baton and led the orchestra in the overture over at the Columbia.

When Fritzi Scheff appears here at Poli's Theater next week she will be supported by the entire New York company, including such well known local favorites as Detmar Poppen, Nathaniel Wagner, Allan Brooks, Arthur Burckly, Flavia Arcaro and Sarah Edwards. The Casino Theater production will be brought here intact; also the especially commented upon ensemble and the celebrated Albertina Rasch Ballet, with Marie Grimaldi as the premiere danseuse.

Not only that, the revival of "Mlle. Modiste" by Fritzi Scheff next week at Poli's brings back to this city a Washington girl, Miss Nina Florence Allen, who has been with the company ever since it opened on Broadway eight weeks ago. Miss Allen was born and raised in Washington, and attended Central High School, where she was an active member of the Dramatic Association, joining the Masks upon her graduation. After studying vocal for several years at the King-Smith Studio, she played for several weeks with the Savoy Musical Stock Co. at the Belasco last year. She is not a stranger to radio audiences, having sung over the air both here and in New York. A clever dancer, and possessing a pleasing personality, she is destined, in the opinion of her many friends here, to have a very successful future, so says Wallace Munro, the advance agent for "Mlle. Modiste," who is coming all the way from Philadelphia to be here at the opening of the revival Sunday night. On Tuesday afternoon, at 4:30, Miss Scheff will be guest of the National Press Club at a tea.

A British cabinet, seated in the council room, provides the unusual scenes in "Wings Over Europe," the play by Robert Nichols and Maurice Browne, produced by the Theater Guild at the National Theater.

There is no woman in the cast; the story deals with Lightfoot, the young inventor—the nephew of the prime minister—who has made a discovery that puts illimitable power in his hands. He can cure the ills of the world if he has money; but a battle of wills ensues. Pressure of every kind is brought to bear on him, and there is a dramatic denouement.

The setting of the cabinet council provides a theatrical novelty, as it is a close approximation to the actual cabinet council room at No. 10 Downing street, an address known to every history student.

Some of the recent audiences tried to identify the characters as living politicians; but the authors remain discreetly silent on this point. However, there is one who looks exactly like Ramsay MacDonald, the prime minister.

Notre Dame Band Plays Over Radio

Hoosier Musicians Will Be Heard Over WMAL Today; Rochester Symphony 3.15; Breakfast Brevities 8:15 A. M.

When the "Fighting Irish" of Notre Dame University trek eastwards from Indiana for the annual gridiron classic with Army the squad will be accompanied by members of the 60-piece Notre Dame Band, who this morning, the day before the game, will give a special half-hour program over the Columbia Broadcasting System's network, beginning at 11 o'clock.

The program by the Hoosier lads will consist of the college's songs and cheers, with special emphasis on the football numbers that will be presented tomorrow at the game.

The Rochester Symphony Orchestra is one fo the outstanding offerings from WRC today, playing from the studios of WHAM, Rochester, between 3:15 and 4:15 o'clock. The "First Symphony" of Sibelius, the Finnish composer, will be played. Sibelius' music is national in character and even his sympathies reflect his love for Finland in their use of folk themes. So strong is the nationalist note in his work that when Finland was still a province of Czarist Russia the authorities forbade the performance of his music, especially "Finlandia," because it excited aspirations for freedom on the part of his countrymen.

Eugene Goossens directs the orchestra, which will play also the overture to "Fingal's Cave" (Mendelssohn) and the aria "Eri Tu" (Verdi).

The regular N. B. C. Music Appreciation hour, conducted by Dr. Walter Damrosch, will be omitted this morning because of the Thanksgiving holiday in the schools.

Chinese scales and rhythms are employed to convey the atmosphere of the queer and crooked alleys depicted in Emerson Whithorne's "Pell Street," which will be heard in the concert to be broadcast at 8 o'clock by the Cities Service Concert Orchestra. The composition suggests the hurry and bustle of New York's Chinese quarter. Whithorne, a native of Cleveland, is one of the best known of the younger American composers. The Cavaliers will sing "Dear Old Girl," "Lamp in the West" and "Sweetest Story Ever Told," while two xylophone solos have been arranged—"Liebesfreud" (Kreisler) and "Turkish Patrol" (Mozart). Other orchestral selections include "Radium Dance" (Schwartz), "Pale Moon" (Logan), selections from "Very Good, Eddie," "Love's Dream After the Ball," "Aubade Printanniere" (Lacome), and "Marche Burlesque."

Southern melodies, talking picture theme songs and Negro spirituals will be blended by Billy Artz's Orchestra and the Hallelujah Singers, a male quartet, in the Planters Pickers program at 10 o'clock from WRC. "Jubilee," an old spiritual, will be played in a popular orchestral version.

"Christmas Seals and the Public Health" is the subject to be discussed by Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming from the studios of WRC at 7:15 o'clock.

The dinner given in honor of William Muldoon famous sportsman, on his eighty-fifth birthday at the Hotel Biltmore, in New York, will be broadcast at 6:30 o'clock by Station WJZ, New York.

The overture to "Der Erlenhuegel," by Kuhlau, is revived in the period of slumber music which Ludwig Laurier and a string ensemble will broadcast at 11 o'clock from WJZ and WLW. Other selections are "Rheinklaenge-Lorelei" (Strauss), a portion of "The Bohemian Girl" (Balfe), "The Poet's Dream" (MacDowell), and "Indian Lullaby" (Klemm).

"Breakfast Brevities" from The Post will be transmitted by Station WOL at 8:15 o'clock this morning. Peggy Clarke's daily household chat will be heard at the regular hour, with the newly started feature, "Half Hour With Famous Composers," scheduled for 11:30 o'clock.

The dedication of the Rodin Museum, founded by the late Jules E. Mastbaum, will be broadcast from Philadelphia at 3 o'clock this afternoon through Station WMAL.

The program to be broadcast from the same station at 8 o'clock will present Waller and Razof, authors of "Hot Chocolates" and other plays; Markaret Speaks and Helen House and Georgie Price. Mr Price has prepared a special comedy skit for the broadcast and will be heard in his version of what goes on in a "talkie" studio.

Another program originating in Philadelphia will be broadcast locally by WMAL at 10:30 o'clock, when the Curtis Institute of Music program is heard.

Uncle Ray's Corner

Sending Radio Pictures

IN APRIL, 1927, a public test was made of an invention which should some day make the radio at least twice as interesting. In that test, carried on in the eastern part of the United States, a human face was seen at a distance of 300 miles. The face moved and spoke words. It was not a very clear face, but it was clear enough to make those who saw it gasp with wonder.

The face—the moving face—had been sent out by radio!

Yesterday I spoke of the way sound waves are turned into radio waves. Then they travel, at the speed of light, until they are caught by radio receiving sets, and are turned back into sound waves.

It is very much the same thing with the radio picture invention; but in this case light waves are turned into radio waves and then are turned back into light waves when they reach the station.

Before the light waves are changed in the first place, they pass through small holes in a revolving wheel. In one form of the invention there are 50 holes in the wheel, and it turns around 18 times per second. Then the light waves pass through electric instruments and are shot into space. They may reach people hundreds of miles away in any direction, provided those people have the right kind of receiving sets.

The great trouble with this new invention is that it costs so much. Only a small part of the population could afford to have picture-receiving sets as they are made today.

It is quite likely that within a few years ways will be found to build the receiving sets in a simpler manner. Then the radio picture sets may become as common as sound sets are today.

Think of being able to watch a football game while it is going on! We shall hear the sounds, and see the players run!

It may be that the Hollywood movie stars will give us their plays while they are being made; but more likely we shall obtain only glimpses of the plays to prepare us to pay to see them when the picture comes to the theater. At any rate, we may expect radio movies in the home before many years shall pass.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

NOVEMBER 29.

LOUISA MAY ALCOTT, author of that famous book, "Little Women," was born this day, 1832. This work, which appeared in 1868, still remains one of the best books in American literature. It promptly gave Miss Alcott a foremost place in the ranks of American authors. "Little Women" is regarded as the world-photograph of the New England home and the American girl. A whole generation of girls loved the characters of the book.

Miss Alcott was the daughter of Amos Bronson Alcott, eminent American philosopher and educator. She started writing at 16 to help support the family. Other books from her pen include "Jack and Jill," "Spinning-Wheel Stories," "Under the Lilacs" and "Rose in Bloom."

Trixie Friganza, noted American actress and singer, was born this day, 1870. More recently she has been a headliner in vaudeville.

Other noted women born this day include Ellen Clara Sabin, president emeritus of Milwaukee-Downer College, 1850, and Grace King, American writer, 1859.

Telephone Company in Radio Fight

Litigation Over Patents Seen as Drawing in American Company Which Controls Amplifying Apparatus.

The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. has been drawn into the radio patent fight between the Radio Corporation of America and associated independent radio manufacturers with the formation of the Audio Research Foundation, an Illinois Corporation, with headquarters in Chicago and an office in Washington. The new angle of the battle is concerned with the manufacture of amplifying apparatus, for which the telephone company controls the outstanding patents.

Although the brief announcement of the incorporation of the Audio Research Foundation said nothing of any connection between the new organization and the Radio Protective Association, it is held significant that Ernest Reichmann, of Chicago, is general counsel for both associations and that Oswald F. Schuette, executive secretary of the latter group, is also public relations counsel for the new foundation.

The Audio Research Foundation was formed by the leading independent manufacturers in the amplification field and in the radio industry. The announcement says: "It proposes to bring about cooperation among these manufacturers for the purpose of a comprehensive investigation of the art, as well as of the patents in this field. This work will be in the hands of experts of international reputation."

Heretofore the appellations of "radio trust" have been hurled by the independent manufacturers at the Radio Corporation only. With the broadening of the fight to the amplifier field, the new organization will doubtless also seek to have the Senate committee on interstate commerce and the Department of Justice investigate the latter industry as the Radio Protective Association has been doing in the strictly radio field.

Cy Colby, former president of the Radio Manufacturers Association, who is one of the sponsors of the new movement, made the following statement coincident with the announcement of the creation of the foundation:

"The cost of audio amplification equipment for schools, churches, theaters, halls and other users of public address systems can and should be within the financial reach of every American community, no matter how small. No private monopoly should be allowed to obstruct the achievement of this important objective."

What Today Means to You

"SAGITTARIUS."

IF November 29 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 10:15 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. and from 2 p. m. to 3:30 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 12:30 p. m. to 1:30 p. m. and from 11 p. m. to midnight.

This date was meant for a time of pleasure, as a happy merry mood will be engendered by the auspicious influences which will be in force at this period. Emotions will be stimulated, lovers' quarrels will be made up and a good many matrimonial engagements will be made.

Children born on this November 29 will be wide awake, observant and interested in everything around them. They will have very retentive memories, will be studious, cautious and diligent. They will have considerable self-assurance.

You are inherently unsociable, and you seldom feel the want of companionship. You are self-centered, but are not particularly conceited. You thoroughly enjoy being alone in the contemplation of your thoughts and in reading. You are content with your home, your family, your work and your hobbies. You do not seek outside diversions. In this respect you are selfish, because you have a personality which is attractive, an interesting mind and an amiability which draws others to you. You have much to give, and there is certainly much to be received from social intercourse. You are very reticent, and only a few receive your confidences.

You take your responsibilities and duties seriously, and you never let any one down. You turn a deaf ear to flattery, and you can never be wheedled into doing something which does not interest or please you. You have your own decided views, and they are not easily changed. Those who understand your nature can always get along with you, but those who try to change you run up against your stubbornness. You are kind-hearted and generous and thoughtful to those who are near you. You are mentally ambitious but not materially so.

Dare Interprets the Mode

Paris, Nov. 28.

EVERY single solitary time I pack anything, from the last terrific packing of the tons upon tons of what was necessary for the wholesale exodus of one Dare La Chic Secretaire and Mamzelle from New York, to a single overnight bag, I am urged to wonder if 78 years is sufficient time in which to learn the art of packing!

Getting the certain necessary things into a certain allotted space, getting the particular things you are going to need immediately into the immediately available places—well, you know. And it just isn't a matter merely of not having room for things, either—because too much room is every bit as criminal as too little room in the final and ghastly results.

From long and ofttimes disastrous experience, let me here give you some bits of packing advice, which may save you from such calamities!

Leaving a hotel room or small apartment: Take everything out of every dresser drawer, closet or any covered up place of any sort, and put them on the bed. Close the drawers, closets, &c., and be satisfied then, not later, that there is nothing left in them.

Have plenty of tissue paper and some pieces of unbleached muslin. It is not only necessary to wrap fine things to keep them from coming into contact with other things, but it is necessary to wrap shoes and things of that sort as well to keep them from coming into contact with the delicate things.

Put squeezable and spillable things into wooden boxes and see that they are held firmly in the boxes with wads of paper. Remember it is not only liquids that spill—tubes of tooth paste and jars of cream have ways of emptying their contents in places where they are least appreciated.

And last, but not least, pack toward the sides of your suitcases, never in the middle, and then fill in the corners with small objects.

We'll tell you some more about different types of packing some other day.

We promised to tell you the rest of the story some day—that was last week, and just to s'prise you, we're just going to! Remember that Redfern dress with green crepe circular skirt and black satin blouse? Well, here it is, worn with its green crepe jacket. Hasn't it really a quiet air of its own?

Do you like the little designs we show in one corner of our sketches? There are lots of ways you can use them, you know! So we made up a leaflet of twenty of them, with the directions for transferring them and enlarging them. Twenty unusual designs for a stamped, self-addressed enveloped to the Dare Department of The Washington Post. Don't you think you might just send for the leaflet?

We hope by this time you have the habit of looking for the weekly Dare fashion letter in The Washington Post each Sunday. If you have not, you should.

Au Revoir!

WORK ON BRIDGE

Bridge Brevities, a pamphlet by Milton C. Work, the world's preeminent authority on Contract Bridge, free. This valuable pamphlet, containing concise suggestions for players of both games, will be sent with the compliments of this paper to readers of Mr. Work's articles who request it. Requests must be addressed to Milton C. Work, care of this paper, and must include a stamped (2c stamp), self-addressed return envelope. Read Mr. Work's articles on Auction and Contract, Every day exclusively in The Washington Post.

AT the end of the Contract article of Saturday last, I promised that this week I would report the sentiment of the country concerning artificial declarations in Contract. By artificial declarations I mean those which do not carry their real significance without a prior understanding between partners; in other words, declarations which do not mean what they say. Today I shall describe the six artificial declarations which have enough following to make them worthy of notice; and tomorrow, the objections raised against each of them will be stated.

1. Informatory doubles. Approved and used by practically everyone. These doubles have come to us from Auction Bridge and are readily adaptable to Contract. As the distinctions between informatory and business doubles are now generally understood, and as adversaries ask if in doubt which form of double is intended, the early objections to informatory doubles have practically disappeared, this item will be omitted from tomorrow's survey.

2. Overbids in the adverse suit to show no losing tricks (for example, a player bids two Spades and an opponent bids three Spades). That particular bid would mean that the bidder had a strong hand, and that no tricks would be lost in the Spade suit, i. e., the bidder either has the singleton Spade Ace, or is void of Spades and can trump them.

3. Ace-showing slam bids. These are bids made to show merely the presence of the Ace or King-Queen of that suit, and not a desire to play with that suit the trump. They do not take on their conventional meaning until after a certain preliminary stage of the bidding has been reached.

4. The Vanderbilt "Club convention." Under this system an original bid of one Club denotes certain strength, but has to be taken out because it has no meaning with reference to the Club suit. In this class also would come original bids which announce the Ace of the suit named, but not length in it, and convey some other specific information.

5. Showing two-suiters by the original bid of two of a minor; two Diamonds indicating Spades-Hearts, and two Clubs, Diamonds-Clubs.

6. "Forcing" or "demand" bids. The best-known of these is the original two-bid in a suit which shows strength in that suit and at the same time calls for a take-out by partner if the intervening opponent should pass.

Tomorrow I shall attempts to give an impartial report as to how these six conventions generally are regarded.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

ONLY one legitimate theater remained open to catch the after-dinner theater parties on Thanksgiving Day. The Belasco, housing Mr. Ernest Pascal's erotic play of the superintelligentsia, "The Amorous Antic," played to almost a capacity audience at the matinee and a goodly house at night. Frank Morgan and his fellow actors, what with early at the theater and late in the playhouse, had to grab their turkey dinners on the run. Pity the poor actors on holidays. At night the National offered stiff competition with "Wings Over Europe."

Fritzi Scheff has gloriously succeeding in doing what many of the wiseacres said was an impossibility in New York City or, in fact, in America—and that was to repeat a triumph achieved almost a quarter of a century before. As Fifi in Victor Herbert's tuneful masterpiece, "Mlle. Modiste," Fritzi created a furore when it was presented at the Columbia Theater away back in 1905. Only a few weeks ago, when it was again produced, she appeared as the vivacious and dynamic Fifi again and duplicated her triumph of former years. Her virility, verve and vivacity are as conspicuously dominant today as upon the night when Victor Herbert raised his baton and led the orchestra in the overture over at the Columbia.

When Fritzi Scheff appears here at Poli's Theater next week she will be supported by the entire New York company, including such well known local favorites as Detmar Poppen, Nathaniel Wagner, Allan Brooks, Arthur Burckly, Flavia Arcaro and Sarah Edwards. The Casino Theater production will be brought here intact; also the especially commented upon ensemble and the celebrated Albertina Rasch Ballet, with Marie Grimaldi as the premiere danseuse.

Not only that, the revival of "Mlle. Modiste" by Fritzi Scheff next week at Poli's brings back to this city a Washington girl, Miss Nina Florence Allen, who has been with the company ever since it opened on Broadway eight weeks ago. Miss Allen was born and raised in Washington, and attended Central High School, where she was an active member of the Dramatic Association, joining the Masks upon her graduation. After studying vocal for several years at the King-Smith Studio, she played for several weeks with the Savoy Musical Stock Co. at the Belasco last year. She is not a stranger to radio audiences, having sung over the air both here and in New York. A clever dancer, and possessing a pleasing personality, she is destined, in the opinion of her many friends here, to have a very successful future, so says Wallace Munro, the advance agent for "Mlle. Modiste," who is coming all the way from Philadelphia to be here at the opening of the revival Sunday night. On Tuesday afternoon, at 4:30, Miss Scheff will be guest of the National Press Club at a tea.

A British cabinet, seated in the council room, provides the unusual scenes in "Wings Over Europe," the play by Robert Nichols and Maurice Browne, produced by the Theater Guild at the National Theater.

There is no woman in the cast; the story deals with Lightfoot, the young inventor—the nephew of the prime minister—who has made a discovery that puts illimitable power in his hands. He can cure the ills of the world if he has money; but a battle of wills ensues. Pressure of every kind is brought to bear on him, and there is a dramatic denouement.

The setting of the cabinet council provides a theatrical novelty, as it is a close approximation to the actual cabinet council room at No. 10 Downing street, an address known to every history student.

Some of the recent audiences tried to identify the characters as living politicians; but the authors remain discreetly silent on this point. However, there is one who looks exactly like Ramsay MacDonald, the prime minister.

Notre Dame Band Plays Over Radio

Hoosier Musicians Will Be Heard Over WMAL Today; Rochester Symphony 3.15; Breakfast Brevities 8:15 A. M.

When the "Fighting Irish" of Notre Dame University trek eastwards from Indiana for the annual gridiron classic with Army the squad will be accompanied by members of the 60-piece Notre Dame Band, who this morning, the day before the game, will give a special half-hour program over the Columbia Broadcasting System's network, beginning at 11 o'clock.

The program by the Hoosier lads will consist of the college's songs and cheers, with special emphasis on the football numbers that will be presented tomorrow at the game.

The Rochester Symphony Orchestra is one fo the outstanding offerings from WRC today, playing from the studios of WHAM, Rochester, between 3:15 and 4:15 o'clock. The "First Symphony" of Sibelius, the Finnish composer, will be played. Sibelius' music is national in character and even his sympathies reflect his love for Finland in their use of folk themes. So strong is the nationalist note in his work that when Finland was still a province of Czarist Russia the authorities forbade the performance of his music, especially "Finlandia," because it excited aspirations for freedom on the part of his countrymen.

Eugene Goossens directs the orchestra, which will play also the overture to "Fingal's Cave" (Mendelssohn) and the aria "Eri Tu" (Verdi).

The regular N. B. C. Music Appreciation hour, conducted by Dr. Walter Damrosch, will be omitted this morning because of the Thanksgiving holiday in the schools.

Chinese scales and rhythms are employed to convey the atmosphere of the queer and crooked alleys depicted in Emerson Whithorne's "Pell Street," which will be heard in the concert to be broadcast at 8 o'clock by the Cities Service Concert Orchestra. The composition suggests the hurry and bustle of New York's Chinese quarter. Whithorne, a native of Cleveland, is one of the best known of the younger American composers. The Cavaliers will sing "Dear Old Girl," "Lamp in the West" and "Sweetest Story Ever Told," while two xylophone solos have been arranged—"Liebesfreud" (Kreisler) and "Turkish Patrol" (Mozart). Other orchestral selections include "Radium Dance" (Schwartz), "Pale Moon" (Logan), selections from "Very Good, Eddie," "Love's Dream After the Ball," "Aubade Printaniere" (Lacome), and "Marche Burlesque."

Southern melodies, talking picture theme songs and Negro spirituals will be blended by Billy Artz's Orchestra and the Hallelujah Singers, a male quartet, in the Planters Pickers program at 10 o'clock from WRC. "Jubilee," an old spiritual, will be played in a popular orchestral version.

"Christmas Seals and the Public Health" is the subject to be discussed by Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming from the studios of WRC at 7:15 o'clock.

The dinner given in honor of William Muldoon famous sportsman, on his eighty-fifth birthday at the Hotel Biltmore, in New York, will be broadcast at 6:30 o'clock by Station WJZ, New York.

The overture to "Der Erlenhuegel," by Kuhlau, is revived in the period of slumber music which Ludwig Laurier and a string ensemble will broadcast at 11 o'clock from WJZ and WLW. Other selections are "Rheinklaenge-Lorelei" (Strauss), a portion of "The Bohemian Girl" (Balfe), "The Poet's Dream" (MacDowell), and "Indian Lullaby" (Klemm).

"Breakfast Brevities" from The Post will be transmitted by Station WOL at 8:15 o'clock this morning. Peggy Clarke's daily household chat will be heard at the regular hour, with the newly started feature, "Half Hour With Famous Composers," scheduled for 11:30 o'clock.

The dedication of the Rodin Museum, founded by the late Jules E. Mastbaum, will be broadcast from Philadelphia at 3 o'clock this afternoon through Station WMAL.

The program to be broadcast from the same station at 8 o'clock will present Waller and Razof, authors of "Hot Chocolates" and other plays; Markaret Speaks and Helen House and Georgie Price. Mr Price has prepared a special comedy skit for this broadcast and will be heard in his version of what goes on in a "talkie" studio.

Another program originating in Philadelphia will be broadcast locally by WMAL at 10:30 o'clock, when the Curtis Institute of Music program is heard.

Uncle Ray's Corner

Sending Radio Pictures

IN APRIL, 1927, a public test was made of an invention which should some day make the radio at least twice as interesting. In that test, carried on in the eastern part of the United States, a human face was seen at a distance of 300 miles. The face moved and spoke words. It was not a very clear face, but it was clear enough to make those who saw it gasp with wonder.

The face—the moving face—had been sent out by radio!

Yesterday I spoke of the way sound waves are turned into radio waves. Then they travel, at the speed of light, until they are caught by radio receiving sets, and are turned back into sound waves.

It is very much the same thing with the radio picture invention; but in this case light waves are turned into radio waves and then are turned back into light waves when they reach the station.

Before the light waves are changed in the first place, they pass through small holes in a revolving wheel. In one form of the invention there are 50 holes in the wheel, and it turns around 18 times per second. Then the light waves pass through electric instruments and are shot into space. They may reach people hundreds of miles away in any direction, provided those people have the right kind of receiving sets.

The great trouble with this new invention is that it costs so much. Only a small part of the population could afford to have picture-receiving sets as they are made today.

It is quite likely that within a few years ways will be found to build the receiving sets in a simpler manner. Then the radio picture sets may become as common as sound sets are today.

Think of being able to watch a football game while it is going on! We shall hear the sounds, and see the players run!

It may be that the Hollywood movie stars will give us their plays while they are being made; but more likely we shall obtain only glimpses of the plays to prepare us to pay to see them when the picture comes to the theater. At any rate, we may expect radio movies in the home before many years shall pass.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

NOVEMBER 29.

LOUISA MAY ALCOTT, author of that famous book, "Little Women," was born this day, 1832. This work, which appeared in 1868, still remains one of the best books in American literature. It promptly gave Miss Alcott a foremost place in the ranks of American authors. "Little Women" is regarded as the world-photograph of the New England home and the American girl. A whole generation of girls loved the characters of the book.

Miss Alcott was the daughter of Amos Bronson Alcott, eminent American philosopher and educator. She started writing at 16 to help support the family. Other books from her pen include "Jack and Jill," "Spinning-Wheel Stories," "Under the Lilacs" and "Rose in Bloom."

Trixie Friganza, noted American actress and singer, was born this day, 1870. More recently she has been a headliner in vaudeville.

Other noted women born this day include Ellen Clara Sabin, president emeritus of Milwaukee-Downer College, 1850, and Grace King, American writer, 1859.

Telephone Company in Radio Fight

Litigation Over Patents Seen as Drawing in American Company Which Controls Amplifying Apparatus.

The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. has been drawn into the radio patent fight between the Radio Corporation of America and associated independent radio manufacturers with the formation of the Audio Research Foundation, an Illinois Corporation, with headquarters in Chicago and an office in Washington. The new angle of the battle is concerned with the manufacture of amplifying apparatus, for which the telephone company controls the outstanding patents.

Although the brief announcement of the incorporation of the Audio Research Foundation said nothing of any connection between the new organization and the Radio Protective Association, it is held significant that Ernest Reichmann, of Chicago, is general counsel for both associations and that Oswald F. Schuette, executive secretary of the latter group, is also public relations counsel for the new foundation.

The Audio Research Foundation was formed by the leading independent manufacturers in the amplification field and in the radio industry. The announcement says: "It proposes to bring about cooperation among these manufacturers for the purpose of a comprehensive investigation of the art, as well as of the patents in this field. This work will be in the hands of experts of international reputation."

Heretofore the appellations of "radio trust" have been hurled by the independent manufacturers at the Radio Corporation only. With the broadening of the fight to the amplifier field, the new organization will doubtless also seek to have the Senate committee on interstate commerce and the Department of Justice investigate the latter industry as the Radio Protective Association has been doing in the strictly radio field.

Cy Colby, former president of the Radio Manufacturers Association, who is one of the sponsors of the new movement, made the following statement coincident with the announcement of the creation of the foundation:

"The cost of audio amplification equipment for schools, churches, theaters, halls and other users of public address systems can and should be within the financial reach of every American community, no matter how small. No private monopoly should be allowed to obstruct the achievement of this important objective."

What Today Means to You

"SAGITTARIUS."

IF November 29 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 10:15 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. and from 2 p. m. to 3:30 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 12:30 p. m. to 1:30 p. m. and from 11 p. m. to midnight.

This date was meant for a time of pleasure, as a happy merry mood will be engendered by the auspicious influences which will be in force at this period. Emotions will be stimulated, lovers' quarrels will be made up and a good many matrimonial engagements will be made.

Children born on this November 29 will be wide awake, observant and interested in everything around them. They will have very retentive memories, will be studious, cautious and diligent. They will have considerable self-assurance.

You are inherently unsociable, and you seldom feel the want of companionship. You are self-centered, but are not particularly conceited. You thoroughly enjoy being alone in the contemplation of your thoughts and in reading. You are content with your home, your family, your work and your hobbies. You do not seek outside diversions. In this respect you are selfish, because you have a personality which is attractive, an interesting mind and an amiability which draws others to you. You have much to give, and there is certainly much to be received from social intercourse. You are very reticent, and only a few receive your confidences.

You take your responsibilities and duties seriously, and you never let any one down. You turn a deaf ear to flattery, and you can never be wheedled into doing something which does not interest or please you. You have your own decided views, and they are not easily changed. Those who understand your nature can always get along with you, but those who try to change you run up against your stubbornness. You are kind-hearted and generous and thoughtful to those who are near you. You are mentally ambitious but not materially so.

Dare Interprets the Mode

Paris, Nov. 28.

EVERY single solitary time I pack anything, from the last terrific packing of the tons upon tons of what was necessary for the wholesale exodus of one Dare La Chic Secretaire and Mamzelle from New York, to a single overnight bag, I am urged to wonder if 78 years is sufficient time in which to learn the art of packing!

Getting the certain necessary things into a certain allotted space, getting the particular things you are going to need immediately into the immediately available places—well, you know. And it just isn't a matter merely of not having room for things, either—because too much room is every bit as criminal as too little room in the final and ghastly results.

From long and ofttimes disastrous experience, let me here give you some bits of packing advice, which may save you from such calamities!

Leaving a hotel room or small apartment: Take everything out of every dresser drawer, closet or any covered up place of any sort, and put them on the bed. Close the drawers, closets, &c., and be satisfied then, not later, that there is nothing left in them.

Have plenty of tissue paper and some pieces of unbleached muslin. It is not only necessary to wrap fine things to keep them from coming into contact with other things, but it is necessary to wrap shoes and things of that sort as well to keep them from coming into contact with the delicate things.

Put squeezable and spillable things into wooden boxes and see that they are held firmly in the boxes with wads of paper. Remember it is not only liquids that spill—tubes of tooth paste and jars of cream have ways of emptying their contents in places where they are least appreciated.

And last, but not least, pack toward the sides of your suitcases, never in the middle, and then fill in the corners with small objects.

We'll tell you some more about different types of packing some other day.

We promised to tell you the rest of the story some day—that was last week, and just to s'prise you, we're just going to! Remember that Redfern dress with green crepe circular skirt and black satin blouse? Well, here it is, worn with its green crepe jacket. Hasn't it really a quiet air of its own?

Do you like the little designs we show in one corner of our sketches? There are lots of ways you can use them, you know! So we made up a leaflet of twenty of them, with the directions for transferring them and enlarging them. Twenty unusual designs for a stamped, self-addressed enveloped to the Dare Department of The Washington Post. Don't you think you might just send for the leaflet?

We hope by this time you have the habit of looking for the weekly Dare fashion letter in The Washington Post each Sunday. If you have not, you should.

WORK ON BRIDGE

Bridge Brevities, a pamphlet by Milton C. Work, the world's preeminent authority on Contract Bridge, free. This valuable pamphlet, containing concise suggestions for players of both games, will be sent with the compliments of this paper to readers of Mr. Work's articles who request it. Requests must be addressed to Milton C. Work, care of this paper, and must include a stamped (2c stamp), self-addressed return envelope. Read Mr. Work's articles on Auction and Contract, Every day exclusively in The Washington Post.

At the end of the Contract article of Saturday last, I promised that this week I would report the sentiment of the country concerning artificial declarations in Contract. By artificial declarations I mean those which do not carry their real significance without a prior understanding between partners; in other words, declarations which do not mean what they say. Today I shall describe the six artificial declarations which have enough following to make them worthy of notice; and tomorrow, the objections raised against each of them will be stated.

1. Informatory doubles. Approved and used by practically everyone. These doubles have come to us from Auction Bridge and are readily adaptable to Contract. As the distinctions between informatory and business doubles are now generally understood, and as adversaries ask if in doubt which form of double is intended, the early objections to informatory doubles have practically disappeared, this item will be omitted from tomorrow's survey.

2. Overbids in the adverse suit to show no losing tricks (for example, a player bids two Spades and an opponent bids three Spades). That particular bid would mean that the bidder had a strong hand, and that no tricks would be lost in the Spade suit, i. e., the bidder either has the singleton Spade Ace, or is void of Spades and can trump them.

3. Ace-showing slam bids. These are bids made to show merely the presence of the Ace or King-Queen of that suit, and not a desire to play with that suit the trump. They do not take on their conventional meaning until after a certain preliminary stage of the bidding has been reached.

4. The Vanderbilt "Club convention." Under this system an original bid of one Club denotes certain strength, but has to be taken out because it has no meaning with reference to the Club suit. In this class also would come original bids which announce the Ace of the suit named, but not length in it, and convey some other specific information.

5. Showing two-suiters by the original bid of two of a minor; two Diamonds indicating Spades-Hearts, and two Clubs, Diamonds-Clubs.

6. "Forcing" or "demand" bids. The best-known of these is the original two-bid in a suit which shows strength in that suit and at the same time calls for a take-out by partner if the intervening opponent should pass.

Tomorrow I shall attempt to give an impartial report as to how these six conventions generally are regarded.

The game was not five minutes old before Catholic had accumulated 9 points. Oliver cantered through center for 14 yards and De Mello slipped through tackle for 6 yards and a touchdown. Murphy place-kicked the goal.

George Washington had the ball deep in its own territory after the next kick-off as the result of the penalty and McGrew, attempting to punt from behind the goal line, fumbled the center's bad pass and was tackled for a safety by Zeno.

C. U. Fumble Paves Way for Touchdown.

Before the first quarter ended, Oliver returned a punt 29 yards to the 1-foot line and on the next play he lateral passed to Murphy for the second and final touchdown of the period.

With the start of the second quarter, George Washington launched a march that netted three successive first downs but it ended when Clapper's pass fell over the line for a touch back and then Catholic countered with its lone goal of the period. De Mello, sweeping around end and cutting through tackle, bore the brunt of this advance and then Murphy launched a 25-yard pass to Oliver who stepped over the line with the ball. Murphy place kicked the point, boosting the score to 23-0 at the half.

A fumble recovered by George Washington on Catholic's 25-yard line at the start of the third quarter paved the way for the Colonials' lone touchdown. Gates received a pass for a 25-yard gain and then he fell back and tossed one to Francis who caught the ball a foot from the goal and skidded across the line. Hoffman's attempt to place kick the point was wide.

Gerth Takes Pass; Runs 40 Yards.

But Catholic offset this goal with one of its own less than a minute later. On the first play after the kickoff, Murphy tossed a long aerial to Gerth who galloped 40 yards across the line, untouched by a Colonial hand. Murphy missed the kick for point.

Taking the ball deep in its own territory, Catholic launched another successful drive featured by a sensational gallop of 60 yards by De Mello who outspeeded both ends and secondary to place the ball 20 yards from the goal. The next play was a pass from Murphy to Bonnetti who caught the ball over the line in a falling dive just before the quarter ended.

Catholic added two touchdowns in the fourth quarter, the first featured by a 30-yard pass from Oliver to Gerth who ran 30 yards farther to the 5-yard line. A penalty set C. U. back but Oliver dashed off tackle for the score. O'Connor place-kicked the goal.

Gaining possession of the ball again, Catholic scored immediately. Oliver passing 30 yards to McGrath to the 11-yard line. Oliver knifed through tackle for the final touchdown. O'Connor missing the kick for the extra point.

hero of Maryland's 13-13 tie with Yale three weeks ago, registered the last three touchdowns, all after long sustained attacks combining line bucks, tackle slants, end runs and forward passes. The final six pointer finished a drive of 80 yards with Berger catching a 20-yard toss from Settino and running 10 yards over the goal line.

Coach Byrd showed a wealth of backfield talent, May, Berger, Settino, Pitzer and Roberts performing brilliantly in the roles of substitutes for the regulars, Evans, Miller and Chalmers and Radice. By giving his regulars, both backs and linemen, a rest today, the Maryland mentor saved some strength for the important clash a week from Saturday with the unbeaten, untied Western Maryland eleven. The game will decide the State championship.

a teammate already over the C. U goal or waiting to carry the ball over the last white line. The only G. W. score not registered as the culmination of a pass from Wells was made by Crandall, Buff and Blue center, who broke through to block a C. U. kick attempted on the Cardinal 5-yard line, and then fell on the ball over the Brooklanders' goal.

Vogts Good in Brother Act for G. W.

Al Vogt and Bill Vogt, brothers stationed on each end of the G. W. Freshman team, also played a prominent part in the triumph, snagging passes from the aforementioned Wells all afternoon, while continually breaking up would-be rushes of the LaFond gang, directed at their position. "Bugs" Bagranoff, sturdy guard of the G. W. team also played bang-up ball for the winners, and his interception of an enemy pass started the eventual winners on the way to their first touchdown.

Colonial supporters had not long to wait before given a chance to cheer, for after Bagranoff's interception of a pass in the first two minutes of play, the Buff and Blue youngsters started on their way to the first score. One of the patented Wells' passes took the ball over the C. U. line for the first tally.

From then on, it was all G. W. with the C. U. line unable to hold the Buff and Blue ball carriers, or break up the George Washington passes. Indeed, it was a dreary day all-around for the C. U. Freshmen until Sheary snatched the opening kick-off of the second half and eluding every G. W. player, dashed 80 yards up the field for one of his team's two scores. It was a beautiful run, and probably provided the greatest single thrill of the game.

No G. W. Punt Needed Until Third Quarter.

With the G. W. Team in possession of the ball most of the time, the downtown team had its own way practically throughout the afternoon. An indication of their superiority is clearly seen when it is realized that a G. W. punt was not forthcoming as it was unneeded, until the third quarter, when Carlin kicked from deep in his own territory for the first time during the afternoon. The defensive play of the George Washington line was superb. Colonial forwards breaking through time and again to toss opponents for heavy losses, while breaking up the most intricate passes of the C. U. Team.

to be somewhat crippled from the effects of the determined manner in which he was brought to earth time after time in the final half. By contrast, Masters threatened to get away every time he caught one of Stevens' punts, averaging around 30 yards for all returns, as the Cornell ends were blocked out.

Penn registered nine first downs to eight for Cornell. The Quakers, with Masters, and Genile on the loose, did not need to use their aerial weapons, completing only one pass out of four attempted. Cornell's passing game was ineffective for the first time this season, only two issues out of 11 being completed.

French turned in his day's work for State in the second quarter. In four plays, after taking the ball from Pitt on downs on her own 43-yard line, Penn State scored her points.

French took a pass from Diedrich that covered 24 yards to Pitt's 33-yard line. Two plunges took the leather to the 26-yard mark and on the next play French passed neatly to Stahley over the Pitt goal line.

Parkinson swung into real action in the second half. Carrying the ball 11 out of 16 plays in a march that covered 84 yards, Parkinson smashed over for his second touchdown and, with the aid of Uansa, scored the third in the final quarter. Twice more he led Husky marches, but passes failed at critical moments.

Pitt outgained the Lions widely, scoring 23 first downs to 7 for State. The Lions completed five in 11 passes for 53 yards of gains while both of Pitt's tries failed.

With the season completed victoriously, Pittsburgh now waits invitations for postseason combat. Pitt officials said an invitation to represent the East against the pick of the West in the annual Tournament of Roses game in Pasadena, Calif., New Year's Day, would be welcomed. Thus far no invitation has been received, they said.

CATHOLIC U. AMASSES 48-6 VICTORY OVER COLONIALS; GENTLE RUNS 102 YARDS AS PENN BEATS CORNELL, 17-7

70,000 SEE QUAKERS RALLY AND WIN GAME AFTER TRAILING, 7-0

Cornell's Air Game Is Failure; Masters Runs 50 Yards.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

FRANKLIN FIELD, Philadelphia, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Pennsylvania's rapid-fire running attack, set off by a scintillating 102-yard dash from kick-off by Dick Gentle at the start of the third period, swept Cornell to defeat, 17 to 7, today before a Thanksgiving Day throng of 70,000.

Gentle's great run, one of the longest of the year on any gridiron, enabled Pennsylvania to tie the score in short order after the Quakers had been outplayed throughout the first half. Thereafter, Gentle and his versatile running mate, Walt Masters, ran Cornell ragged with dazzling speed and a sharp-hitting offense.

Before the close of the third period, Penn had scored another touchdown, with Gentle taking the ball over on a short buck after Masters had raced 50 yards from fake punt formation to make the job fairly easy for his running mate. Masters topped off his brilliant all-around work by booting a beautiful field goal from placement at the start of the final period with the ball on Cornell's 18-yard line.

Cornell Takes Lead in Second Period.

Cornell put up a game, gallant fight, taking the lead on the first play of the second period when Howard Johnson flipped a short pass to Miles Stevens, who stepped across the goal line after the Ithacans had marched 50 yards on straight off-tackle rushes.

The Red forces hung tenaciously to this advantage throughout the half, although they nearly lost it as Penn, on a sudden lateral passing spurt, swept 70 yards and failed to get a touchdown only because of an offside penalty on a play which saw Masters circle end and dash 22 yards across the goal.

From the start of the final half, however, Cornell was unable to stop the wild dashes of Gentle and Masters, two young ball carriers who decided to go places and do things. On Capt. Sam Wakeman's kick-off, Gentle fumbled the ball at first, scooped it up a stride behind his own goal line and then started a zigzig dash to a touchdown. He hit for the side lines, whirled and squirmed and was almost in the clear as he reached midfield. There it took a supreme lunge to avoid a desperate tackle by Howard Johnson, Cornell quarter back, but Gentle slid past, again reversed and sped across the goal to a tumult of cheers.

Masters Makes 50-Yard Run.

It was Masters' turn to do something for the Red and Blue. Shortly afterward, he accepted the responsibility by faking a punt on fourth down, with the ball on his own 40-yard line and then racing 50 yards around Cornell's right end. He was prevented from scoring then and there only by a great tackle from behind by Hunt, Cornell lineman, who cut in and nabbed the fleet Penn back after H. Johnson had been straight armed out of the play. Gentle took the ball over in three rushes and Masters again kicked the extra point.

Masters, whose punting and running back of kicks was sensational all afternoon, placed-kicked a field goal from Cornell's 18-yard line at the start of the fourth period after a Cornell fumble had been recovered by Gervin, Penn end, on the Red 27-yard line. Gervin and his mate on the other end of the line, Riblett, did some spectacular tackling, especially in going down under Masters' punts.

Johnson Unable To Get Loose.

Gentle Chosen Penn Captain After Dash

Philadelphia, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Dick Gentle, of Brookline, Mass., flashy Pennsylvania half back, was elected captain of the 1930 team today after featuring his team's triumph over Cornell with a 102-yard run for touchdown. Gentle is also a hurdler on the Quaker track team.

MARYLAND U. TRIUMPHS, 39 TO 6

Hopkins Routed But Scores Goal on 100-Yard Trick Play.

(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

BALTIMORE STADIUM, BALTIMORE, MD., Nov. 28.—When the Johns Hopkins Bluejay and the Maryland Raven tangle in annual football combat, Baltimore fans look for surprises. They gathered here today, 15,000 with turkey gravy freezing on their lips, to watch the twenty-fifth renewal of this famous feud, and they came not in vain.

Maryland easily won by the score of 39 to 6 for its eleventh triumph of the series, which evened Hopkins' victory total, but it remained for the distressed Bluejay, a pitiable creature after a long succession of beatings this season, to uncork the one big thrill of the game, a touchdown play that covered 100 yards. Merriwell was put to shame.

Receiving the kick-off on his goal line following Maryland's initial score in the first two minutes, Dip Mills, Hopkins full back, tucked the leather under his arms and ran swiftly to the 10-yard line, where his teammates had massed for interference. All save one got into this human wall—all but Jack Turnbull, left half back—who was acting under orders of the wily Ray Van Orman, Hopkins coach, who always manufactures a trick for a game with Maryland.

Mills, Near Side Line, Unnoticed.

With the Maryland players charging into the crowd of Hopkins interferers hoping to nail Mills, Turnbull sneaked over toward the side line unnoticed, and then, at the 20-yard line, Mills flipped him the ball laterally.

In a flash, Turnbull was off down the field with nothing but Maryland's goal ahead of him. The astonished Ravens had been completely fooled, some even tackling Mills in the belief he had the ball. And before a single Marylander realized what had happened, Turnbull was at midfield. From there it was simply a matter of stepping off the remaining yardage as three Hopkins men gathered behind the ball carrier to protect him from desperate foemen trying to make belated tackle from the rear.

It mattered little to Hopkins rooters what happened after that, for they had come resigned to a Maryland victory. The Ravens rallied before the half was over and scored their second touchdown to gain a lead of 14 to 6.

Evans scored both touchdowns and Chalmers both extra points for Maryland in the first half. The initial score resulted from a drive of 31 yards and the second on a march of 45.

Maryland Subs Used in Third Quarter.

Coach Curley Byrd relieved most of his regulars midway in the third quarter and by the time the final whistle blew an entire substitute team performed for Maryland.

Charlie May, former Business High School star, now a second string Maryland halfback, scored the third touchdown at the conclusion of a 45-yard parade in the third period, while Bozie Berger, another sub, and the

102-Yard Run Fails To Score Touchdown

Davidson, N. C., Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Capt. Thad Brock, of Davidson College, made a run of 102 yards yet failed to score a touchdown today as the Wildcats defeated Duke University, 13 to 12. Brock, playing at end, was called back in punt formation in the second period after Davidson stopped a Duke offensive just short of a touchdown. Instead of punting, Brock took the ball from 8 yards behind his own goal and ran it to Duke's 6-yard line. McQueen, a substitute back, plunged it over from there for what proved the winning touchdown.

Davidson had taken a seven-point lead in the opening period on a 45-yard run for a touchdown by McCall and a placement kick for the extra point by Brock. Duke with a much heavier team gained ground freely in midfield, but failed to develop a scoring punch except on two occasions. Buie, Duke half back, missed drop-kick tries for both.

Game Becomes Rout Early; Colonials Score on Pass.

(Sports Editor of The Post).

A CRISP Thanksgiving Day with the air smacking strongly of football sent 5,000 devotees out to Brookland Stadium, notched in the side of one of the surrounding hills at Catholic University. This was the setting for Washington's strictly local contest of the season, and the green-tiered seats at either end of the big bowl blended well with the gray-brown slopes, bereft of their summer foliage, overlooking the gridiron sunk in the center of the inclosure.

The football game was a triumph for the experts. Catholic University's team rent George Washington from wing to wishbone as predicted and scored a victory by the large and luscious figures of 48 to 6, the most severe beating to which a Colonial Team has ever submitted at the hands of their traditional Brookland rivals.

But withal, there was the spirit of Thanksgiving attendant. Catholic U. is duly thankful for the opportunity to better its 40-8 victory of last season. The other obligations of the Brooklanders escape memory for the moment, but George Washington has much to be thankful for. George Washington gives thanks that there was but one Oliver on the Brookland Eleven and but one De Mello and one Murphy. Had there been more of this specie, the score might well have been in three figures.

C. U. Touchdowns Follow In Rapid Order.

Touchdown followed touchdown as the experts revelled in their forecast of an overwhelming Catholic University victory. And there was a safety to vary the monotony of the proceedings, albeit also in favor of the Cardinals. Here was a shining instance of "dope" running true to form as a powerful Catholic University Eleven raced through a ragged George Washington defence to gain a 23-0 lead before the first half ended and maintain its scoring pace throughout the second and third quarters.

George Washington did score, as indicated by the final result. It was Francis, an end, who skidded across the line for a touchdown after a gain of 18 yards. This was one of the two serious scoring threats that the Colonials were able to make during an afternoon which found them almost strictly on the defense.

At quarter back for Catholic U. was Oliver, bare headed, black-haired bounding boy of the gridiron. He scored three touchdowns and was the pet aversion of the George Washington defense by right of his flying feet and hoola-hoola hips. He scampered through the George Washington line and around its ends and beyond the secondary defense like some scared rabbit turned loose. He carried the ball in one hand and fended off tacklers with the other with such effect that Coach McAuliffe withdrew him from the contest during the first half, assured that the game was safely won.

Gates' Pass Nets Lone G. W. Score.

The George Washington team that went into the game seeking its first victory of the 1929 season is still seeking it. Except for a brief onslaught in the second quarter when three first downs were scored in succession, the Colonials were helpless on the attack until Gates tossed the pass to Francis that accounted for their lone touchdown.

Clapper, of all the men in the Colonial back field, was able to gain consistently, and he, too, was halted when the situation became ominous. The game was Catholic's from the outset and with Oliver and De Mello toting the ball for long stretches and Gene Murphy heaving passes as only Murphy can toss them in the Brookland bowl, Catholic proceeded to in-

33-13 VICTORY SCORED BY G. W. CUBS

Catholic U. Yearlings Routed by Colonials as Wells Stars.

By WILLIAM F. DISMER, JR.

A SENSATIONAL freshman eleven from George Washington University that continually played rings around a traditional foe at Catholic University, gave students of the former school ample reason to cheer 'midst the otherwise prevailing gloom yesterday, as it took the yearling team of the Brookland Institution into camp by the overwhelming score of 33-13.

The defeat administered by the G. W. Yearlings was the first inflicted on a C. U. freshman eleven in two years and gave the downtown aggregation a brilliant record of six victories out of seven starts during the current campaign. A 1-point defeat suffered at the hands of Western Maryland's freshman team was the only blot on an otherwise perfect Colonial record.

Knowing that their older brothers, the "big" team, had little chance of upsetting the Cardinal varsity of the Brookland School, the Buff and Blue youngsters tore into their hosts from the very outset of hostilities, which started around 12:30 yesterday, and clearly demonstrated they were a group to be heavily counted upon when summing up the gridiron chances of G. W. for future years.

Young Colonials Outclass C. U. Rivals.

Although the G.W. coach, Max Farrington sent 11 true and tried performers on the field, several of the downtown boys stood out head and shoulders above their teammates and were ever distinguished by the brilliant exhibitions which they put up against the Catholics. Billy Wells, crack signal caller of the G. W. Freshmen, was perhaps the outstanding player on the winning team, leading the offense throughout, and exhibiting an unerring accuracy in tossing forward passes which played a large part in the G. W. victory.

Of the five George Washington touchdowns, four were scored as the results of Wells' heaves which found

HOWARD TIES LINCOLN ELEVEN

Bisons Halt Lions Four Times Near Goal Line.

Special to The Washington Post.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28.—Favored by improved handling, and required to concede lumps of weight, although trailing off the pace throughout, the Howard University Bisons held the Lincoln Lions to a scoreless tie here today before 13,000 fans.

Lincoln had entered the game with a five-point call with the Bisons secretly hoping to win against the staggering odds.

Four times the Lincoln aggregation placed the ball within a brief space of Howard's goal line, and four times the Bisons held with gameness and stoutness, while the Lincoln Lions collapsed when the final test faced them.

Lee kicked off to Harmon, who ran the ball back 20 yards to the 40-yard line. A series of fumbles, off-side plays and penalties followed, principally to Howard's advantage. As the end of the first quarter neared it appeared that the Bisons had overcome their early nervousness, however. They held Lincoln for downs, with 2 yards to go. Although Marshall fumbled when given the ball, Lee recovered and Marshall went through center for 2 yards and again through center for the first down.

Lincoln Scoring Bids Halted.

The Lions came on in determination in the second quarter and started a march down the field. Harmon fumbled within sight of the goal, however, and lost the chance to score.

The Lions' last desperate effort was made in the last minute of play. A pass by Harmon, incomplete, was followed by another to Baskerville, the most spectacular of the day, for 40 yards, the runner being downed on Howard's 30-yard line as the final gun brought cheer to the Blue and White and at least a moral victory.

Howard made two first downs to Lincoln's nine, but was penalized only 10 yards to Lincoln's 45. Howard completed one pass, while Lincoln completed 7. Lincoln gained 415 yards in scrimmage to Howard's 49, and Anderson outkicked Marshall at every exchange of punting.

Miami Eleven Wins From Cincinnati, 14-6

Cincinnati, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Miami always held the upper hand, but had a difficult time defeating Cincinnati, 14 to 6, in their Thanksgiving Day game here today.

Cincinnati threatened to take the lead away from Miami, but twice was held for downs, once on the 3-yard line and again on the 6-inch mark.

Dunlap Star as Tornado Flattens Auburn, 19-6

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Georgia Tech's Golden Tornado rode to a convincing victory over a stubborn Auburn Eleven today on the fleet feet of Earl Dunlap, junior quarter back.

Two touchdowns by Dunlap, after brilliant runs of 31 and 70 yards, and a goal after touchdown by Stumpy Thomason furnished the margin in the 19-to-6 win.

Parkinson Stars as Pitt Conquers Penn State, 20-7

Big Full Back Romps Through Line, Scoring 3 Touchdowns as Panthers Maintain Clean Record.

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—The Golden Panthers of Pittsburgh, gridiron champions of the East, gave thanks tonight for the might of Burly Tom Parkinson and a season of uninterrupted victory he brought to a smashing climax today with an almost single-handed triumph over Penn State.

Racing from one end of the huge, bitterly cold Pitt Stadium to the other, crunching his way through the strongest eleven the Nittany Lion has brought here in ten years, the 200-pound full back tore the Penn State line to pieces, scored three touchdowns, and kicked two goals afterward to count every Pittsburgh point in a throbbing 20-to-7 victory. It was a personal triumph for the pugnacious one, playing his last regular game for Pittsburgh, overlooked and completely overshadowed in pregame forecasts by the brilliant record of his half back running mate, Toby Uansa.

But today Pittsburgh was Parkinson and the flashy Toby, a hero all season and major all-American candidate, was just another football player. Only once did Uansa break clear of Penn State's fierce ends, Niel Stahley and Meyer Kaplan, and the powerful Nittany tackles, Cal Shawley and Ralph Ricker, for an important gain.

In the final quarter, when the gallant State line had been battered to its knees under Parkinson's terrific lunges, Toby turned an end run for 36 yards. Parkinson then took up the burden again, and in five plunges smashed through the Nittany guards for the final touchdown.

Penn State, throttling Uansa down the field on every kick, and vulnerable only to Parkinson's smashes through the middle, threw a decided scare into Pittsburgh in the first half, due to the brilliant play of Cooper French, a fine quarter back, and Frank Diedrich, a half back.

For the first time since Bob Higgins took a pass behind his own goal line and ran 100 yards for a touchdown in 1919, a Penn State team led the Panthers at half time 7 to 6. It was the first time Pittsburgh has been behind in a season marked by major victories over Duke, Nebraska, West Virginia, Washington and Jefferson, Ohio State, and Carnegie Tech. So excited was the Penn State horde among the 30,000 huddled in the freezing stands and intermittent snow squalls, that hotel keepers were reported leaving in a hurry to guard their possessions against the expected rush of the Lions frenzied celebrations. Penn State's celebration never took place, however.

After Parkinson battered his way, with a little help from Uansa and Walchinus, for a touchdown after the opening kick-off on a drive that started on the Panther 41-yard line,

TECH ELEVEN GIVEN 32-7 DEFEAT

Staunton M.A. Squad Routs High School Series Champs.

Special to The Washington Post.

STAUNTON, Va., Nov. 28.—Outweighed by 20 pounds to a man, a plucky Tech High School Eleven went down to defeat before one of the greatest teams ever to represent the Staunton Military Academy on the gridiron here this afternoon by the score of 32 to 7. The score does not indicate the brilliant game the Maroon lads put up against the Soldiers. After a shaky start, in which the academy scored 12 points in the first four plays of the game, Coach Hardell's fighting youngsters flashed an excellent performance, climaxing their comeback effort by scoring late in the final period on three successive passes by Spencer to Goss, Hoy and Benner, the final heave being a beauty, good for 40 yards and a touchdown. This marked the second time Staunton's goal line has been crossed in nine games. Benner kicked goal.

Staunton started with a rush. After Kolker had kicked over the goal line, Macaninch, who starred during the entire game, took the ball on the second play and ran 68 yards to a touchdown around right end. Tech kicked off again, and on the second play thereafter Chapman, huge 210-pound full back of the home eleven, broke through the center of the line to run 75 yards for the second touchdown in less than two minutes.

Goss' Fumble Helpful To Staunton.

Tech fought its heavier opponents to a standstill for the remainder of the half, Goss' fumble being responsible for Staunton's other touchdown in the second period. Yznaga broke through Staunton's heavy line for 18 yards as the half ended.

Macaninch featured the second half attack of the victors, contributing a brilliant 40-yard run for a touchdown, and figuring prominently in the drive in the fourth period when Burton went over for the final score. At this stage Tech opened up its brilliant forward-pass attack that netted it a well-earned touchdown.

Capt. Benner, Goldman and Kolker starred on defense for the Washington nine, while Spencer uncovered some marvelous passing. This contest ends the season for Staunton with a clean record.

MISSTEP WINS $10,000 THANKSGIVING HANDICAP

Dr. Freeland Barely Fails To Win

Workman's Brilliant Ride Is Factor in Le Mar Victory.

Greenock Sets Mark for 6 Furlongs in Aero Handicap.

Special to The Washington Post.

BOWIE RACE TRACK, Nov. 28.—Misstep finally won a purse for the Le Mar Stock Farm when he beat W. J. Salmon's Dr. Freeland in the Thanksgiving Handicap at Bowie this afternoon. It was his second victory in Maryland this fall, but in his other winning effort he was disqualified for fouling Bateau.

A field of eleven went to the post and Misstep was a well-backed favorite. R. Workman had the mount and he handled the son of Upset with excellent judgment, rating Misstep off the pace and never making a move until making the turn for home. Misstep responded with a bold effort when called on and hanging on with good courage just lasted long enough to beat Dr. Freeland out a head. J. F. Adams' Glen Wild was third, a length back of Dr. Freeland.

In the early running Balko and Princess Tina went to the front and set the pace. Workman was waiting in behind them with Misstep, nursing the latter along for a final effort. The result was that when Misstep challenged Balko and Princess Tina had nothing left and they both stopped. Dr. Freeland and Glen Wild came from a long way back. Both finished going much faster than the winner.

Record Crowd, Ideal Weather For Races.

The races were run under most favorable conditions and before one of the largest crowds that has turned out at a track in Maryland this fall. Long before the running of the first race standing room in the spacious stand was at a premium and the overflow made themselves as comfortable as possible on the lawns. Backers of the choices fared none too well, Misstep being the first favorite to win during the afternoon.

The Odom Confederacy was again in the limelight at Bowie this afternoon when George, the older of the two brothers, who have been saddling many winners at the last two meetings in Maryland this fall, furnished the victor of the opening event when he sent Storm to the post for R. L. Gerry. Storm was one of the twelve that sported silk in this race and he was coupled with Steppanite as the Gerry-Lenox Stable entry. Rodrack started out like a winner. Dashing to the front soon after the break, Rodrack drew away and set a fast pace. Storm and Jolly Pal were in closest pursuit and they ran in this order to the top of the homestretch where Jolly Pal made a very wide turn and Storm, hugging the rail, saved much ground. This enabled the latter to take command and for the remainder of the trip he held his opposition safe. At the end, Storm won by three lengths from Rodrack, who just lasted long enough to beat Jolly Pal a neck.

Woodwardville Purse To Gay Past.

The Woodwardville Purse brought a smart lot of 2-year-olds to the post and it furnished an interesting contest. The P. S. P. Randolph Stable furnished the winner in Gay Past, a good looking colt by Gay Ronald, who was up in the closing strides to beat We Dun It out a nose. Half a length back of this pair finished Snowflake and Valenciennes, heads apart. The conditions of this event called for a dash of seven furlongs. Soon after the break Top Kick, one of the Audley Farm entry, went to the front and in the run down the back stretch opened up an easy lead on his field.

Schutte appeared to have him in hand and those back of him were being hard ridden. Believe Sally was close up and at the turn out of the back stretch made a desperate effort to pass the leader. Making the turn for home, We Dun It took the lead only to tire in the final sixteenth. The winner, Gay Past, displayed great courage under punishment and when the final test came outgamed We Dun It.

The Aero Handicap brought a shifty lot of sprinters to the post and Greenock was forced to hang up a new track record for the six furlongs to beat Judge Schilling out a length. There were seven starters and Sandy was the favorite. Judge Schilling was the one to take the place. Taking the lead soon after the start he set his field a dazzling clip and with Greenock close up he went to the quarter in 0:22 3-5, where he was half a length in front. Rounding the far turn, he increased his advantage to one length and as they swung for home he led Greenock by a length and a half. The half mile was in 0:46. In the stretch run, Judge Schilling weakened and Greenock, finishing stoutly, passed the tiring Judge Schilling in the last hundred yards to win going away by a length. Judge Schilling, in a driving finish, lasted long enough to beat Sandy a neck for the place. Clean Play was last. The six furlongs were run in 1:10 3-5, a new track record for the distance. The previous track record of 1.11 was made by Prince of Wales, Poly and Balko.

V. M. I. DOWNS RIVAL POLY GRIDMEN, 14 TO 0

Stronger Cadet Line, Hawkins' Rushes Are Features.

Poly Team Never Seriously Threatens During Game.

Special to The Washington Post.

ROANOKE, Va., Nov. 28. — The brilliant running of Capt. Al Hawkins of the V. M. I. Flying Squadron, and the superior strength of the veteran Keydet line was too much for V. P. I. and swept the fighting Gobblers of Virginia Poly to a 14-to-0 defeat before 22,000 roaring fans in the annual Thanksgiving Day battle here today.

V. M. I.'s veteran team plowed to victory decisively and left no doubt of superiority in the minds of the greatest throng ever to witness a gridiron battle in the Old Dominion. The flying Keydets, who ruled as strong pregame favorites by virtue of their all-senior team, rolled up twenty first downs to nine for V. P. I. The dashing attack of the Keydet back field was simply too much for the shattered V. P. I. line, which was playing without the injured Dex Hubbard.

To complete the triumph and prove their undisputed right to the Virginia gridiron championship of 1929 the Keydets thwarted the infrequent threats of Phil Spear, Macauley McEver and the other wing-footed backs of V. P. I.'s pony express back field.

Scott and Moody Stop V. P. I. Drive.

Spear, McEver, Hooper and Tomko played masterly ball to gain the ground they did against the superior V. M. I. line, but never seriously threatened. On the heels of the first V. M. I. touchdown the Gobblers uncorked a desperate attack after McCray kicked off over the goal line, and the ball was put in play at the 20-yard strip. Spear, Tomko and McEver raced behind vicious interference to march inside the Keydet 30-yard mark on five successive first downs, but Scott and Moody, the great little ends of the flying squadron, rose to the heights to hurl back the drive at the 25-yard mark.

V. M. I.'s first score came midway the opening quarter, after Hooper had leaped into the air to knock down Biggs' pass and end a real V. M. I. threat in the opening minute. V. M. I. gained the ball near midfield, and Biggs circled his own right end for 18 yards and a first down on Poly's 42-yard line. Hawkins faked a double pass to McCray and then spun through tackle for a first down on Poly's 30-yard line. Lunn added 5 more, and Hawkins took a running start from kick formation to fight his way to another first down on the 20-yard line. Biggs picked up 4 more, and Hawkins again came through to make a first down on the 9-yard marker. Dunn drove over guard to the 5, and McEver stopped Biggs a scant 2 yards from the goal.

Penalty Fails to Halt Cadet March.

An offside penalty cost the Poly Team another yard, and Hawkins drove over the goal by inches before the Poly forwards hurled him back. Scott added the point from placement.

V. M. I. penetrated to Poly's 17-yard line in the second period on straight running plays before the Gobbler forwards stopped the drive. Thwarted on the ground, Capt. Hawkins took to the air without success, for Hooper, Poly quarter back, leaped high to bat down Biggs' bullet pass to Scott, and the ball went over on the 17-yard line.

Spear, Tomko and McEver got under way again in the third period and rolled up three first downs near midfield before two penalties killed the drive just as it was becoming a real threat. Late in the period Andy Gustafson, Poly mentor, rushed in Rule and Rice, his reserve half backs, to replace Spear and Tomko, the fast tiring threats of the first array, but they all looked alike to the alert Keydet forwards.

The final Keydet tally started at V. P. I.'s 42-yard line when Biggs grabbed Hooper's pass to Rule. Capt. Hawkins took the ball after his teammates had faltered at the line and swept down field to the 29-yard line.

Dunn Registers Final Touchdown.

Biggs and Dunn again plowed the line to the 16-yard strip. Hawkins went to the 1-yard line, and Dunn carried the oval across for the touchdown. McCray bucked the line for the extra point.

The game was featured by the drills of the cadet corps from the two institutions. Led by their bands, both student bodies marched around the field and passed in review before John Garland Pollard, governor-elect, and military and educational officials.

N. Y. U. TEAM BOWS, 20-0, TO TECH

Carnegie Passes Bewilder Violets Throughout.

By BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Carnegie Tech's red-jerseyed horde of ball hawks brought an assortment of forward passes to Yankee Stadium today, so bewildering to New York University that the Violets never did find out what they were all about, and the Pittsburghers won the Thanksgiving game, 20 to 0.

New York University kept its record of not winning games on Thanksgiving Day clear, and Carnegie Tech made a new record by defeating New York University for the first time. This, however, is not so impressive as it sounds, for the two teams have played only four games.

The supporters of the Scotch rushed on the field at the close of the game and after tearing the goal posts from their foundations, made a bonfire of the uprights in the center of the field, as a result of this conflagration new posts will have to be provided for the Army-Notre Dame game Saturday.

50,000 Crowd Braves Cold Weather.

A crowd of 50,000 sat through the game in a chilly wind threatening constantly to blow up a fall of snow.

New York University held its own fairly well when the Skibos were content to hit the line, but when the plaid troops took to the air, the home guard was all but helpless, especially when a completed pass meant a touchdown. Two of the counters were scored in the first period, both coming on forward passes from the sure-shooting McCurdy, the first to Eyth and the second to T. Flannagan. Morbito plunged over from the 1-yard line for the final touchdown, which came as the last play of the game.

New York University had only two real chances to score and the rugged and alert Tartans had enough left in each case to bring the drive up short.

GUILFORD ELEVEN WINS.

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 28.—In a game characterized all the way by brilliant football Guilford College defeated Lynchburg College here today, 13 to 6. All the scoring was done in the fourth period. The locals were outweighed about 15 pounds.

Nevers Scores 40 Points To Set Pro Game Record

Chicago, Nov. 28 (A.P.). — Ernie Nevers, former Stamford star, established an individual scoring record for one National Professional League football game today by scoring all of the Chicago Cardinals' points in their 40-to-6 victory over the Chicago Bears. Nevers drove over for six touchdowns and kicked from placement for four extra points.

The victory gave the Cardinals the Chicago City professional championship for the first time since 1927. The Bears scored their only touchdown in the third period, when Walt Homer passed to Garland Grange who galloped 50 yards for the touchdown.

Paul Bunyan Victor In Jefferson Feature

New Orleans, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—The Jefferson Park long winter meeting got away to a flying start here today with a record-breaking crowd which came to see the Thanksgiving Handicap, a gallop of a mile and 70 yards. L. M. Severson's Paul Bunyan scored a clever victory over some fairly good handicap horses. His win was a popular one, and he got a great deal of applause. He was a slight favorite over the Three D's Stable pair. Galahad finished second and Calf Roper third. Paul Bunyan earned $2,280 for his owner by winning.

The weather was ideal, but the track was in poor shape. It was dry on top, but underneath it was very heavy, and slow time was the rule. Out of an overnight entry of thirteen only eight faced the starter.

The start was good, and Patricia Marian went into the lead, followed by Mix Up. At the far turn Paul Bunyan and Calf Roper were running first and second. They drew out, and Paul Bunyan finally won by two lengths over Galahad, which closed fast and beat Calf Roper a head for the place. The winner paid $7.60, and the time was 1:56.

Long Dashes by Mills Win for Wake Forest

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 28 (A.P.).—A pair of touchdown dashes by Eustace Mills, fleet half back, gave Wake Forest a 13-to-0 victory over Mercer today. Mills took a Mercer punt in midfield in the first quarter and dashed for a touchdown. In the final period he went around end for 80 yards and the second score.

Swavely Smothers Warrenton, 55 to 0

Special to The Washington Post.

Manassas, Va., Nov. 28.—A plucky but outclassed and outweighed Warrenton High School Team was the victim of a strong Swavely School Team today in the closing game of the Swavely schedule played before a large crowd. The score was 55 to 0.

Swavely flashed its best football of the year today and unleashed a brand of attack that a much stronger team than the Warrentonians would have found difficult to stop.

West Virginia Scores Upset Win Over W. & J.

Morgantown, W. Va., Nov. 28 (A.P.). West Virginia in brilliant fashion ended an erratic football season today by winning 6 to 0 over Washington and Jefferson here.

West Virginia recovered a fumbled punt on the President's 16-yard line in the first quarter and, aided by a W. and J. penalty for offside, counted its touchdown, "Tarzan" Glenn, full back, crashing over from the 1-yard line.

The Presidents, whose record had established them as favorites, threatened only once, reaching the Mountaineer 28-yard line on a blocked punt.

GATORS STOP GENERALS, 25 TO 7

Straight Tactics Are Used to Batter Out Victory.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 28.—While flocks of deputy sheriffs and prohibition officers patrolled the stands to keep liquor drinking at a minimum, Florida and Washington and Lee gridders fell in with the spirit of the occasion and played a dry, uninteresting game at Fairfield Stadium today. By use of straight line play the Gators won by 25 to 7, in the tilt which ends amicably football relations of six years standing between the two colleges.

Florida found the opposing forwards too easy to take any risks in the air. The home crew tossed but two passes, and completed one of them for 18 yards to assist in scoring the fourth touchdown. The invaders were more liberal with the aerial efforts, passing twelve times to connect with four, and two of these brought on the most spectacular moments of the grid pastime.

This brief spell of spectacular work came with but three minutes left to play. The Generals had wrested the ball from Gator substitutes on their own 33-yard line. Martin immediately passed to Mellon, who was downed 40 yards from the Florida goal. Another Martin toss placed the speedy Williams in the open and he seemed due to score. But Baldwin managed to brush him from behind and Williams fell, skidding over the goal. The referee ruled he had been downed about a foot from the goal and it was left up to Mitchell to dive over the line for the counter. Hawkins kicked goal, practically his last act on a college football field.

Silsby's Fine Punting Aided 'Gators.

The Gators started out with second string players on the grid and these boys scored after Silsby's fine punting enabled them to get inside General territory. Off tackle shots on quick opening plays took Charlie Bachman's boys right down the line and Silsby whipped across the goal. Phiel kicked goal, the only successful Florida conversion. The regular Florida team scored next, largely by virtue of a blocked punt on the W. and L. 8-yard line. Dorsett made the final few yards. The third marker was the result of a General fumble recovered by Parnell on the enemy's 40-yard mark. Dorsett pounded through the opposing line repeatedly, until Goodbread made the final drive.

A short punt by Thibodeau which Crabtree returned to the Generals' 45-yard line gave the Gators their next opening. Another steady drive, spiced a bit by Dorsett's toss to Parnell for 18 yards, placed Dorsett in position to score on a 3-yard flip off tackle.

It was after this that the Generals made their lone rally. Fourteen first downs to three in favor of Florida, tells the tale of the game. Thibodeau showed flashes of form, but usually was unable to get past the line of scrimmage, so well was he bottled up. Hawkins kept his tackle post fairly inviolate, while Eberhart also worked well in the back field.

Parnell, Steele and Waters were outstanding in the Gator line while Goodbread and Dorsett were most effective in a ball-carrying way.

YORK ELEVEN NOSES OUT EASTERN

Second Half Rallies Bring 13-12 Victory for Home Team.

Special to The Washington Post.

YORK, Pa., Nov. 28.—Taking full advantage of two breaks, York High overcame Eastern High, of Washington, here today to eke out a 13-to-12 victory on Meadow Field.

Eastern had York deep in York's territory most of the first half, and near the end of the first period Eastern opened a drive from its own 40-yard line. Oxley returned the punt 9 yards. Shackelford and Oxley in two rushes gained 11 yards and a pass Oxley to McCullough, gained 23 yards and a first down on York's 15-yard line. Shackleford swept through right tackle for 11 yards and a first down on York's 4-yard line. Here York made a brilliant stand, and in three rushes Eastern still had a yard to go for a touchdown as the period ended.

On the first play in the second quarter Oxley tried to go through right tackle, but failed to gain.

Exley's Passing Brings Score.

Soon afterward, however, Eastern scored. Bitner twice punted, and finally York had Eastern pushed back to Eastern's 31-yard line. With McCullough, Oxley and Shackleford carrying the ball, Eastern advanced to York's 42-yard line, from where a lateral pass play, McCullough to Shackleford, and the latter went around left end for 22 yards and a first down on York's 20-yard line.

A pass, Oxley to McCullough, was good for 10 yards, and Oxley hit the line for 6 yards, giving Eastern a first down inside York's 5-yard line. Three rushes lost 6 yards for Eastern and on fourth down Oxley tossed a pass to McCullough for a touchdown.

It was in the third period that fate went against Eastern. York opened an advance from midfield and two forward passes helped the advance considerably and eventually York had gained a first down on Eastern's 15-yard line. Strayer swept around left end for 11 yards and as he was being tackled dropped the ball and it rolled across the goal line, and Benthel, York end, fell on it for a touchdown. A pass, Bitner to Myers, produced the extra point. Less than five minutes later Benthel grabbed an Eastern lateral pass and again ran 58 yards for a touchdown.

Blocked Place-Kick Prevents Tie.

Oxley returned the kick-off 45 yards as the third period ended. Three rushes gave Eastern a first down on York's 35-yard line and Millar, Eastern's quarter back, who had not carried the ball previously, made successive dashes around left end for gains of 13 and 22 yards and a touchdown. Shanabrough blocked Montague's placement boot for the extra point.

After this score, Eastern held York and forced Bitner to punt, and the invaders opened another attack, but it was halted when Rauhauser snared an Eastern fumble while it was still in the air and ran it 10 yards to Eastern's 40-yard line.

Eastern gained eleven first downs to York's six.

G. U. Prep Eleven Beats Newman, 25-8

Georgetown Prep gridmen closed their season yesterday with an impressive victory over the Newman School Eleven, of Lakehurst, N. J., 25 to 8, on the Garrett Park Field. An early offensive that swept the visiting prepmen off their feet enabled the victors to pile up a lopsided advantage in the first period that was sufficient in itself to bring victory.

Early in the initial period, Heekin broke through tackle to dash 55 yards for the first G. U. Prep score, but the Newman lads came right back and drove the ball to the Prep 10-yard mark, where Carron hit the line for a touchdown, tying the score.

With Heekin, Di Bernardino, Morse and Robison playing outstanding roles, the G. U. Prep attack carried the Newman line before it. A 40-yard pass, Heekin to Walsh, netted one touchdown. Di Bernardino's 37-yard sprint accounted for another. A G. U. Prep fumble behind its goal line enabled the Newman Team to register a safety soon after the start of the second half.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 28.—Trailing by 5 points at half time, The Fives, local midget grid team, registered four touchdowns in the second half to defeat the Virginia Episcopal School Eleven, of Lynchburg, here today, 32 to 25.

The game, played on Lambeth Field, before 1,500 spectators, abounded in thrills. The visitors got off to a 12-point lead and at the close of the third period the score was knotted, 19 to 19. Touchdowns by Roberts and Davis in the fourth quarter put The Fives out in front by 12 points, but in the final minute of play, Jack Taylor, of Episcopal, intercepted a forward pass and raced 94 yards for a touchdown. Accurate passing by Harry Dinwiddie was the deciding factor in today's victory, which gave The Fives the State midget championship.

Carolina Humbles Virginia Eleven With 41-7 Victory

Game Is Most One-Sided in 34 Years of Rivalry; Sloan's Dash to Goal From Kick-Off Is a Feature.

By W. F. M'FARLAND
(Associated Press Staff Writer).

KENAN STADIUM, Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 28 (A.P.).—The University of North Carolina smashed its way to a 41-to-7 win over the University of Virginia here this afternoon. It was the largest margin of victory by which the Tarheels have defeated the Cavaliers in the 34 years of rivalry between the schools.

Not since the year 1892, when the North Carolinians won one of the two games played that season by 26 to 0, had the Heels been able to get as much as that margin over the Virginians.

A crowd of 30,000 jammed every seat, temporary bleachers and standing room in the big stadium. Gov. Harry Floyd Byrd, of Virginia; Gov. O. Max Gardner, of North Carolina, and William R. Kenan, of New York, donor of the stadium here, sat in the box of President Harry W. Chase, of U. N. C., and watched the contest.

Sloan Features With Score From Kick-Off.

Virginia, though defeated, contributed the outstanding single play of the game when Capt. Sloan, playing his last contest in a Cavalier suit of moleskins, took a kick-off and raced 90 yards to score. At the end of the first period, four touchdowns had been scored, three by Carolina, and neither eleven had made a first down in drives which resulted in scoring.

The scoring during the contest came as the result of sensational plays with the yardage made on scoring plays tapering down from the 90 yards of Capt. Sloan to forward passes of 25 yards.

The Tarheels started the scoring on the second play after they got the ball. Virginia received to open the contest but on the second play Lewy fumbled and Nash, of Carolina, recovered on Virginia's 32-yard line. Two plays later Jimmy Ward circled right end for 31 yards and a touchdown. Ward and Strud Nash, fleet Carolina backs, each scored two touchdowns.

Ward Proves Big Threat For Tarheels.

Ward more than once threatened to break clear on other plays but his two dashes that resulted in scores were for 31 and 50 yards. Ward also did some pretty passing and one of his heaves to Nash accounted for 25 yards and another score.

The other score made by Nash came on a pretty 50-yard break through the Virginia right tackle.

Maus made a touchdown when he slipped around the Virginia right tackle for 45 yards. The last Carolina touchdown came on another pass from Ward, this time to Branch, which was good for about 25 yards.

Coach Chuck Collins of Carolina, used a score of subs in the contest and Coach Earle E. Abell, of Virginia, used almost as many.

Tulane Wins, 21 to 0; Claims Southern Title

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Tulane University of New Orleans today laid claim to the Southern Conference title by defeating Louisiana State University, 21 to 0, in the 27th annual renewal of their Thanksgiving gridiron relationship. With Tennessee tied by Kentucky at Lexington this afternoon, Tulane was the only undefeated and untied eleven in Dixie circuit.

Approximately 23,000 witnessed the game here today, featured by the machine-like play of the Big Green Team.

Captain Billy Banker, of Tulane, turned in a brilliant performance at the Green left half, but figured in the scoring only by a pass heaved to Armstrong in the first quarter for the first marker, and 2 extra points with perfect placements.

The victory today evened the count over the years since the rivals have met, Tulane scoring a twelfth win to match the Tigers' dozen successes since 1893. Three of the games have been ties.

Coach Neyland to Stay At Tenn. 4 More Years

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Hugh M. Tate, Knoxville attorney and president of the Alumni Association of the University of Tennessee, said today that an arrangement had been made whereby Maj. Robert Neyland may continue to coach at the University for four years more.

Maj. Neyland, who is to be transferred from Knoxville under Army regulations, has been coach at the university for five years. Tate said he had received word from Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of the Corps of Engineers, to which service Neyland is attached, saying that the major would be transferred to Chattanooga. Tate said he was advised that accumulated leave and furloughs would be given Maj. Neyland three or four months each year to use as he desired, and that the major had said he would devote this time to coaching here.

In the five years Maj. Neyland has been here as R. O. T. C. commander and coach of the football team he has transformed volunteer football from a mediocre level to one ranking with the highest teams in the South.

Dunlap Ga. Tech Star As Auburn Bows, 19-6

Atlanta, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Earl Dunlap, a junior quarter back, stole the show today as Georgia Tech laced Auburn, 19 to 6, in a game which saw the last appearance of Stumpy Thomason and Warner Mizell, two of the Tornadoes' brightest back-field stars.

It was Dunlap who scored two of Tech's touchdowns, one with a 31-yard sprint and the other on a dazzling 70-yard dash. Auburn's touchdown in the fourth period was the result of a 49-yard dash by Davidson and a 1-yard plunge by Hatfield.

Grid Coach Crowley Resigns at Columbia

New York, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Charley Crowley, head coach of football at Columbia University, announced his resignation tonight.

Crowley's announcement followed Columbia's 6-to-0 defeat by Syracuse, the second year in succession in which the Lions failed to score a major victory. Last year Columbia's best against major opposition was a scoreless tie with Cornell. The resignation was announced by Columbia University officials in the following statement:

"The Columbia University committee on athletics has received the following letter from Coach Charles F. Crowley:

"'As you will recall in our previous conversations in connection with your football plans for 1930, I felt that my name should not be considered in those plans, and I am still of the same mind.

"'I would like to repeat that statement at this time when you will quite likely wish to take definite action regarding your coaching staff for the coming year.'

"In view of the foregoing letter the athletic authorities will take necessary steps to select a new head coach."

N. Y. Giant Pros Win From Stapleton, 21-7

New York, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—The New York Giants of the National Professional Football League, defeated Stapleton on the latter's home field in Staten Island today, 21 to 7.

Plansky plowed through the Stapleton line for the Giants' first touchdown in the initial period and Friedman passed to Sedbrooke for another Giant tally in the same period. In the third period, Haines went across for Stapleton's touchdown. Ken Strong making good on the kick for extra point. The Giants scored their final touchdown in the last period. Friedman tossing a long forward to Flaherty. Friedman kicked all three extra points for the Giants.

Haskell Indians Toy With St. Xaviers

Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—The Haskell Indians toyed wit St. Xavier here today, winning their annual Thanksgiving Day intersectional game, 13 to 0, before 13,500 persons, the largest crowd which ever saw a football game here.

The feature play was a 72-yard run by Capt. Weller, Haskell half back, who carried the ball to the 2-foot line, but the long gain was nullified when an Indian was ruled offside.

Yale Soccer Team Downs Middies, 2-1

Special to The Washington Post.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 28.—Navy's rally late in the fourth period of its soccer game with Yale today failed by one goal to overcome the Eli lead, and the Middies were defeated, 2 to 1.

The same high wind which had been at Yale's back in the first and third quarters, respectively, when Lee booted the winner's two goals, aided Navy in the last period.

Wilbur, Navy goal, several times won the applause of a fair-sized crowd by sensational stops in front of the cage. Blackburn, substitute for Engel at inside right, netted the lone Navy score. Capt. Hulme, of Navy, and Capt. Robertson, of Yale, were outstanding for their play at half-back posts.

Western Maryland 7-0 WinnerOverMuhlenberg

Allentown, Pa., Nov. 28.—Western Maryland's foot ball warriors retained their record as an undefeated eleven by winning over a fighting Muhlenberg squad, 7 to 0, in their annual clash here today.

In a determined aerial attack, Bates scored the only touchdown of the game in the second quarter. It was a 35-yard throw from Doughty to Bates that paved the way for the victory.

During the remainder of the struggle both teams uncorked a series of forward passes, but neither was able to score. Western Maryland got within the Muhlenberg 5-yard line twice in the final period, but could not break through for another counter.

Alleghany High Wins, From La Salle, 7 to 0

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 28.—Rising to unexpected heights, Alleghany High dazed 4,000 fans by defeating LaSalle Institute in the annual gridiron game here this afternoon at Community Park, 7 to 0, in the final game of the season.

The two teams have been bitter rivals in all branches of sports for more than two years and this afternoon's clash attracted a record crowd. Many were turned away. LaSalle was the favorite because of its imposing record but Alleghany upset the dope by outplaying the Big Green to win a clean-cut victory, followed by greatest demonstration in the football history here.

Three line plunges by Beyolkey carried the pigskin to the Blue and Gold's 10-yard strip at the start of the second quarter and McMillan circled right end for 9 yards to make it a first down on the Institute's 1-yard line. From this mark Beyolkey went across for a touchdown. Danner passed to McMillan for the extra point.

TENNESSEE'S TITLE HOPE BLASTED

Clean Slate Sullied by 6-6 Tie With Kentucky.

By EDDIE BRIETZ
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 28 (A.P.). Across the snow-covered blue grass country tonight, the sharp shrill scream of the Kentucky Wildcat sang a funeral dirge for blasted Tennessee championship dreams. Clawing their way through a snowstorm to a 6 to 6 tie with the mightiest Tennessee team in history, the Wildcats not only smashed Volunteer title hopes, but left a smudge on an otherwise unsullied record.

Outplayed two-thirds of the way and with their first defeat in more than three years seemingly only a matter of minutes, Tennessee made a desperate and savage bid for the game and the conference crown that may have gone with it.

A 40-yard pass from Bobby Dodd, the Vol quarter, to Buddy Hackman, one of the Tennessee touchdown twins, paved the way for Hackman to crash two yards through the line for the tying touchdown on the next play.

Wildcats Hop Into Lead In Third Quarter.

After three quarters of few threats and no touchdowns, 18,000 frozen spectators were treated to their first thrill at the start of that wild and wooly last period, when the Wildcats rang up the first touchdown and hopped into the lead.

Starting from their own 44-yard line the Wildcats, with Spicer, Phipps and Covington, three speedy backs, ramming the line, had the ball on Tennessee's 11-yard stripe when the last quarter began.

Spicer put it on the 1-yard line in four tries and Jack Phipps hit the line for the needed yard and score. Covington's kick was wide.

The biggest surprise to the crowd was the utter failure of Hackman and McEver, the Tennessee scoring terrors, to click against the Wildcats. McEver, the Dixie scoring king contributed but 16 yards to the Tennessee yardage total and Hackman, his running mate, checked in with only 10.

Vanderbilt Trounces Sewanee Team, 26 to 6

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 28 (A.P.).—The University of the South lost, 26 to 6, today in its annual football struggle with the heavier Vanderbilt Commodores. Sewanee scored its only touchdown in the fourth period after a pass from Worrall to Cravens netted 40 yards and placed the ball on Vanderbilt's 3-yard line. Worrall took the ball over.

McGaughey scored Vanderbilt's four touchdowns.

William-Mary Hiker Wins at Portsmouth

Portsmouth, Va., Nov. 28.—Lloyd Johnson, William and Mary College sophomore, won the Thanksgiving modified marathon, held under the auspices of the Portsmouth Y. M. C. A. here today. Twenty-of Tidewater Virginia's best distance runners competed in the 2½-mile race through the streets of the city.

Johnson led the field by a quarter mile, his nearest competitor being Bradshaw, of Fort Monroe. Tareton, William and Mary, placed third; Alongulah, Fort Monroe, fourth, and Koeiner, of the U. S. S. Florida, fifth. The winner's time was 14 minutes 27 seconds.

Tennessee Given Place Of S. C. by Tarheels

Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Substitution of the University of Tennessee for the South Carolina University date and continuation of the tengame schedule were the high lights of the 1930 University of North Carolina football schedule announced here today by Dr. Foy Roberson, member of the university athletic council.

Otherwise the schedule follows that of 1929, but dates and locations have not all been fixed. The Tennessee contract calls for "home and home" contests, the first to be played at Knoxville.

The season will opened with Wake Forest, followed by Virginia Polytechnic Institute and then Georgia. The trip to Knoxville will be next and then Georgia Tech, North Carolina State, Davidson, Virginia and Duke, in order, will come to Chapel Hill.

Augusta Is Victor Over Fishburne, 34-12

Special to The Washington Post.

Waynesboro, Va., Nov. 28.—Augusta Military Academy routed its annual Thanksgiving Day rival, Fishburne Military School, on the latter's grounds here today, 34 to 12. Augusta scored twice in the initial quarter, the first of which followed the kick-off on a series of offtackle plays by Bach, Augusta half. Weisker scored the second marker when he tore through the entire Fishburne Team for 65 yards and a touchdown. The visitors scored again in each of the remaining quarters.

Fishburne's two touchdowns came in the third and fourth quarters when Gentry, Fishburne tackle, interrupted a pass for a touchdown, and Dutrow plunged through the line for the last marker. Augusta's last marker was made several seconds before the close of play when Weisker returned the kick-off for a touchdown.

RANDOLPH-MACON WINS.

ARLINGTON STARTS HEALTH SEAL SALE

ADVERTISING MAN WEDS

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

With the sounding of the sirens and the ringing of church bells the annual Tuberculosis Christmas Seal sale will be launched today.

Mrs. Norbert Melnick, chairman in charge of the county drive, with her assistants has prepared a list of more than 2,000 persons to whom seals will be mailed today.

As an additional feature of the sale this year the Business and Professional Woman's Club of Arlington County is urging an extensive use of Tuberculosis Christmas Seals in preference to the usual fancy ones. Letters have been sent to the organization's unit presidents in the county asking that they cooperate in making this sale the greatest yet.

State Senator Frank L. Ball says: "It should be looked upon as a great privilege to purchase and use the little tuberculosis seals, money for which is used for the prevention of consumption and relief of suffering caused by this disease. I heartily indorse the use of the funds in the county being directed toward the undernourished child, who is more subject to the disease, and toward the campaign directed toward the finding and educating of already existent cases.

"The returns for the seals bought in the county mean money usable in the county. It is wise, therefore, to purchase your seals from the local organization."

Next Sunday has been designated as Tuberculosis Sunday and all the clergymen in the county have been asked to call to the attention of their congregations the great need of this work, which is being done in this county toward the prevention and relief of suffering caused by tuberculosis.

Manifesting a spirit of gratitude and happiness, citizens of Arlington County yesterday celebrated Thanksgiving Day in the usual quite manner. Services in all the churches were well attended.

Reports from Sheriff Howard B. Fields' office showed that law and order prevailed throughout the county, not one case of disorder being recorded.

After months of organization work and laying the foundation for the carrying on of an extensive campaign in the interest of the movement, officials of "Back-to-the-District Association" announced last night that headquarters are being opened in the former rooms occupied by the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce in the Rucker Building at Clarendon.

Richard L. Eacho, vice president, stated last night that with more than 370 members now enrolled plans have been perfected to cover the entire county and it can best be accomplished from a central point, and for that reason the new headquarters are being opened. J. Cloyd Byars will be in charge.

The offices will be open day and night and from there will be distributed booklets showing the great advantages to be derived from again becoming a part of the District of Columbia.

Eacho announces that assurance has been given from both branches of Congress of support to the proposed "Back-to-the-District" bill which will be introduced at the coming session.

Leonard B. Elkins, 35, and Margery F. Doyle, 32, both of Washington, were quietly married in Potomac Wednesday night by Judge Bryan Gordon.

Elkins is the advertising manager for the Clarendon Chronicle, a county weekly newspaper.

The County Board of Supervisors will hold its monthly meeting tomorrow morning at the courthouse at 10 o'clock.

Mrs. A. B. Gompf has been elected president of the woman's auxiliary of the Emmanuel Episcopal Church. Other officers are Mrs. Richard B. Washington, vice president; Mrs. T. J. Ballard, secretary; Mrs. John I. Kiger, treasurer; and Mrs. Leroy Peabody, educational secretary. The personnel of the standing committees will be announced at the December meeting.

The Girls Friendly Society of St. George's Episcopal Church will give a play entitled "Mother Goose Dream" in the parish hall tonight.

The American Legion Auxiliary of the Arlington Post, No. 139, announces its second "annual service" card party, which will be given the night of December 2 in the Boulevard Bakery at Clarendon.

This card party is given for the purpose of raising funds to purchase some of the handiwork of disabled veterans in Government hospitals. The articles will be awarded for the highest score made during the card games. Last year's proceeds amounted to $94.45.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Arlington Volunteer Fire Department will be held in the firemen's hall on Columbia pike, Wednesday night, December 4.

McPherson Sees Football Game

Watches Teammates Play and Then Is Given Holiday Reception.

Robert A. McPherson, jr., who was released from the District Jail last week when a second grand jury failed to indict him in connection with the mysterious death of his estranged wife, Mrs. Virginia Hurley McPherson, yesterday watched his football team, the Petworth Pennants, play at Silver Spring, Md.

McPherson was a regular tackle on the eleven prior to his incarceration on the first degree murder indictment returned by the first grand jury which investigated the death of his wife in her Park Lane apartment on September 12. This indictment was voided after it was discovered that there was an ineligible member on the jury.

Last night McPherson was given a Thanksgiving reception by his aunt, Mrs. B. B. Detwiler, at her home in Clarendon. It is reported he was greeted in Clarendon by a crowd of friends.

The fire department arrived too late to save the building but succeeded in saving three other large barns which were close to the flaming building.

Fire destroyed a quantity of fodder on the farm of S. E. Ayres, at Groveton, Wednesday night and for some time threatened to spread to a large dairy barn nearby. The small truck in which Purvis was a passenger was driven by French Groves, of 320 South Henry street. The third occupant was J. Fred Birrell, member of the House of Delegates, who was unhurt.

The bus was driven by James O. Thomas, and when he was called to testify at the investigation, Attorney Frank L. Ball, representing the bus company, advised him not to testify, so he did not appear.

Testimony was given by J. Fred Birrell, French Groves, C. W. Lampoh, police sergeant; George Everly, Clayton Wood, and a boy, Clarence Harrington.

The resolutions are signed by the following committee from the local association: H. T. Moncure, chairman; E. W. King, L. T. Woodward, M. A. Nevitt, A. G. Cummings, A. S. Millican and C. H. Wise. The Alexandria Teachers Association is 100 per cent in membership in the State body.

PRISON TERM GIVEN WHISKY MAKER, 82

HIS SECOND SENTENCE

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., Nov. 28.—Ambling along on two canes, his body twisted by rheumatism, John D. Ruffner, 82-year-old farmer of this county, yesterday was sentenced to the Virginia penitentiary for a year by a jury in the Page County Circuit Court for violation of prohibition laws.

For a similar offense several years ago he was sentenced to the Federal Penitentiary in Atlanta, Ga., for one year and a day. Several months ago Ruffner's 100-year-old farmhouse seven miles north of Luray was raided by half a dozen Federal prohibition enforcement officers.

A modern still of large capacity was found concealed in a doubly-concealed cellar beneath his dwelling. The only way by which an entrance could be made into the cellar was by using a trap door from Ruffner's bed room. The trap door was cleverly concealed beneath the aged farmer's bed by a carpet. Officers located the opening by crawling around on their hands and knees. Forty gallons of liquor was found in the cellar. The liquor-making outfit was complete to the minutest detail. Water was piped into the secret cellar from a hillside spring several hundred yards from Ruffner's home.

When Ruffner was caught he was surrounded by a veritable arsenal, shotguns, rifles and revolvers having been found in profusion. Several years ago Ruffner was acquitted of the murder of his son-in-law, Mark Walker, in the same court where yesterday he received his year in the penitentiary.

Plug of Tobacco Captured in Tennessee Is Among New Donations.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 28 (A.P.).—A sword worn by a member of Gen. A. P. Hill's staff, the sash and epaulettes of a Virginia captain, and a plug of tobacco figuring in a Civil War raid in Tennessee were accepted here for the Confederate Museum by the Confederate Memorial Literary Society.

Members of a Louisiana infantry regiment presented the sword to Maj. Norborne Stark, assistant adjutant general to Gen. Hill, and his sister, Mrs. William Meade Eggleston, of Vicksburg, Miss., has presented it to the commission for placing in the Louisiana room.

Dr. William Meade Eggleston also was among the donors, presenting some accoutrements worn by his father, William Eggleston, who served as captain in the Twenty-fourth Virginia Regiment. The sash and epaulettes will be placed in the Virginia room.

The Tennessee room falls heir to the plug of tobacco which was made at Rock Springs, Tenn., in 1862 and is said to be the oldest manufactured tobacco in the United States. Almost 20,000 pounds of the tobacco are said to have been captured from Confederate soldiers in the battle in which Gen. John H. Morgan was killed. The presentation was made by Mrs. J. H. Hardwick, of Cleveland, through Jefferson Davis Chapter, No. 900, United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Mrs. Herndon Dies After Long Illness

Former Penal Institution Superintendent Was Prison Expert.

Funeral services for Mrs. Minnie Rhine Herndon, 60, who died yesterday night at a private sanitarium after an illness of 18 months, will be held this afternoon at the Old Pohick Church at Lorton, Va. Interment will be in the family plot in the churchyard.

For 17 years, Mrs. Herndon was superintendent of women at the District penal institution, and won recognition in prison reform circles. During that time, she also was active in social welfare work. She was a member of the Beulah Baptist Church at Franconia, Va. Ill health forced her retirement from active work about a year ago.

Born in Prince William County, Va., she was married to Allan M. Herndon in 1897. Most of their married life was spent in Washington. She entered prison work after Mr. Herndon's death. Mrs. Herndon is survived by two daughters, Mrs. William H. Leef, of Alexandria, and Miss M. Aurelia Herndon, of Washington, and a son, Francis M. Herndon, of Washington.

Father and Three Killed in Crash

Wife of Maryland Farmer Critically Injured as Train Hits Auto.

Havre de Grace, Md., Nov. 28 (A.P.).—H. Alexander Phipps and three of his children were killed in an automobile struck early today on a crossing at Perryman, Md., by a Pennsylvania Railroad express train which hurled the car into the watchman's shelter at the side of the tracks.

Phipps, foreman in charge of a large farm near Perryman; his two daughters, Ethel, 16, and Virginia, 14, and a son, Garnet, 11, were instantly killed. Mrs. Phipps was taken to the Havre de Grace Hospital in a critical condition with a fractured skull, fractured arm and other injuries and had not regained consciousness several hours after the accident. Another son, Francis, 6 years old, was taken to the hospital, but physicians found only minor scratches and bruises.

Phipps and his family were returning to their home after visiting his brother, D. W. Phipps, at Edgewood.

JEFFERSON PAPERS DONATED TO LIBRARY

LOS ANGELES MAN DONOR

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 28.—Four valuable Jefferson items have been added to the Virginia collection of the University of Virginia Library by a recent gift. The items are a set of official cipher codes, partly in autograph, as used by Jefferson for diplomatic correspondence during 1783-1787; an autograph document connected with the early history of the university; and two autograph letters, one, dated at Williamsburg in 1769, being an unusually early Jefferson letter, and the other, dated at Paris in 1785 during Jefferson's period as Minister to France, giving comment on international affairs.

This gift to the university has been received by President Alderman from William A. Clark, jr., of Los Angeles, who purchased the four items from the Rosenbach Co. of Philadelphia. Clark is a son of the late Senator William A. Clark and is an alumnus of the University of Virginia, having taken his degree in law in 1899. He is a collector of books and manuscripts and possesses one of the outstanding private libraries in the United States. He has been a frequent donor to the library.

The set of codes is a peculiarly interesting Jefferson item. It consists of sixteen pieces mounted on fifteen sheets, and it is enclosed for protection in a heavy leather case. Thirteen of the pieces are, in part at least, in Jefferson's handwriting, and show the care which was characteristic of his scrupulous work. They doubtless indicate also the appeal which the technique of cryptograms must have had for Jefferson.

One of the three autograph letters, dated from Paris, 26 August, 1785, is packed with terse comment on the political and commercial situation in Europe in the summer of 1785. There is a reference to the adoption of the dollar as the American monetary unit, and Jefferson suggests a gold five dollar coin as a practical equivalent to the English guinea.

The manuscript concerning the University of Virginia was written by Jefferson to Proctor Brockenborough four days after the meeting of the board of visitors, October 7, 1822, and contains the wording of an action of the visitors with regard to the building of the rotunda and the copy, to be published in the Enquirer and Central Gazette, of a call for payment of subscriptions to the university.

GRATITUDE CALLED DUTY OF CHILDREN

Parents Should Teach Them to Be Thankful, College Instructor Says.

ADVISES DAILY ROUTINE

Richmond, Va., Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Children learn to respect God, whom they can not see or hear by acquiring a respectful and grateful attitude toward parents, Dr. Garry C. Myers, head of the Parental Education division of Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio, declared in a speech prepared for delivery at Broad Street M. E. Church Thanksgiving services here today. The services were held in connection with the annual session of the Virginia Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The idea that offspring should not be expected to show gratitude toward parents is foolish, the speaker declared. "Suppose," he said, "our children were to grow up with no regard for us, their parents. Suppose they acquire no feeling of obligation to us, no debt of gratitude. What moral values then are left for them?"

They must be taught to take on family obligations early, Dr. Myers asserted, and this can be accomplished without the parent becoming a continual annoyance to the child. Teaching the child a daily routine, he said, often does away with ceaseless scolding and is a good background for proper moral development.

Cites Life Example.

Failure of parents to train children to be thankful for the blessings in life often leads to extravagances on the part of youth and to their ruin, the speaker declared.

"The rent is due," he recited; "gas and light bills must be paid, and the bank account is low. Half a dozen young folk have dropped in. Pretty soon the lad of 15 gets an idea. He is going to take them to the corner drug store. All are ready, when the boy feels the need of cash. 'Dad, I must have about $5.' The father meekly hands it out to avoid the boy's rebuke and the disapproval of the other youngsters. That adolescent boy, like a bandit, forced the money from the father almost as if he has stuck a gun into his face. Two weeks later, at midnight, that same father called up a psychologist for advice on how to get his boy, who had run away from home, to return. The immediate cause was the refusal of the father to accede to the boy's most unreasonable demands. But the boy's leaving home did not occur that night. For months and years his father had been training him to leave.

No Good to Tell Them.

"It does no good to tell children they ought to appreciate us, ought to honor and respect us for what we do for them," he continued. "Children who respect their parents do so because they have learned in a thousand little ways to do so, and not from parents' 'oughts.' Nevertheless, each parent can lead his children to discern self-sacrifice in the other parent. I well remember having heard my mother tell us children often about the specific ways in which our father sacrificed for us; having heard my father tell us of the many sacrifices mother made on our account. Each, unawares, seemed set on leading us to esteem the spirit of unselfishness in the other parent.

"Fortunate the child who grows up in a Christian family, with parents who turn toward a heavenly father with thanksgiving. No finer moral training for a child can I think of, from the time he is large enough to sit beside the table, than to learn to bow his head to say or hear a blessing. He learns to wait for others and to take a reverent attitude toward a heavenly father. As soon as our children are 5 or 6 let us have them hear brief sketches from the treasures of the Book of Books."

Maryland Man Dies In Crash at Crossing

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 28.—Russell Browning, 51, of near Lavale, an employe of the Standard Oil Co. here for 30 years, was killed last night when struck by the Detroit Limited at the Baltimore & Ohio crossing at Valley street. With his grandson, Russell, 9, he was driving to the First Christian Church to attend Thanksgiving services and, according to Joseph Casserly, watchman, he seemed preoccupied and failed to heed warning given by a red lantern and by whistle. The machine was ditched. Browning was dead from a fractured skull. The boy sustained lacerations of the hand and minor bruises. Browning is survived by his wife, three sons and one daughter.

Inquiry Into Crossing Fatality Is Delayed

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Nov 28.—Further inquiry into a fatal crossing accident at Ringold last night, in which W. P. Puryear, 64, of Jalong, N. C., was killed and J. L. Wilson, 54, injured, was delayed by the coroner today because Wilson's state of shock is such that he can not be questioned. He is the only surviving eye-witness of the accident. Trainmen said the car reached the crossing just as the locomotive bore down on it. Both men, unconscious, were placed in the train which hastened to Danville. Puryear was found to be dead upon arrival.
